$20,000 Top Voted for Not Growing Crops

Giant Landholders Target of Cut in Subsidy Payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an unexpected turnabout, the Senate has voted a $20,000 annual limit on the amount a farmer can be paid for not growing crops. The proposal is given a good chance of becoming law.

Chief targets of the move are lush crop-subsidy payments to large corporations, banks, state governments and other giant land holders who have received individual payments of more than $4 million for keeping land out of production.

The proposal would impose the limit on wheat, cotton and feed grains.

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., who last year received $146,000 in subsidy payments on his Sunflower County, Miss., cotton plantation, voted against the measure which curbs payments to producers of wheat, cotton and feed grains.

Earlier Rejected

Just a year ago the Senate refused, 53 to 34, to approve an identical subsidy limit. Spurred by arguments the program has strangled the small family farm it was supposed to help and angered city dwellers, the Senate approved it, 40 to 35, Wednesday.

The vote, which surprised aides of Sen. Ralph T. Smith, R-Ill., who introduced the amendment, highlighted action on the pending agricultural appropriations bill for fiscal 1971.

But the Senate also voted $500 million to enable expansion of the food-stamp program for needy families and increased loan and grant funds to help rural communities build water treatment and sewerage facilities.

Similar Measures

The subsidy curb is expected to win acceptance in the House which twice has passed similar measures only to see them killed in conference with the Senate.

Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., served notice on his House colleagues that he plans to try to instruct the House conferees in advance of bargaining sessions with the Senate to agree to the payment limitation.

Findley offered an amendment to set a $20,000 limit on payments for each commodity when the House considered the agriculture money bill in June but it was defeated on a voice vote. Opponents, at that time, pointed to a general farm bill pending in the House Agriculture Committee as the proper vehicle for such a limitation.

Broad Support

'This action by the Senate demonstrates that a payment limitation has broad-based support among farmers and nonfarmers alike." Findley said in a "Dear Colleague" letter which he released.

However, Findley said based on past experience he feels that the House-Senate conference committees which would be named at a later time to iron out differences in the bills "will most likely drop any payment limitation amendment."

It is for that reason, Findley said, that he plans to try to have the House conferees instructed in advance to agree to the limitation.

2 Environmental Agencies Created

Independent, Cabinet Bodies to Have Charge Of Antipollution Effort

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon signed today reorganization plans to place environment protection and management under two new agencies.

The plans, to take effect unless Congress vetoes them, would create an independent Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) charged with the fight against all forms of environmental pollution, and a National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) within the Commerce Department.

The White House said the proposed antipollution agency would have an estimated budget of $1 4 billion, and 5,650 employes.

The Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, although larger with some 12,000 employes, would have an estimated 1971 budget of some $270 million.

Interior Department

The reorganization cuts deeply into the functions of the Interior Department, and to a lesser but still major extent into the functions of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

EPA would take over from interior the Federal Water Quality Administration which directs efforts to combat water pollution.

From health, education and welfare, EPA would take the National AKIR Pollution Con- Administration; solid waste, water hygiene, and some radiation safety functions; and the pesticides program of the Food and Drug Administration.

EPA would also absorb pesticide control activities of the Agriculture and Interior departments; the Federal Radiation Council and General Radiation protection activities of the Atomic Energy Commission; and the Ecological Research Function of the Council on Environmental Quality.

Weather Bureau

Drawn into the NOAA would be the Environmental Science Services Administration—the agency that includes the Weather Bureau—accounting for some 10,000 of its anticipated 12,000 personnel.

It would also incorporate from the Interior Department the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries, the marine minerals program of the Bureau of Mines, and the marine sports fishing program

Who Really Owns U.S.?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lee Metcalf called today for an investigation into who owns and controls America.

The Montana Democrat introduced a bill to set up an 11-member Senate special committee to investigate economic and financial concentration.

Concentration of economic power and financial control among major United States industries and financial institutions justify an investigation, Metcalf said.

"The Senate has asserted itself in the field of foreign affairs," he said. "It is time for the Senate to assert itself in domestic affairs."

In a speech accompanying introduction of the bill, Metcalf outlined concentration of power and interlocks among giant empires in the fields of finance, transportation, energy, communications, manufacturing and insurance.

"The degree of interrelationship (between these firms) is not known to the Congress, the executive branch, the courts or the public," he said. "Nor is the true control over the respective areas of commerce by these companies known.

"One thing is obvious," he added. "The imbalance between the top and everybody else is awesome."

Crashed Into Mountain

General's Copter Found Wrecked

SAIGON (AP) — Military sources said late today the wreckage of a missing helicopter with Maj. Gen. George W Casey, commander of the 1st Air Cavalry division, and six other Americans aboard had been located by searchers.

The sources said the helicopter apparently had crashed into a mountain Tuesday morning. There was no immediate confirmation that anyone had survived the crash, they added.

The wreckage of the UH1 helicopter which Casey himself was piloting, was spotted from the air by crewmen of one of the more than 60 aircraft that had taken part in a massive search.

As the search was being conducted, the U S. Command announced that a total of 61 Americans were killed in action last week, the lowest weekly total in 3½ years

Location Secret

Informants said the location of the helicopter wreckage was being withheld because no ground troops had as yet reached the scene to inspect it and look for survivors.

The U.S. Command had no comment on the reports of the wreckage being found, saying only that the search and rescue operation was discontinued at nightfall and was to be resumed Friday morning.

The sources said there was no indication that enemy action was involved in the crash of the helicopter, which Casey, 48, of North Scituate, Mass., was flying to visit wounded members of his division at a medical facility in South Vietnam.

The location of the hospital, like other details concerning the site of the crash, were withheld for security reasons while the search continued.

Gen. Casey's UHI Huey helicopter was last heard from at 10·10 a.m. Tuesday.

Six U.S generals were killed in action earlier in the war, including two earlier this year.

The command's weekly casualty summary reported 463 Americans wounded last week in addition to 61 killed. These figures brought the total American casualties in action that have been reported in the war to 42,919 killed, 282,966 wounded and 1,442 missing or captured.

Lowest Toll

It was the lowest weekly death toll since Dec. 3, 1966.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 371 government troops killed and 1,027 wounded in action last week, bringing government casualties since Jan. 1, 1960, to 110,175 killed and 231,631 wounded.

The two allied commands claimed 1,395 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese killed last week, and 655,145 since Jan. 1, 1961

The U.S. Command also released American casualty totals for the eight-week Cambodian operation, reporting 354 Americans killed and 1,689 wounded April 29 — June 30.

No major fighting was reported today in South Vietnam or Cambodia.

"Activity continued at a low level and was characterized by light and scattered ground contacts and light attacks by fire (shelling)," a spokesman said of the situation in Vietnam.

Shot Down

An OH6 observation helicopter was reported shot down and destroyed in Binh Dinh Province north of Saigon, with one American crewman wounded.

Although the Cambodian military spokesman in Phnom Penh reported no fighting anywhere in his country today, sources at Thailand's defense ministry in Bangkok said Thai troops have taken up positions at strategic points on the Thai-Cambodian border as a result of "shooting incidents" between Thai border police and Communist forces in Cambodia.

The sources said that so far no major deployment of troops had taken place, that only company-sized units were involved. However, all Thai troops in the northeast provinces of Thailand are in a "state of readiness," one source said.

Other sources said Thai police exchanged fire last week with a force of about 30 Communists pursuing Cambodian soldiers who were fleeing across the border. Later T28 bombers of the Thai Air Force crossed the border to bomb an ammunition dump the Cambodians left behind.

Defoliant Program

The U S Command in Saigon also indicated it has no plans to revive its controversial defoliation program, the spraying of jungle areas and rice fields with plant-killing herbicides to deny the enemy protective cover and food

Command spokesman said the Air Force's 12th Special Operations Squadron will be deactivated, resulting in a reduction of 166 men

This outfit, known as the Ranch Hands, flew the specially outfitted C123 cargo planes that did the spraying Their operations were cut back 90 per cent in April when scientific reports in the United States forced the Defense Department to stop using the squadron's primary herbicide, and later the C123s were stripped of their spraying equipment and put to work hauling captured enemy supplies out of Cambodia

Deactivation of the Ranch Hands is the first individual cut to be announced for the fourth phase of President Nixon's troop withdrawal program, under which American troop strength is to be reduced 50,000 men more by Oct. 15.

Withdrawal to be Speeded

WASHINGTON (AP) — Secretary of Defense Melvin R. Laird today announced a speed-up in the withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam.

Laird told a news conference that more than 50,000 American servicemen will be withdrawn by Oct. 15.

He said U.S. forces in Vietnam will go below the 384,000 troop ceiling projected by President Nixon for mid-October.

"We will beat that troop ceiling on Oct. 15," the defense secretary said.

He declined to say how many additional American troops will be out of Vietnam by that date.

Asked whether this speed-up means that more than 150,000 Americans will be withdrawn by spring, as Nixon has pledged. Laird said, "We will meet or beat that, too."

The defense secretary did not say what has made possible the accelerated schedule, but he has said repeatedly in the recent past that what he called the success of the U.S. and South Vietnamese attacks on enemy bases in Cambodia would permit stepped-up withdrawals of U.S. forces.

On other matters, Laird made these points:

Russian missiles—The Soviet Union is going forward with construction of additional sites for big SS9 intercontinental ballistic missiles, as well as other Soviet ICBMs.

"They are going forward with their program," Laird said. "The momentum has not slowed down."

Stopped Deployment

Reports have circulated recently that the Russians have stopped deploying additional intercontinental missiles since last year —a factor which could have bearing on the strategic arms limitation talks (SALT) in Vienna.

Laird said the Soviets have gone forward with their missile program since those talks started.

Middle East—Laird pledged that "we are going to maintain a proper strategic and military balance in this area."

The defense secretary said the United States has given these assurances and "we will continue to deliver on these assurances."

He did not elaborate, but there have been some indications that the United States may be quietly replacing some of Israel's aircraft losses.

U.S. officials, including President Nixon, have indicated growing concern about Russian activities in support of Egypt.

On this point, Laird expressed concern that the Russians have gone forward with provision of SAM-2 and SAM-3 antiaircraft missiles.

"We had hoped that this would not be their response to our overtures as far as a peaceful solution" was concerned, Laird said.

At the same time he restated the administration's intention to push ahead in the diplomatic search for a way out of the increasingly heated Arab-Israeli confrontation.

Korea—The defense secretary told newsmen that even after the United States pulls some of its troops out of Korea "we will still have substantial presence" there.

The United States is expected to start a gradual withdrawal from Korea late next year and to cut its combat force from two divisions to one The United States now has about 64,000 men in Korea and has had a garrison there since the Korean War two decades ago.

At the same time Laird said that the withdrawal of American troops from Korea will require "substantial modernization of Korean forces as we reduce our forces."

This indicated a significant step-up in U.S. military aid to Korea as compensation for the American troop pullback.

Investigation of Cuban Airlift Started by House

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee has begun a probe that could result in elimination of the airlift that has brought 90,000 Cuban refugees into the United States in 4½ years.

Some congressmen contend financing the airlift is an unjustified drain on taxpayers. Others argue that the real effect of the refugee program is to provide transportation for only those Cubans the Castro government wants to let go.

But the State Department says the airlift presents Cubans with an alternative to communism.

The subcommittee on Inter-American Affairs is hearing testimony on all aspects of United States policy with Cuba, including the airlift which costs $800,000 a year Rep. William Clay, D-Mo., is seeking to cut off funds for the airlift.

Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., subcommittee chairman, said Wednesday he knows of no member of his panel who is opposed to the airlift. But a move to deny the State Department money for the airlift failed by only five votes in the House last month.

Robert A. Hurwitch, deputy assistant secretary of state, told the subcommittee Wednesday the airlift should be continued for humanitarian, diplomatic and political reasons

"Experience has indicated that as long as hope for escape to freedom exists, people living under oppression resist committing themselves to the regime's goals," Hurwitch said. But when escape routes are sealed, accommodation to the inevitable becomes the prevailing attitude."

Berlin Wall

Hurwitch compared the situation in Cuba with the division of Germany When the Berlin Wall was erected, barring escape to the West, the East German population had no choice but to accommodate to the Communists, he said.

"The refugee airlift, a route to freedom, forestalls the certainty of accommodation to communism by the Cuban people," the State Department officer said

The airlift, using chartered planes, was begun in December 1965 and brings an average of 3,500 Cubans a month into Miami.

Highest Success Ratio

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Performance of Fox Valley projects of the controversial Work Incentive Program (WIN) will exceed statewide levels, according to officials of the State Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations.

A combination of favorable economic conditions and the quality of local training teams has resulted in above-average results from the Valley segments of the program that was attacked by conservative lawmakers during the past legislative session.

While the statewide performance of the program, aimed at gaining employment for welfare mothers, is running at somewhat less than a 50 per cent success level — as measured in terms of successful graduates measured against dropouts and unsuccessful graduates of the program — Valley figures range up to a success level of almost 70 per cent.

At the time the teams were recruited, there were complaints about at least one of the Fox Valley units by some lawmakers.

Conservatives in the legislature objected to the program during the preparation of the current state budget, but ending up funding it.

Men Excluded

Cuts in other areas of the welfare budget virtually eliminated participation in the program by men, says R. H. Odland, state WIN administrator.

One of the results has been that some of the local programs have had lower success ratios because of local job market conditions that make it difficult for women, even after graduating from the program, to find work.

Odland says that to date statewide there have been 685 unsuccessful participants in the program, and 592 successful graduates, as measured by completion of the program and ability to hold a job afterward.

In Milwaukee, home of some strong objections to the program from legislators, there have been 145 successful trainees and 152 unsuccessful participants.

Higher Level

But Fox Valley programs, including those in Outagamie, Waupaca, Calumet, Brown and Winnebago Counties, are resulting in success levels considerably higher, he said.

In Brown County, for example, a 68 per cent success level has been reached with 26 successes and 12 failures.

Other Valley programs measure upward from a low point of about 50 per cent.

Statewide, says Odland, the program "is proving out." He said that past legislative opposition to the program was based on a misunderstanding of its goals and means of achieving them, added to the fact that while the program was new it had dropouts — failures, — but relatively few quickly trained and placed successful trainees, because that takes longer to accomplish and measure.

To be eligible for the WIN program, a trainee must come from a federally-aided AFDC program, and while being trained, continues to receive such aids.

The state legislature in effect knocked most men out of such programs and therefore cut off that supply of potential trainees.

The Nixon administration's welfare program is patterned in job training directly on such programs as WIN.

To date 15 counties have WIN programs, and Odland says that he hopes to add three more during the coming year. The program is funded through a combination of federal, state and county budgets, with the federal government paying 80 per cent of the program cost.

Odland made his comments as the commissioners who run the state Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations approved a budget request for the coming year of $3.5 million for the WIN program, including $2,799,603 in federal funds.

The commissioners also announced that in preparing their department's budget request for the incoming governor they have decided that no division will be allowed any staff increase in those programs and positions totally funded from state funds.

The no-personnel increase policy means that the departmental budget request will be held to about an 8 per cent increase level for such purposes, said Commissioner Joseph Kautzer.

There are about 325 totally-state positions in the seven divisions of the agency, and about 1,200 positions which are funded at least in part from federal sources.

Kautzer said the three commissioners made their decision when they realized that staff level budget requests for the coming two years were coming in at a level sufficient to cause a 35 per cent budget boost request over current spending levels.

The economic conditions of the state, and current tax loads, mean that governmental agencies have to start holding down on staff increases, he suggested.

New programs will not be refused, but department staffers are being directed to establish program priorities and to ask for enabling legislation to allow programs to be carried out without adding personnel, he said.

Low priority programs of the department will be cut back to help increase funding of programs determined to be of a high priority, he said.

He said that it was "premature" to suggest what programs might be cut in the austerity drive.

The department suffered at the hands of legislative budgeting in the past session, said Kautzer, because of sizable personnel increases asked by the department.

The change marks a change in philosphy of the commission, said Kautzer. Since that last budget was presented, Kautzer and Stanley York have been appointed to replace Commissioners Joseph Fagan and Gene Rowland.

Fagan, a liberal Republican, had frequent clashes with conservative Republican lawmakers who dominated the last session.

Select Route Soon

Interstate Won't Affect Priorities Of Existing Roads

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Construction of the Interstate Highway between Milwaukee and Green Bay will have no effect on the priorities of other major highway projects in the area, says William Redmond, State Highway Commission chairman.

The comment came as Redmond worked with University of Wisconsin faculty members to outline UW efforts at programming a computer to select route possibilities for the interstate.

Six route proposals are expected to be made this week for the interstate highway and the commission probably will make its selection for the three top recommendations printed out by the computer.

Won't be Affected

But any route selected, Redmond said, will not affect other highway projects in the area, even if the proposed I-road path lies close to them.

Projects such as the widely-demanded improvement of U.S. 141 are of top priority by themselves, and that priority ranking would not be affected by the location of another major highway in the area, said Redmond.

The highway official said that he feels certain that the location chosen for the I-road from among the alternatives printed out by the computer will have a "central" location.

That, he agreed, means that it will probably lie east of the Kettle Moraine area but quite far inland from the Lake Michigan shore.

A cursory examination of preliminary print outs by the computer of all of the factors to be considered showed a possible path along those lines.

On Master Plan

The original proposal for the I-road, shown in a two year old master plan for highways in Wisconsin in 1990, shows the I-road placed by highway officials in about that general area, said Redmond.

The work of the faculty and the computer were "extremely valuable" in addition, he added, however.

The low cost to the department, only about $40,000, provided a carefully detailed check of all major considerations in highway planning at a cost lower than department staffers could have done the job, said Redmond.

The computerized print outs will show alternative two-mile wide corridors within which the study team recommends that the highway should be built.

Who Pays Damages to Rock Festival Victims?

By DAVID L. TODD
Associated Press Writer

MADISON (AP) — Are local governments financially responsible for damage to persons and property at rock festivals?

Atty. Gen. Robert Warren said he is not certain and has asked his staff to check out the possibility that the state's mob damage statute could be used by victims of the more violent aspects of the large music fests.

The law provides that a person who is injured or has property destroyed by mob violence may recover damages from the county or, if the damage occurs in an urban area, from the city.

In addition, the law allows an injured person to hold the mayor or county sheriff liable for the injury if the official knew of the situation and took no action to stop it.

Question Legality

The confusion enters because of a recent Wisconsin Supreme Court decision which calls the legality of the statute into question because participants in rock festivals may themselves contribute to the very situation that results in their injury.

Warren, who said the festivals are characterized by "wholesale rape, extortion, violence, shooting, stabbing, promiscuous sex, nudity and excessive drinking," observed in an interview Wednesday that participants may, in effect, be responsible for their own plight.

Asked if the music fans might be prohibited from collecting damages because of their own participation in the event, Warren said the principle of "estoppel" would probably enter the case. Estoppel holds that a person cannot claim another is responsible for an injury if it was caused by a prior negligent act of his own.

"Locust Plague"

Warren has described the festival-goers as a "locust plague" who behave like "lemmings as they participate in the rape of the environment."

He stopped short of calling the recent Iola affair a riot.

That festival erupted into gunfire after a motorcycle group was hired to supervise "security operations." Several persons were injured.

A state representative from the Iola area Francis Byers, R-Marion, said the event left the town "looking like a World War II battlefield."

Other state and local officials have called for an investigation and legislation to prevent a recurrence of the events.

The court decision, which concerns the position of insurance companies which must pay riot claims, noted that the logic behind the mob damage statute was that increased taxes because of damage claims would would make citizens and government more "diligent" in attempts to prevent riots.

Unreasonable

Although it did not invalidate the statute, the Supreme Court said such laws may be unreasonable in an era of "confrontation politics" when riots occur spontaneously and authorities are largely helpless in preventing their outbreak.

Without showing that authorities were in some way negligent, the court held they may not be automatically held liable for damages.

The Supreme Court decision was rendered last winter on an appeal from Milwaukee County.

The case of a rock festival may be somewhat different, however, in that it is not usually a spontaneous occurrence and authorities are aware of plans long before the event actually materializes.

Nikolay Blames State Officials For Iola Problems

EAU CLAIRE (AP) — State Rep. Frank Nikolay, D-Abbotsford, said Wednesday night that most of the blame for the Iola rock festival problems "must be placed at the door of weak and vacillating state officials."

"It is far too easy to blame local and county officials for the Iola situation," Nikolay said in remarks prepared for the Rubber Workers Union group in the Labor Temple.

Several persons were wounded in shootings during the Iola festival.

"It seems," Nikolay said, "that every politician in the state has jumped on the bandwagon of condemning the promoters of the recent Iola rock festival."

The candidate for the Democratic nomination for lieutenant governor said the 1969 legislature gave Republican Atty. Gen. Robert Warren "almost carte blanche authority to wire-tap, broad new authority over drug control, and dozens of new criminal statutes to control unruly mobs."

"What," Nikolay asked, "has he been doing with all the tools we have given him?"

Dentally Speaking, U.S. Is in Terrible Condition

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Writer

PROVIDENCE, R.I. (AP) — Late one night, Dr. Milton Hodosh of Brown University was driving pell-mell through downtown Providence when a police cruiser, siren screaming, flagged him down.

"What's the big rush, mister?" demanded the policeman.

"Well, you see, officer," said Hodosh, "I've got this baboon in the trunk . . . ."

"You've got a WHAT in the trunk?" interrupted the policeman.

"Only a baboon," replied dentist Hodosh, by this time nervously opening the trunk where a sleepy 80-pound baboon lay with his hairy head jutting from a zippered case.

"I'm carrying him from the university to my own lab across town. He's been tranquilized, but the drug's wearing off, and these baboons can be awfully vicious when they're entirely awake—so I gotta hurry so I can get him into a cage. I'm experimenting with plastic teeth in baboons."

"I thought I'd seen everything on this job—but this beats 'em all!" said the officer. "Drive on, Doc."

Symbolic Race

The late night dash, related by Hodosh, is symbolic of the race against time, bacteria and other problems being run by dental researchers trying to stem, or better repair, the ravages on the collective American mouth.

Dentally speaking, the nation is in horrible shape:

—Dental decay affects up to 98 per cent of the population and is the most common physical defect among children and adolescents. There are currently an estimated 800 million unfilled, decayed teeth—cavities—in the U.S. population. The average child, on reaching school age, has three decayed teeth. The average 15-year-old has 11.

—An estimated 20 million Americans have lost all their natural teeth because of periodontal disease, a mysterious gum and tooth-socket malady popularly known as "pyorrhea."

Of the 90 million U.S. adults who retain some of their teeth, 67 million have some sign of the disease and 20 million of them have reached the advanced stages.

Malocclusions

—At least one-fifth, and perhaps as many as one-half, of U.S. school children have, or will develop, malocclusions—or improper alignment of teeth—severe enough to require treatment by dental specialists called "orthodontists."

At a cost of up to $2,000 per child, the current annual bill for orthodontic care is approximately $275 million. But that represents "less than 10 per cent of the estimated total public need," according to officials of the National Dental Institute.

It is against such formidable foes that dental researchers are concentrating their efforts.

For example, Dr. Hodosh and his associates at Brown University and at Tufts Dental School in Boston have been experimenting for more than a decade, both on baboons and humans, with artificial whole-tooth implants made of a special mixture of plastic and specially treated human bone chips.

Immediate Replacement

The aim is to perfect immediate replacements for individual extracted teeth or teeth lost from gum disease.

The husky 47-year-old Hodosh, once a champion college javelin thrower, holds other "championships"—including many baboon implants that now have survived like natural teeth for periods up to ten years; and an "upper right bicuspid" implant in a woman that has already gone 12½ years with no apparent signs of rejection.

Hodosh said he and his team are now preparing for the first large-scale human trials of the technique. The three-year project, supported by the U.S. Public Health Service's National Dental Institute, will involve implants in at least 150 people.

Bold and imaginative research is underway elsewhere on other approaches to combatting the nation's multiple and devastating dentral problems.

Seeking Vaccine

The efforts range from studies aimed at developing, possibly within ten years, a vaccine or drug-and-dietary combination for preventing tooth decay, to the use of bone grafts taken from a patient's hip to replace parts of jawbone destroyed by pyorrhea.

They also include experimental antidecay use of laser beams, perhaps the most powerful form of light in the universe, as a conceivable means of strengthening teeth against decay; employment of ultrasonic devices for literally vibrating germ-ridden tartar from teeth; and a plastic paint, applied like nail-polish to the biting surface and armor plate protection against bacterial invasion of certain vulnerable areas.

Fluoride Gel

Also:

"Fluoride gel" applied to the teeth of children for a few minutes a day several times a week by means of a device somewhat resembling the mouthpiece of boxers and football players.

Dietary additives, such as bread and chewing gum laced with phosphate or other chemicals, designed to make teeth less prone to decay.

Super-strength steel originally developed for use in space rockets but now being tested as a possible improved and less expensive metal for use in dental bridges and other appliances.

And bone marrow grafts applied in conjunction with a temporarily inserted metal implant and designed to help false teeth wearers who can't tolerate their choppers because of loss of or receding bone ridges.

On the vaccine front, dental researchers of the Public Health Service and the Navy see possibilities of virtually eliminating tooth decay within the next decade.

Recent Evidence

Their hopes are based on relatively recent evidence strengthening theories that dental decay is an infectious, germ-caused disease—just like the common cold.

But, even if their hopes are realized—through either an injectable of inhaled vaccine, or by means of a combined drug-and-dietary prophylaxis—that would still leave humans confronted with a more insidious and potentially more destructive dental villian: pyorrhea.

This gum and tooth-socket disease, responsible for so many toothless Americans sneaks up on its victims without any warning of pain, as you'd get from a decayed tooth.

It doesn't attack the teeth themselves, but affect the tissues, membranes and often the bones surrounding the teeth. Its earliest stages are characterized by a reddish inflamation of the ordinarily pink gum. The first warning sign might be so-called "pink toothbrush."

Gums Inflamed

When it develops into periodontitis—full-blown pyorrhea—the gums become more inflamed and pull away from the teeth, leaving pus-filled pockets between the gums and the teeth.

Next, the gums may ulcerate and bleed freely. And finally, the bone supporting the teeth is attacked and destroyed. Unless the patient receives treatment, the teeth loosen and eventually fall out.

The exact cause of this dental scourge, and the reason some people appear to avoid it naturally, are not yet known.

But its immediate cause is believed to be a special variety of plaque—a kind of "microbial mat" consisting of bacteria, food debris and other materials, that fastens onto everyone's teeth.

Ordinary plaque can be removed by thorough toothbrushing and other cleansing. But the kind of plaque linked with periodontal disease is a much tougher customer.

Called "calculus," or tartar, it's a crustlike material with the consistency of limestone.

New Research

Researchers are constantly looking for ways to prevent this form of plaque, such as with a vaccine. Prospects are not especially bright, for this reason:

Whereas dental decay is believed triggered by a relative few bacteria, pyorrhea is believed by at least some researchers to be the handiwork of a huge brigade of different ones, literally waging gang warfare on the gums.

Dr. Harald Lee of Denmark's Royal Dental College, suggests the possibility of using a daily mouth-rinse with a chemical anti-bacterial agent.

He says preliminary human experiments at his laboratories showed encouraging results, but he stresses that it's not yet a proven technique.

Meanwhile, for advanced cases, skilled periodontists employ various surgical techniques to remove diseased gum tissue and, where necesary, to restore the normal gum-line with tissue grafts taken from elsewhere in the body, such as the palate. The same goes for destroyed bone.

Late Implants

Dr. Robert G. Schallhorn, of the University of Colorado School of Dentistry at Denver, is pioneering in the use of bone-marrow grafts taken from the crest of the patient's hip-bone and later implanted in the jaw.

Also in Denver, Dr. William Hiatt, another bone-graft pioneer, says he's studying possibilities of using cadaver bone for implant purposes.

But even as the research goes on, experts say that preventing pyorrhea, or keeping it under control once developed, demands that humans take to heart—and expand upon—a proverb attributed to Mohammed.

"One prayer and one toothbrush," the proverb goes, "is worth far more than 70 prayers—and no toothbrush."

Staidl Estate Totals $38,000

Retired Outagamie County Judge Stanley A. Staidl, who died June 13, 1969, left an estate valued at $41,330.

The estate, consisting primarily of personal property, totaled $38,028 after deductions, according to a final account filed in Outagamie County Probate Court.

Staidl's widow was named to receive the largest single share of the estate. Most of the remainder was divided among two daughters, a son, five granddaughters and two grandsons.

Staidl, who at one time was Outagamie County district attorney, was appointed to the bench in 1953 and retired in 1965. He was 74 when he died.

North Vietnamese Banner Waves Over DMZ

BY DANIEL DeLUCE
Associated Press Writer

The huge crimson banner with a gold star still flies at the 17th Parallel dividing Vietnam Just as we remembered seeing it during a visit to North Vietnam in February

The steel flagpole 113 feet high towers on the north bank of the Ben Hai River where shell-pocked coastal Highway No 1 ends at a broken bridge

Five months ago we stood at the base of the flagpole with North Vietnamese escorts My wife took color photos We heard artillery fire in the south A jet flew past

Men and women in conical hats worked in the neat rice fields of the northern portion of the Demilitarized Zone where many of the craters from years of American bombing had been filled in

Never Lowered

We were told the North Vietnamese farmers felt reassured when they could look across the green fields to their flag regardless of U S bombers overhead and guns firing in the distance

The flag was never lowered We did not imagine we would ever see it again

Now standing in a sandbag tower at Fire Base Alpha 2 we look north four miles across a bleak no-man's-land and glimpse the flag a spot of red in the bluish haze

We have been "inserted" at Alpha 2 by a South Vietnamese army helicopter It left because of occasional incoming mortars, but it will come back in 15 minutes to "extract" us

Degrades Zone

The only non-Vietnamese at the base are two Australian army warrant officers Eric Burns and Owen Bell of Brisbane They say newly arrived pilots seem to feel obliged to make at least one flight over or near the North Vietnam flag, hoping to see it shot down like the first flag years ago It has been cited as an example of how the other side disregards the Demilitarized Zone "

The little town of Con Thien on Highway 1 used to lie near the fire base Con Thien vanished in the battles when the U S Marines were here

In 1966 1967 1968 and much of 1969 this was known as Marineland Then it went back into the hands of the South Vietnamese army That army's crack 1st Division is holding the in former U S front and fighting as it has every year of the war, gallantly It lost two battalion commanders in action recently

Better Equipped

The 1st Division is better armed and equipped by the U S Military Assistance Command than it used to be The divisional artillery includes American 105 mm and 155 mm howitzers There are helicopter gunships and A37 jet fighter bombers to back up the infantry, with Vietnamese pilots

The 1st Division's American tanks are M41 Walker Bulldogs a generation old in design with gasoline engines as a glaring weakness The Vietnamese pass the word openly to visitors that they would like to have heavier armor larger guns, and diesel power

The division's supply units have plenty of American-made trucks and Jeeps at last, with Vietnamese drivers and maintenance There's no more cadging of trucks from U S forces

When a division fire base comes under enemy shelling the reaction is a Vietnamization of the American technique Artillery battalions thunder into action Dive bombers are called Even B52s blast the enemy's locations

The Vietnamese command listens to American advice but makes up its own mind It was offered "Geronimo," a fire base which the Americans had regarded as a first-class strongpoint, when they built and held it

But the Vietnamese thought "Geronimo on a low foothill was tactically inferior in its location They carved out a new fire base "T-Bone," on the highest peak in the area

On this northernmost front of the war in South Vietnam, two thirds of the countryside is free-fire zone and depopulated In a narrow strip along the coast, refugee settlements are concentrated A generation ago, the French army referred to it as 'Street Without Joy "

Daily Patrols

In the foothills, the American-made plows cut off patches of woods at four inches above ground to deny cover to any guerrillas Tank columns slash cross-country on daily patrols

Farther inland the highland camp of Khe Sanh is deserted The U S Marines evacuated it in July 1968 and nobody has gone back It had been defended by the heaviest bombing in the history of the war—96,000 tons of explosives

The 1st Division is not in a hurry to reoccupy Khe Sanh It has enough slugging matches already on the northern front.

No officer we've met in the 1st Division speaks of any early end to the war A general said "The Communists continue 10 years I continue 10 years plus 1 "

Young People Pledge to Exchange Drugs for Religion at Boise Rally

By BOB LEERIGHT
Associated Press Writer

BOISE Idaho (AP) — Quantities of marijuana heroin and morphine were burned in a ceremonial fire climaxing a week long rally in which youngsters were encouraged to give up narcotics for religion

The Rev Billy Scheutz the rally's organizer said some 300 Boise area youngsters turned in their narcotics and pledged to give up using the stuff

The collected drugs were pitched into a 50 gallon drum and set afire while a gospel rock group sang

Said the Rev Mr Scheutz We figure about 300 young people in this area have turned to Jesus Christ rather than narcotics

The minister said his program had the blessings of police officers here and in other cities where he has conducted rallies The vocal group sings gospels to a rock beat in between antidrug messages

'The man to-man messages are given to youngsters by other kids their own age," the Rev Mr Scheutz said "These kids can relate to other kids and get the message across '

Boise, Idaho's capital city, has about 90 000 residents

The Rev Mr Scheutz says "hundreds of young people' had clocked here in the past few months from Salt Lake City, Utah Portland Ore and Seattle, Wash He claimed they came because it was easy to get dope here and "the whole thing was about to blow up "

By coincidence, local authorities staged a big drug raid here Tuesday night and arrested 17 persons Warrants for another 14 persons for illegal sale of narcotics have been issued

Sheriff Paul Bright said the raids had nothing to do with the rally "Drug abuse is worse here than in other cities similar in size," he said

The Rev Mr Scheutz' organization is Bible Way, Inc, of Richland, Wash He is aided by about 200 volunteer workers many of them long-haired and bare-footed He said 16 of the volunteers who give antidrug talks are former drug addicts

Full-time counselors will be stationed here to help the 300 'converts' keep their pledges to give up drugs, the minister said

Bangkok Under Military Alert as Parliament Confers on Tax Hike

BANGKOK Thailand (AP) — A full military alert continued in Bangkok today as Parliament met to vote an unpopular government decree increasing import and sales taxes

Air Chief Marshal Dawee Chullasapya Thailand's military chief of staff said the alert was imposed early Wednesday as a precaution against Communist infiltration into the capital But it appeared more likely that it was called because of public opposition to the new taxes which have already gone into effect and have raised the prices of some items as much as 100 per cent

The new tax-dominated government was expected to win approval in the legislature but opposition members of Parliament have said they will vote against the measure

Opposition legislators refused to approve the tax increases, even though the legislature was revived only 18 months ago after almost 10 years of martial law

Leader Captured

A few hours after the military went on full alert the government announced that it had captured the country's most important Communist and said the arrest would severely cripple the clandestine Communist movement in Thailand

The captive was identified as Prasert Jaachia, 50 and the national police chief said he confessed to being the chairman of the party central committee Police said he and eight other leading Communists were arrested last week in Bangkok

Gen Prasert Ruchirawong the police chief and no relation to the Communist Prasert, said a carload of documents was also seized including plans for the sabotage of military bases government buildings and other installations requisitions from guerrilla units for arms and ammunition about $2 500 in cash and $10 000 worth of gold bars

The general said Prasert confessed he was the mastermind of the outlawed Thai Communist party which is estimated to have about 5 000 armed guerrillas and 25 000 other supporters in the country The Red chief tain also confessed his party got support directly from Communist China

Sawai Bhawani Singh Bahadur New Maharajah

JAIPUR, India (AP) — Sawai Bhawani Singh Bahadur has become the 40th maharajah of Jaipur, succeeding his father, Sawai Man Singh

The elder Singh died at the age of 58 while playing polo last month in England His heir who assumed the title Tuesday, is 38 and an army paratrooper

The new maharaja's privy purse from India will be $133,000 a year His father got $240,000

Federal Court Determination

$17,654 Value Put on Oswald Effects

DALLAS Tex (AP) — A federal court jury valuation case pertaining to property left by Lee Harvey Oswald assassin of President John F Kennedy was settled

The government said it was worth and the $500 000 price set by his widow Mrs Marina Porter

The final report Wednesday by William W West III a former U S attorney here is not binding on either Mrs Porter or the government

Either the widow or U S Atty Gen John N Mitchell could ask for a jury trial to determine exactly how much compensation would be due her for the 500 items now held in the U S Archives at Washington D C

The parties also could waive a jury trial and go before U S Dist Judge Joe E Estes for a determination or they could settle the case out of court

Judge Estes ordered the U S government to pay West for his work West was appointed a special master by Judge Estes on Sept 15 1968 to appraise the property at fair market value as of Nov 1 1966

The highest appraisal given by West for a single item was $5 000 for sheets of English writing which appear to be from Oswald's diary

A $2 000 appraisal was given Oswald's 32-page typewritten dissertation outlining the political, domestic and labor life of the Soviet Union accompanied by five photographs

Also valued at $2 000 were several pages of Oswald's hand writing on Holland American Line stationery A notebook with Russian script in it was appraised at $1 750

West estimated that Oswald's wallet containing various identification cards a Dallas public library card and other papers was worth $500

Other items and West's values included undesirable discharge papers from the U S Marine Corps $75, a passport in the name of Oswald, $100, and a bus transfer, bracelet inscribed 'Lee," a key ring, narrow black belt and a property receipt, a total of $200.

Not included in the items were a Marnlicher Carcano rifle with a telescopic sight which the Warren Commission claimed was used to shoot President Kennedy from a sixth-floor window of the Texas Book Depository building on Nov 22, 1962

A federal jury in Denver, Colo, on Feb 21, 1969, ruled against oilman John J King in his suit to obtain the rifle from the government

King said he spent $11,350 in direct efforts to acquire the rifle and the 38-caliber pistol used by Oswald to kill Dallas policeman J D Tippit the day of the assassination King said $11,000 of the money went to Mrs Porter.

Weaving Taught in Original Manner

By MELBA LYNN

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — When Gary Rhiel told his art students to bring flexible, strong tree branches to school, he wasn't planning to have them learn the mysteries of the divining rod.

He was going to teach them the ancient art of weaving as earlier civilizations including American Indians had done it— on handmade bow looms. The weaving idea is in keeping with the revival of handcrafts as an art form.

Rheil teaches art in Woodmore School in Woodville, Ohio. He also is taking art education courses at Bowling Green State University.

It was the suggestion of a BGSU assistant professor of art, Donald J. Erhlichman, that students at Woodmore School be used in a pilot weaving project for younger pupils.

Experiment in Possible Ties

The subject is not often taught even at the high school level, and Erhlichman and Rhiel had never heard of sixth, seventh and eighth graders being taught weaving in regular art classes, except perhaps in large metropolitan areas.

The weaving program was set up to show that such a project can be done at little expense, would provide a lesson in ancient and early-American craft and be enjoyed by youngsters as well.

Eighth-grade students gathered tree branches, some forkshaped, some straight, but flexible. The art department purchased a large ball of sisal, and several students brought some from the barns at their farm homes. They used the sisal to tie branches together to form a loom and to lace the branches to form a warp on which to weave.

Scraps of yarn were salvaged from home work-baskets, and imagination was used to produce woven works of art to be hung on a wall or from a ceiling as a decoration.

Mini Looms Created

Seventh graders used old wooden frames for their weaving looms. They, too, used sisal to string the looms. Scraps of yarn, ribbon or whatever they wanted to use were put to use to create unusual woven designs.

Rhiel salvaged 6-by-9-inch cards being discarded by the school office for the sixth grade students, who pasted these together to make the thickness they wanted, punched holes around the edges, and strung yarn lengthwise and crosswise through the holes to form the warp.

Gary Rhiel, Teacher of the weaving program, helps Sue Goetschius tie a loop on a completed weaving to be hung in the art classroom.

Marolyn Mull and Laura Magsig begin one type of weaving by tying sticks together to make an Indian bow loom.

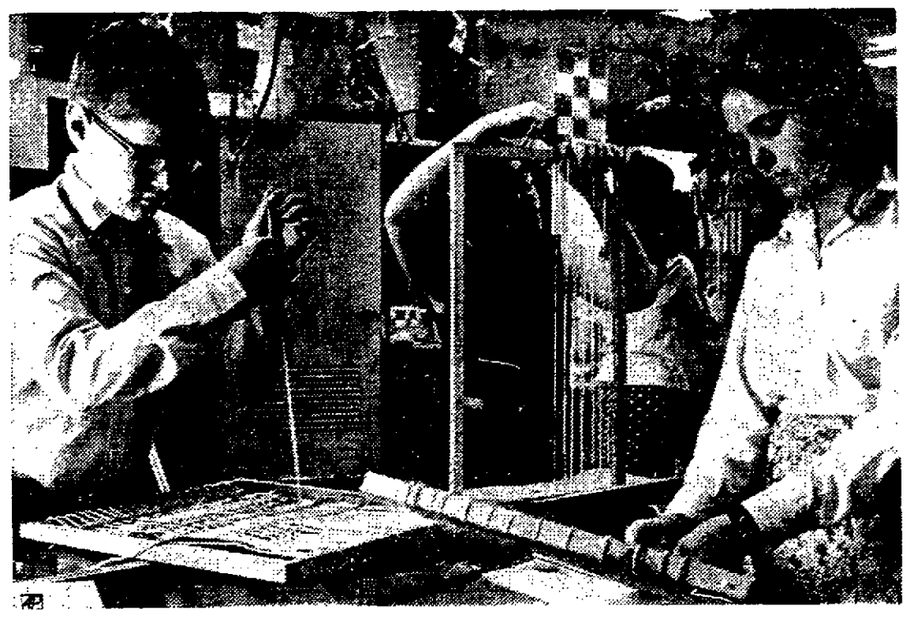
They used colored string, yarn, rope or other weavable items to make unusual patterns. Some used needles to interlace threads through the warp. Some used their fingers and one boy used an ordinary pocket comb to push the interlaced threads together.

Rhiel thinks the pilot project has been very successful and is especially happy that the students seem to like it. He said they come to class eagerly and begin to work immediately without prompting.

He tries in his art classes to teach things that are basic as well as popular and says weaving and other handicrafts are becoming more prevalent in all large art shows.

Art forms, just as fashion and music, have their ins and outs of popularity, and weaving, especially, is the "in" thing now, he indicated.

He likes to teach weaving not just because it is currently popular, but because he feels it inspires creativity and is good recreation as well.



Eighth Grade Students in a Toledo art class tied tree branches together with strong rope fiber to form a loom and then laced the branches with the fiber to fashion a warp on which to weave.

Children's Work To be Displayed At Neenah Center

NEENAH — The Friends of Bergstrom Art Center will sponsor a reception and exhibit of work done in children's summer art classes from 3 to 5 p.m. Sunday in the lower level studios.

One hundred eleven students, an increase of 41 over last year, were enrolled in the 10 classes held under the chairmanship of Mrs. Thomas M. Dietrich.

Open to the public, the program will offer an opportunity to register for fall classes and to meet with summer teachers, Mrs. James Ely, Mrs. John Falcus, Mrs. Nancy Judkins and Mrs. Barbara Prousa.

Mrs. C. F. Hedges, chairman of the reception committee will be assisted by Mrs. E. M. Coller.

Correction

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Faulks were married July 15, 1920, not July 5, 1920 as reported in Tuesday's Post-Crescent.

Adhesive Won't Harm Oak Floor

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: My husband and I have some teakwood flooring which we would like to lay in my dining room. The floor is now oak. Must we remove the oak before putting down the teakwood? What would we do to preserve the oak if the teak is put down over it? — Milwaukee.

A: You can put the teakwood on the oak, if the latter is firm and solid all over. Adhesive won't harm the oak, although it will stick to the surface. A floor scraper and sander will get this off.

Q: Is there some way a hole in the basement sewer pipe can be patched? The hole is the size of an egg, about 15 inches out from basement wall. — Salisbury, Md.

A: First wire brush the area clean. Then smear roofing cement over a band about 8 inches wide, with the hole in the center. Tightly bend a precut strip of aluminum around this section, secured with heavy wire so no leakage is possible. With this temporary repair, you can postpone having a new pipe section put in for a long time.

North Vietnamese Banner Waves Over DMZ

BY DANIEL DeLUCE
Associated Press Writer

The huge crimson banner with a gold star still flies at the 17th Parallel dividing Vietnam Just as we remembered seeing it during a visit to North Vietnam in February

The steel flagpole 113 feet high towers on the north bank of the Ben Hai River where shell-pocked coastal Highway No 1 ends at a broken bridge

Five months ago we stood at the base of the flagpole with North Vietnamese escorts My wife took color photos We heard artillery fire in the south A jet flew past

Men and women in conical hats worked in the neat rice fields of the northern portion of the Demilitarized Zone where many of the craters from years of American bombing had been filled in

Never Lowered

We were told the North Vietnamese farmers felt reassured when they could look across the green fields to their flag regardless of U S bombers overhead and guns firing in the distance

The flag was never lowered We did not imagine we would ever see it again

Now standing in a sandbag tower at Fire Base Alpha 2 we look north four miles across a bleak no-man's land and glimpse the flag a spot of red in the bluish haze

We have been "inserted" at Alpha 2 by a South Vietnamese army helicopter It left because of occasional incoming mortars, but it will come back in 15 minutes to extract" us

Degrades Zone

The only non-Vietnamese at the base are two Australian army warrant officers Eric Burns and Owen Bell of Brisbane They say newly arrived pilots seem to feel obliged to make at least one flight over or near the North Vietnam flag, hoping to see it shot down like the first flag years ago It has been cited as an example of how the other side disregards the Demilitarized Zone"

The little town of Con Thien on Highway 1 used to lie near the fire base Con Thien vanished in the battles when the U S Marines were here

In 1966 1967 1968 and much of 1969 this was known as Marineland Then it went back into the hands of the South Vietnamese army That army's crack 1st Division is holding the former U S front and fighting as it has every year of the war gallantly It lost two battalion commanders in action recently

Better Equipped

The 1st Division is better armed and equipped by the U S Military Assistance Command than it used to be The divisional artillery includes American 105 mm and 155 mm howitzers There are helicopter gunships and A37 jet fighter bombers to back up the infantry with Vietnamese pilots

The 1st Division s American tanks are M41 Walker Bulldogs a generation old in design with gasoline engines as a glaring weakness The Vietnamese pass the word openly to visitors that they would like to have heavier armor larger guns and diesel power

The division s supply units have plenty of American made trucks and Jeeps at last, with Vietnamese drivers and maintenance There s no more cadging of trucks from U S forces

When a division fire base comes under enemy shelling the reaction is a Vietnamization of the American technique Artillery battalions thunder into action Dive bombers are called in Even B52s blast the enemy s suspected locations

The Vietnamese command listens to American advice but makes up its own mind It was offered "Geronimo," a fire base which the Americans had regarded as a first-class strongpoint when they built and held it

But the Vietnamese thought "Geronimo, on a low foothill was tactically inferior in its location They carved out a new fire base "T Bone" on the highest peak in the area

On this northernmost front of the war in South Vietnam two thirds of the countryside is free fire zone and depopulated In a narrow strip along the coast, refugee settlements are concentrated A generation ago the French army referred to it as Street Without Joy'

Daily Patrols

In the foothills the American-made plows cut off patches of woods at four inches above ground to deny cover to any guerrillas Tank columns slash cross-country on daily patrols

Farther inland the highland camp of Khe Sanh is deserted The U.S. Marines evacuated it in July 1968, and nobody has gone back It had been defended by the heaviest bombing in the history of the war—96,000 tons of explosives

The 1st Division is not in a hurry to reoccupy Khe Sanh It has enough slugging matches already on the northern front.

No officer we've met in the 1st Division speaks of any early end to the war A general said "The Communists continue 10 years I continue 10 years plus 1"

Young People Pledge to Exchange Drugs for Religion at Boise Rally

By BOB LEERIGHT
Associated Press Writer

BOISE Idaho (AP) — Quantities of marijuana heroin and morphine were burned in a ceremonial fire climaxing a week long rally in which youngsters were encouraged to give up narcotics for religion

The Rev Billy Scheutz the rally s organizer said some 300 Boise area youngsters turned in their narcotics and pledged to give up using the stuff

The collected drugs were pitched into a 50 gallon drum and set afire while a gospel rock group sang

Said the Rev Mr Scheutz "We figure about 300 young people in this area have turned to Jesus Christ rather than narcotics

The minister said his program had the blessings of police officers here and in other cities where he has conducted rallies The vocal group sings gospels to a rock beat in between antidrug messages

"The man-to-man messages are given to youngsters by other kids their own age," the Rev Mr Scheutz said "These kids can relate to other kids and get the message across"

Boise Idaho's capital city, has about 90,000 residents

The Rev Mr Scheutz says "hundreds of young people" had clocked here in the past few months from Salt Lake City, Utah Portland Ore and Seattle, Wash He claimed they came because it was easy to get dope here and "the whole thing was about to blow up"

By coincidence, local authorities staged a big drug raid here Tuesday night and arrested 17 persons Warrants for another 14 persons for illegal sale of narcotics have been issued

Sheriff Paul Bright said the raids had nothing to do with the rally "Drug abuse is worse here than in other cities similar in size," he said

The Rev Mr Scheutz' organization is Bible Way, Inc., of Richland, Wash He is aided by about 200 volunteer workers many of them long-haired and bare-footed He said 16 of the volunteers who give antidrug talks are former drug addicts

Full-time counselors will be stationed here to help the 300 "converts" keep their pledges to give up drugs, the minister said

Bangkok Under Military Alert as Parliament Confers on Tax Hike

BANGKOK Thailand (AP) — A full military alert continued in Bangkok today as Parliament met to vote an unpopular government decree increasing import and sales taxes

Air Chief Marshal Dawee Chullasapya Thailand s military chief of staff said the alert was imposed early Wednesday as a precaution against Communist infiltration into the capital But it appeared more likely that it was called because of public opposition to the new taxes which already gone into effect and have raised the prices of some items as much as 100 per cent

The unicameral nominated government was expected to ease Parliament if the legislators refused to approve the tax increases even though the legislature was revived only 18 months ago after almost 10 years of martial law

Leader Captured

A few hours after the military went on full alert the government announced that it had captured the country s most important Communist and said the arrest would severely cripple the clandestine Communist movement in Thailand

The captive was identified as Prasert Jaxchia, 50 and the national police chief said he confessed to being the chairman of the party central committee Police said he and eight other leading Communists were arrested last week in Bangkok

Gen Prasert Ruchirawong the police chief and no relation to the Communist Prasert said a carload of documents was also seized including plans for the sabotage of military bases, government buildings and other installations, requisitions from guerrilla units for arms and ammunition about $2 500 in cash and $10 000 worth of gold bars

The general said Prasert confessed he was the mastermind of the outlawed Thai Communist party, which is estimated to have about 5 000 armed guerrillas and 25 000 other supporters in the country The Red chieftain also confessed his party got support directly from Communist China

Federal Court Determination

$17,654 Value Put on Oswald Effects

DALLAS Tex (AP) — A federal court in Washington D C has set a new property list by late Harvey Oswald assessing President John F Kennedy s assassin at $17,654

The complaint with the $6 000 tax government said it was worth and the $500 000 price set by his widow Mrs Marina Porter

The final report Wednesday by William W West III a former U S attorney here is not binding on either Mrs Porter or the government

Either the widow or U S Atty Gen John N Mitchell could ask for a jury trial to determine exactly how much compensation would be due her for the 500 items now held in the U S Archives at Washington D C

The parties also could waive a jury trial and go before U S Dist Judge Joe E Estes for a determination or they could settle the case out of court

Judge Estes ordered the U S government to pay West for his work West was appointed a special master by Judge Estes on Sept 16 1968 to appraise the property at fair market value as of Nov 1 1966

The highest appraisal given by West for a single item was $5 000 for sheets of English writing which appear to be from Oswald s diary

A $2 000 appraisal was given Oswald s 32-page typewritten dissertation outlining the political, domestic and labor life of the Soviet Union accompanied by five photographs

Also valued at $2 000 were several pages of Oswald s handwriting on Holland American Line stationery A notebook with Russian script in it was appraised at $1 750

West estimated that Oswald s wallet containing various identification cards a Dallas public library card and other papers was worth $500

Other items and West s values included undesirable discharge papers from the U S Marine Corps $75 a passport in the name of Oswald $100, and a bus transfer, bracelet inscribed "Lee," a key ring, narrow black belt and a property receipt, a total of $200.

Not included in the items were a Mannlicher Carcano rifle with a telescopic sight which the Warren Commission claimed was used to shoot President Kennedy from a sixth-floor window of the Texas Book Depository building on Nov 22, 1962

A federal jury in Denver, Colo., on Feb 21, 1969, ruled against oilman John J King in his suit to obtain the rifle from the government

King said he spent $11,350 in direct efforts to acquire the rifle and the 38-caliber pistol used by Oswald to kill Dallas policeman J D Tippit the day of the assassination King said $11,000 of the money went to Mrs Porter

Weaving Taught in Original Manner

By MELBA LYNN

TOLEDO, Ohio (AP) — When Gary Rhiel told his art students to bring flexible, strong tree branches to school, he wasn't planning to have them learn the mysteries of the divining rod.

He was going to teach them the ancient art of weaving as earlier civilizations including American Indians had done it— on handmade bow looms. The weaving idea is in keeping with the revival of handcrafts as an art form.

Rheil teaches art in Woodmore School in Woodville, Ohio. He also is taking art education courses at Bowling Green State University.

It was the suggestion of a BGSU assistant professor of art, Donald J. Erhlichman, that students at Woodmore School be used in a pilot weaving project for younger pupils.

Experiment in Possible Ties

The subject is not often taught even at the high school level, and Erhlichman and Rhiel had never heard of sixth, seventh and eighth graders being taught weaving in regular art classes, except perhaps in large metropolitan areas.

The weaving program was set up to show that such a project can be done at little expense, would provide a lesson in ancient and early-American craft and be enjoyed by youngsters as well.

Eighth-grade students gathered tree branches, some forkshaped, some straight, but flexible. The art department purchased a large ball of sisal, and several students brought some from the barns at their farm homes. They used the sisal to tie branches together to form a loom and to lace the branches to form a warp on which to weave.

Scraps of yarn were salvaged from home work-baskets, and imagination was used to produce woven works of art to be hung on a wall or from a ceiling as a decoration.

Mini Looms Created

Seventh graders used old wooden frames for their weaving looms. They, too, used sisal to string the looms. Scraps of yarn, ribbon or whatever they wanted to use were put to use to create unusual woven designs.

Rhiel salvaged 6-by-9-inch cards being discarded by the school office for the sixth grade students, who pasted these together to make the thickness they wanted, punched holes around the edges, and strung yarn lengthwise and crosswise through the holes to form the warp.

Gary Rhiel, Teacher of the weaving program, helps Sue Goetschius tie a loop on a completed weaving to be hung in the art classroom.

Marolyn Mull and Laura Magsig begin one type of weaving by tying sticks together to make an Indian bow loom.

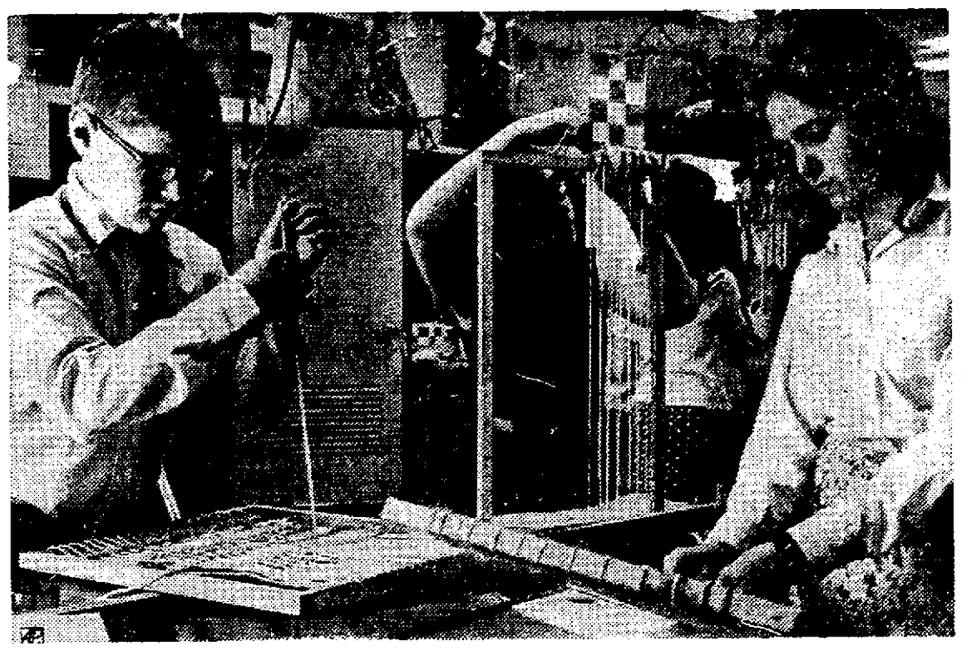
They used colored string, yarn, rope or other weavable items to make unusual patterns. Some used needles to interlace threads through the warp. Some used their fingers and one boy used an ordinary pocket comb to push the interlaced threads together.

Rhiel thinks the pilot project has been very successful and is especially happy that the students seem to like it. He said they come to class eagerly and begin to work immediately without prompting.

He tries in his art classes to teach things that are basic as well as popular and says weaving and other handicrafts are becoming more prevalent in all large art shows.

Art forms, just as fashion and music, have their ins and outs of popularity, and weaving, especially, is the "in" thing now, he indicated.

He likes to teach weaving not just because it is currently popular, but because he feels it inspires creativity and is good recreation as well.



Eighth Grade Students in a Toledo art class tied tree branches together with strong rope fiber to form a loom and then laced the branches with the fiber to fashion a warp on which to weave.

Children's Work To be Displayed At Neenah Center

NEENAH — The Friends of Bergstrom Art Center will sponsor a reception and exhibit of work done in children's summer art classes from 3 to 5 p.m. Sunday in the lower level studios.

One hundred eleven students, an increase of 41 over last year, were enrolled in the 10 classes held under the chairmanship of Mrs. Thomas M. Dietrich.

Open to the public, the program will offer an opportunity to register for fall classes and to meet with summer teachers, Mrs. James Ely, Mrs. John Falcus, Mrs. Nancy Judkins and Mrs. Barbara Prousa.

Mrs. C. F. Hedges, chairman of the reception committee will be assisted by Mrs. E. M. Coller.

Correction

Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Faulks were married July 15, 1920, not July 5, 1920 as reported in Tuesday's Post-Crescent.

Adhesive Won't Harm Oak Floor

BY ROGER C. WHITMAN

Q: My husband and I have some teakwood flooring which we would like to lay in my dining room. The floor is now oak. Must we remove the oak before putting down the teakwood? What would we do to preserve the oak if the teak is put down over it? — Milwaukee.

A: You can put the teakwood on the oak, if the latter is firm and solid all over. Adhesive won't harm the oak, although it will stick to the surface. A floor scraper and sander will get this off.

Q: Is there some way a hole in the basement sewer pipe can be patched? The hole is the size of an egg, about 15 inches out from basement wall. — Salisbury, Md.

A: First wire brush the area clean. Then smear roofing cement over a band about 8 inches wide, with the hole in the center. Tightly bend a precut strip of aluminum around this section, secured with heavy wire so no leakage is possible. With this temporary repair, you can postpone having a new pipe section put in for a long time.

Tennis Is the Name of the Game

With determined looks, interspersed with smiles and occasional crestfallen expressions, girls throughout the city are learning to play tennis, and maybe dreaming of taking on Billie Jean King in a few years.

The Recreation Department program, for girls, boys and adults, is trying to develop interest in the game for the younger players so they will return next year to learn more, according to Norm Tebo, instructor. Fundamentals are stressed, he said, and they concentrate on a definite series of drills.

Tebo starts by developing eye coordination with a drill in which the beginners drop the ball and hit it. If the ball is hit to them in a volley situation, there is too much other action going on for them to work on a good stroke. When they have mastered this drill, the ball is thrown for them to hit.

Most of the girls will only learn forehand this year. Next summer they will work on backhand, and then they should be well on their way in a sport they can enjoy for many years.

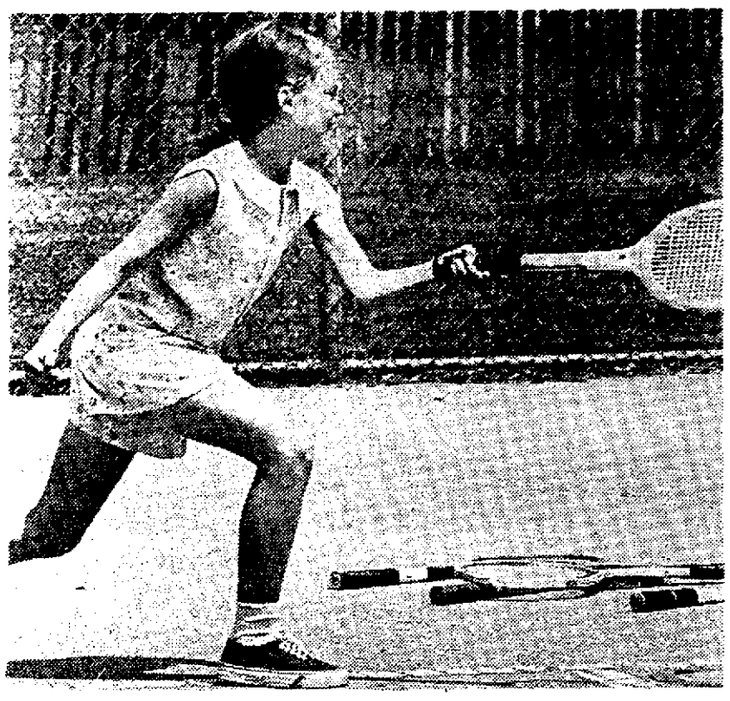
Carey Schmidt also demonstrates the lesson by stepping forward as she swings. Below, Kathy Helein, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Helein, practices under the watchful eye of instructor Norm T ebo and her sister, Kay, at the Erb Park courts.



Stepping Into the swing is a point stressed during lessons, and Lisa Schmidt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Schmidt, practices it

Miss Universe Contestants Give Maxi Support to Minis

BY THEODORE A. EDIGER

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP) — If you've got 'em, flaunt 'em, say the owners of some of the world's loveliest legs.

So it's miniskirts by a landslide among the beauties of 64 nations assembled here for the annual Miss Universe contest, with maxis and midis a distant second and third.

Rita Doherty, who is Miss Ireland, put the case for the supershort skirts this way in an informal opinion poll:

"You see a lot of leg, don't you?" Miss Canada, Norma Joyce Hickey, said: "The midi looks horrible. And I wouldn't be able to walk in the streets with a maxi."

Occasion Makes Difference

Miss Singapore, Cecilia Undasan: "iMnis. They're relaxed."

Skirting the issue was Miss Chile, Soledad Errazuriz: "I like all three for different occasions—the maxi when it's cold, the mini when it's warm, and the midi in between."

Miss Japan, Jun Shimado, said: "Slacks. But if a skirt, it's minis. Easier to move in them Also, they're less expensive."

There were some mini-dissenters, most of them from Latin America.

"The maxi is best, it's very elegant," said Miss Peru, Cristina Malaga. "But you can't go to the office wearing a maxi."

Miss Colombia: "The maxi. It is more elegant. The mini isn't too bad. But the midi is horrible, it's neither one nor the other."

Miss Venezuela, Bella la Rosa: "The maxi. It's more elegant."

Miss Brazil, Elaine Thompson: "The maxi is more elegant. The mini is more youthful. And the midi is all right now and then."

Too Hot for Maxis

Some other views:

Miss Bahamas, Antoinette Patrice De Gregory: "It's too hot in the Bahamas for maxis. I'll take the mini."

Miss Wales, Sandra Cater: "The mini, definitely. I wouldn't look good in a maxi."

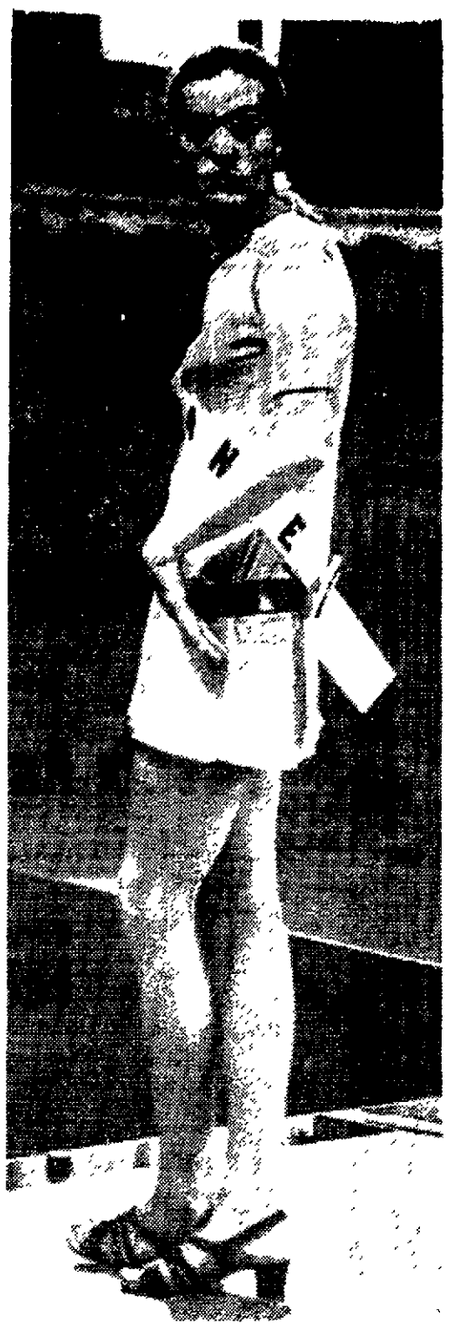
Miss Luxembourg, Josee Reinert, "Minis. They make women look more beautiful."

Miss Italy, Anna Zamboni: "The mini. It's youthful looking."

Miss Philippines, Simonette de los Reyes: "Minis, but not microminis."

Miss Aruba, Linda Annette Richardson: "Minis. They make me look better. Midis make me look too thin."

But when the girls parade before the judges later this week, they won't wear minis. It will be native costumes, swimsuits and evening dresses. A new Miss Universe will be crowned Saturday night.



The Minis have it 'round the world at the Miss Universe contest. Showing why is Miss France, Francoise Behot Durand of Domont, caught listening to instructions for the televised show set for Saturday, when a new Miss Universe will be crowned. (AP Wirephoto)

Sarah Rowley, Stockton, Calif., displays two-inch high figures she created for a children's play stage. Miss Rowley, who has been blind since birth, says she sees with her figures. (AP Wirephoto)

Blind Woman Encourages Active Life

STOCKTON, Calif. (AP) — Born completely sightless, Sarah Rowley encourages other blind people to get involved in activity.

She practices what she preaches. At 36, she teaches ceramics at a local blind center, plays basketball, folk dances, does a lot of weaving.

And, she says: "Life is so sweet."

Asked in an interview Tuesday how a handicapped person could accomplish so much, she said: "There are just so many swell things to do, sometimes I wonder if I can keep up with all of them."

Miss Rowley earned an Associate in Arts degree at San Joaquin Delta College this spring and also won a medal for speed skating at a Stockton roller-rink.

And how did she gain her athletic proficiency?

She said: "Now you take basketball. You learn where the basket is and take it from there. What great basketball played did you ever hear of who didn't throw baskets by touch?"

Sarah graduated from the California School for the Blind in Berkeley and spent five years achieving her art degree at Delta.

While enrolled here, she also took courses in folk dancing.

Nixon Addresses Women of Press On Era of Change

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon canceled a stag-party cruise down the Potomac and made an appearance with Mrs. Nixon at the 50th anniversary dinner of the Women's National Press Club Wednesday night.

The President didn't tarry at the formal affair but delivered some remarks about prohibition, progress and politics.

"More things change but some remain the same," Nixon said. "Fifty years ago the president had trouble with the Senate. Fifty years ago we had prohibition but the people were still drinking. Today the President is having trouble with the Senate. There is no prohibition now but we are still drinking."

Nixon praised his wife's recent goodwill mission to Peru. "Mrs. Nixon is the diplomat. We are going send her every place," he said.

He also had a line for the women journalists.

"Fifty years ago, the question was whether the women could keep up with the men. Now the question is whether the men can keep up with the women," he said. "But the men will keep on chasing them, you can be sure of that."

Your Problems

Decide Together Quit Means Permanently

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Four months ago my husband bet me $500 I could not give up smoking I knew it was an ill-disguised bribe, but I had been wanting to quit cigarettes for a long time and I never had the will power. This was just the incentive I needed so I accepted He handed me the check 90 days later, which was our agreement.

Two weeks ago I received a phone call from Mom saying Dad had suffered a massive heart attack. I boarded the next plane and headed for Houston. The man seated next to me offered me a cigarette. I took it

I stayed with Mom for a week Dad passed the crisis and I smoked a pack of cigarettes every day I was there I decided to quit smoking the minute the plane landed in Atlanta, and I did. But my conscience is bothering me. Do I owe my husband $500? After all, I did quit. What do you say? — Gridged

Dear G.: You quit, all right, but you started again. In my book you should return the $500. But ask your husband to put the $500 back on the line for a second bet. And this time decide together that quit means permanently.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Your "forgive and forget" philosophy needs remodeling. And your additional counsel — "especially if it's the first time" — should narrow the field somewhat, but in my case it didn't help. My husband is still with his first affair. I have been patiently waiting for three years hoping it would "burn itself out"

My options are pitifully few, to be perfectly frank. I must forgive even if I can't forget Divorce is out of the question for a long list of reasons, starting with religious, and ending with financial. But now I am running into another kind of problem What does a mother say to her teen-age children when they begin to ask leading questions? It seems to me that they are becoming suspicious of their father.

Since you are the lady with all the answers, please tell me what am I supposed to do, Ann Landers? — Ostrich Whose Children Have Good Vision

Dear Os: You're supposed to protect the heel — even though he doesn't deserve it. Hold up your head and cover for him.

If your children learn the truth from someone else, they will have the satisfaction and the emotional support that comes with the knowledge that their mother is a loyal woman who has real class. And if you want a good definition of class, it's the ability to conduct yourself with grace under pressure.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: You mentioned in your column recently that the first prize for the most "earth-shattering" question went to the girl who asked if her high school ring should be worn with the emblem facing herself or the person who would see it The girl didn't ask for a prize She asked for an answer and you failed to give her one. If you didn't know the answer, why didn't you say so? Here it is and I hope you'll pass it on

Before graduation the emblem is worn facing the wearer After graduation the emblem is worn facing outward. The switch is made the day of graduation. — Sunny: Class of '65

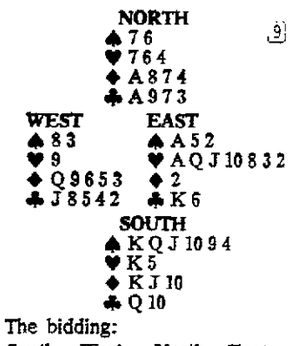
THE ACES ON BRIDGE by IRA G. CORN JR. TEAM CAPTAIN

The average bridge player is so happy to recognize his partner's lead as a singleton that he returns the suit immediately so that his partner can ruff before declarer draws trumps.

Although this is usually sound defensive strategy, an exception arises when holding the ace of trump on defense. Now it may be possible not only to give your partner a ruff, but to get one in return.



The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	1 NT	3 ♥
3 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Nine of hearts.

Put yourself in the East position. Put a big thumb over the South and West cards if you are in the mood for a defensive problem. Your partner leads the nine of hearts, you win the ace and declarer plays the five.

Now you know for sure that your partner has led a singleton heart and declarer must have the king. Do you return a heart to give your partner a ruff? After the lead paragraph, you should be on the alert for an alternate play. Can you see it?

Your proper return is your singleton diamond! In bridge, as in life, one must look ahead. You need five tricks to set the hand, and only four are in sight. Although it is true that your partner can trump a heart, it is also true that you have the ace of trumps and can give him that ruff later.

If you lead your diamond first, you will find that upon gaining the lead with the ace of trumps, you can give your partner a heart ruff, and then he can return the favor by giving you a diamond ruff. At this point you will have taken four tricks defensively and have only to exit with a heart and wait for the setting trick with the king of clubs.

This hand can be used to illustrate a defensive principle:

Trump control is an important factor in the timing of the defense A "quick" trump trick (ace, K-Q, or king behind the ace) may constitute trump control (depending upon partner's trump length), a "slow" trump trick does not (J-10 9-8 Q-J-10) You might well afford to delay allowing partner to ruff if you have trump control; you probably cannot afford any delays without it.

Scott Schutte 'Upward Bound' Staffer at SPSU

STEVENS POINT — Scott Schutte of Appleton, a recent graduate of Stevens Point State University (SPSU), is among 31 persons serving on the 1970 staff of "Upward Bound," a federally-funded program centered on the SPSU campus for American Indian youths who show potential to continue their education beyond high school.

Director Ada Deer said 63 teen-aged participants will have at their service six American Indians — a fact that is important to Miss Deer, herself a member of the Menominee tribe. She believes young Indians need role models

Indian staffers have been especially successful in captivating the attention and respect of the young people who represent five of Wisconsin's six Indian tribes.

In addition to Miss Deer, others of her race assisting in the program are: Truman Lowe, a Winnebago who teaches art in the Valders Public School System; Jewell Zoldos, a Chippewa who teaches English in the Bayfield Public School, and Raymond DePerry, a Chippewa.

Sue Cook, an Oneida from West De Pere, recently graduated from the University of Wisconsin, and Sharon Duquain, a Menominee from Shawano who will be attending the University of Wisconsin, Green Bay, are both tutor-Green Bay, are both tutor-counselors.

Miss Deer said competition for the jobs was keen and she sought staff members who are "interesting, adapt well to new situations and have a spirit of adventure."

The staff includes teachers from communities where the Upward Bound participants live plus Stevens Point area teachers and university professors and students.

Your Money's Worth

So You're Considering Buying Swimming Pool

BY SYLVIA PORTER

Porter

We are now heading into mid summer, 1970, the peak season for building and buying swimming pools Despite the evil combination of recession and inflation, stock market crash and mounting unemployment the estimate is that this year we will add no fewer than 100 000 full-sized swimming pools to the 1 000 000 public and private pools already in existence

"A lot of families are staying home this summer, explains Allan Shore president of Long Island s Medallion Pool Corp a major manufacturer of both above and below-ground swimming pools, which is expecting a 50 per cent sales increase this year over last 'For many, a $600 to $700 backyard pool is actually a way to save money on weekend trips to the beach, public pool admission charges etc '

But how do you buy a swimming pool intelligently?

As a general rule vinyl-lined above-ground pools cost $1,000 and up and the best grades of this type of pool cost $1 500 to $2 500 Below-ground pools may be vinyl-lined poured or sprayed concrete, steel-aluminum or fiberglass These retail for at least $3 000 and frequently up to $8 000 installed Below-ground pools typically cost $250 to $300 a year to maintain — including repainting patching vacuuming, filtering etc

Extras Costly

Luxury 'extras' can run into the thousands of dollars — and can include anything from special filtration systems and heating apparatus to telephone jacks and bathing cabanas with showers

Other hidden costs of pools are property tax hikes if yours is a below-ground pool for this is a property improvement and liability insurance increases in your homeowners policy, for any pool is an invitation to accidents Also if you finance your swimming pool you'll pay today's historically high interest rates Then there are increased water and electric bills

But there are hidden financial advantages of swimming pools too such as reducing the costs of going to public or club pools and weekend vacations

Now here from the National Swimming Pool Institute in Washington and Medallion, are rules on buying a swimming pool

Don t buy a swimming pool from a catalog rather take time to do some basic research since this may be a big investment Consult the literature of local Better Business Bureaus the National Swimming Pool Institute or your regional swimming pool association Find out what materials are sturdiest and most appropriate for the type of pool you want How heavy a vinyl liner is necessary? What type of drainage and filtration systems should you have?

Check Zoning Laws

Check your zoning regulations Almost all communities have rules covering fences, filters drains, etc

Get bids on the pool you want from two or three reputable local contractors whose credentials you have checked with local banks, Better Business Bureaus and previous customers

Understand what's covered by each bid and, of course, by the final contract If there is a provision for a "normal" amount of excavation, for an above-ground pool, just what does the contractor consider "normal?" Will fill be provided — or only leveling? What about the filtration and drainage systems?

Get a written timetable for the pool's construction or installation, but never sign a completion form until all work has been completed Never give a pool salesman a check in his own name at the time of the sale, and don't pay in full before all work is completed

Get a detailed guarantee in writing from the contractor and study not only what it provides but also who is responsible for fulfilling it The guarantee should cover all labor, materials, the timetable, and optional equipment

Then enjoy enjoy!

Armed Robbery Part of Training

'Code 1' at Outagamie Bank

BY BILL KNUTSON
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

There was an armed robbery at Outagamie Bank today.

At 10:15 a.m., a tall, dark-haired man with tattoos on his arms walked into the Appleton bank.

Less than three minutes later, in plain sight of more than 40 persons, the gunman strolled out the bank door carrying a paper sack full of money and a Chicago Tribune.

Mary Bond, the teller at Window 3, quietly asked the tellers on either side of her to notify police and the Federal Bureau of Investigation that there had just been a robbery. She pressed a hidden alarm that sounded at police headquarters.

A calm voice came over the bank's public address system: "Code 1. Window 3. Code 1. Window 3."

Area Sealed Off

Bank employes rushed toward Window 3 and immediately sealed off the surrounding area with chairs. No one inside the bank got out. And no one outside got in.

In what seemed like seconds, several plainclothes policemen and two FBI agents burst through the doors.

They whipped out notebooks and started questioning tellers, cashiers and vice presidents, along with about 15 customers who were in the bank when the robbery occurred.

After pooling and sifting their information, they were able to learn that a man about six feet tall with dark hair and wearing a short-sleeve white shirt and dark trousers entered the bank through the southwest door. He was carrying a newspaper. He wore glasses.

Authorities learned he walked across the lobby to a table where he stood alongside a man wearing a gold sport coat and sunglasses (this reporter.)

He took a piece of paper from his pocket and examined it. Police later found the paper in the waste basket at the customer table. It was an ink sketch of the layout of the bank's interior.

The holdup man took out a cigarette and lighted it. He threw the book of matches on the table and the empty cigarette package into the waste basket. Police later recovered both.

Police were able to learn that the suspect then walked to Window 3 where he threw the little-smoked cigarette to the floor.

Hidden Revolver

Mrs. Bond told authorities the robber set the folded newspaper on her counter. He pulled back a corner of the

Long's Drug Plan Receives Approval

Squad Proposed for Outagamie County

A package plan to curb Outagamie County's mushrooming drug-abuse problem was approved Wednesday night by the Courts and Justice Committee. It will come before the full County Board Tuesday.

The proposal embodies Dist. Atty. James R. Long's plan to create a three-man narcotics squad, and a county coordinator to carry "pertinent, state approved" educational programs to schools while seeking rehabilitation services for those who need care.

An amendment to the proposal stipulates that should the County Board okay the resolution, it would not become effective until 60 per cent of the operating funds were approved by the Wisconsin Council on Criminal Justice at its state meeting in late July.

Conceivably, the program could be implemented as early as August, according to Committee Chairman Paul Huseby, who conferred Wednesday night with Daniel Van De Hey, assistant regional director for criminal justice planning.

Forty per cent, or the balance of the funds must come from the county pocketbook. The 60 per cent figure covers a proposed three-year pilot program.

Selection of three investigators and the coordinator would be made through the district attorney's and sheriff's offices, with the approval of the Courts and Personnel Committees.

Initially, the personnel would be under the jurisdiction of both departments.

The resolution calls for hiring three men already experienced in the field of drug abuse, with a salary to be commensurate to their experience, but not to exceed $11,000.

Supv. John Schreiter, Appleton, defined the role of the coordinator as "the realm of rehabilitation and education." He would definitely not be an arm of law enforcement Schreiter said.

Drug Education

A coordinator will initiate curricula in schools with the cooperation of the school administrators, under the direction of CESA 8. Emphasis will be on those programs approved by the State Ad Hoc Committee on Drug Abuse.

Secondly, the coordinator would act as the executive secretary to the county's commission on drug and alchohol abuse when such a commission is formed.

The plan would cost about $25,000 for the remainder of 970.

USS Outagamie County, A Veteran of Three Wars

BY LT. JEFF RENK
United States Navy

"Brace for beaching!"

The voice over the loud speaker sent crewmembers scrambling, seeking something to hold on to in preparation for the inevitable lurch prior to the ship grounding on the beach.

The cry to prepare for beaching is heard regularly aboard the tank landing ship USS Outagamie County (LST 1073). Although running aground is contrary to the rules of good seamanship, this type of ship is designed to do just that. A shallow draft and flat bottom allows it to beach with little risk.

Tank landing ships such as the Wisconsin county namesake were born with the development of amphibious warfare on the invasion beaches of World War II. They have actively participated in every amphibious assault during armed conflict in which the United States has been called upon to take part.

Large Storage

The ship's large cargo storage capability makes her ideal for transporting men and equipment. Coupled with the ability to beach, it is unlikely that any ship outside her class can off-load the same amount of equipment as quickly as the LST.

A veteran of three wars, Outagamie County is playing a vital role in the Southeast Asian conflict.

In the course of her first Southeast Asian deployment the Guam - based LST carried 12,000 tons of cargo between Da Nang and Chu Lai. Her cargo included everything from soft drinks to cement.

Landing Deck

The ship's hull design allows Outagamie County to perform another key function in Vietnam — a mobile logistic support ship. Operating in the shallow waterways of the Mekong Delta, LST's resupply river patrol boats with water, fuel, and ammunition. The ship's main deck can be used for landing helicopters which load men and supplies for further transfer inland. Outagamie County expects to take her turn as part of these mobile riverine forces in the near future.

Although designed primarily to "land troops and equipment directly on the beach," Outagamie County is currently engaged in the troop withdrawal from Vietnam. During a recent 4½-month period the ship assisted in the withdrawal of 350 troops, 200 vehicles and 1,500 tons of cargo from Vietnam.

Supporting the boats engaged in moving Vietnamese refugees from Cambodia to Vietnam, and serving as census takers in the remote Mariannas Islands were other operations conducted recently.

"Versatility is the key to the success of the LST," states the ship's skipper, Lt. Cmdr. Steven L. Turner. "We can do anything but go fast."

GOP Candidates

Byrnes, LeTendre Seek House Seats

U.S. Rep. John W. Byrnes, senior Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee, today announced he will seek his 14th consecutive term from Wisconsin's Eighth District.

At the same time, Andre LeTendre, Wausau, former national Jaycees president, announced he will seek the Seventh District Congressional seat. LeTendre will run as a Republican.

Brynes, Green Bay, said he

was running "because we have a lot of unfinished business in the country and, as a member of Congress, I can help get it done. We've got a war to end, an economy to straighten out and grave domestic problems to solve."

He said that papers placing his name in nomination would be filed with Wisconsin's secretary of state this afternoon. Before his election to Congress, Byrnes served four years in the state Senate.

LeTendre, 33, Wausau, was president of the 350,000-member United States Jaycees for one year. As president of the traditionally conservative group, he initiated the Jaycees Nixon-endorsed "Do Something" program, advocating increased involvement by individual citizens in solving the nation's problems.

He will be seeking the seat held by U.S. Rep. David Obey, Democrat from Wausau, who won it after Melvin Laird was named U.S. Secretary of Defense.

Of his candidacy, LeTendre said: "My years of work with the Jaycees in service to people in this district, and then my year as national president, has brought clearly into focus the values and needs as human beings in these troubled tiimes. I have travelled to all 50 states and many foreign countries this past year, and the perspective of America and her great people has fostered this deep desire to continue serving.

"Serving in the United States Congress will give me the opportunity to speak for not only the silent, but the justifiably dissatisfied, majority."

He said his experience, including 12 years in education and mass communications, "has prepared me well to listen to, and then translate into responsive action, the real concerns of the people of this great district."

John Bowers Files For Assembly Seat

John A. Bowers, route 2, Appleton, has filed nomination papers as a Democratic candidate for the post of third district representative of the Wisconsin Assembly.

Bowers is the personnel manager at Kurz & Root Co., Appleton. He is opposing the incumbent, Ervin Conradt, Shiocton, a Republican.

Lawrence Excavation in Door County

Hard Beans Stymied Early Indians

Recycling wastes? Indians who lived 400 years ago on Door County's Rock Island were experts.

Except when it came to overcooked beans, that is.

The beans, cooked to a rock-like hardness, apparently taxed both the appetites and resourcefulness of the island's 17th Century settlers.

A team of student excavators from Lawrence University headed by Ronald Mason, associate professor of anthropology at Lawrence, uncovered the discarded evidence of a poorly prepared meal among many long-buried items in a settlement used by Winnebago Indians in the 1600s.

In the first two weeks of the five-week excavation project, the excavators also dug up several beautifully preserved arrowheads, a fragile bracelet, a silver cross, a Jesuit ring, parts of a clay pipe, countless beads and other valuable evidence of Indian life.

Wasted Little

Pointing to a dirt-stained shin bone of a bear which some Indian long ago had started to carve into a knife or small spear, Mason said, "these Indians wasted little."

"It's amazing how they were able to recycle almost everything they used — except the beans."

Mason, a man with vast knowledge of primitive times who has never felt the desire to dig anywhere but in North America, discovered the rich lode of Indian history last summer while digging several test holes near the Southern shoreline of Rock Island.

"During the 1600s, Rock Island was a well populated stopping off place for Winnebago Indians," Mason said.

"During the period, the Indians used this spot as an outpost — both for hunting and gathering wild berries and vegetables, and as sort of frontier settlement."

"Every summer, the Indians would come from the mainland to pick a winter's supply of the 130 different varieties of fruits and vegetables growing here and to stock up on game."

Lots of Trading

Mason said that a great deal of trading evidently went on at Rock Island during the period, with the gullible Indians coming out on the losing end.

In exchange for furs, hides and meat they got beads, thimbles and pipes.

The Indians often found uses for their bartered goods far different from what the manufacturer intended, Mason said.

A sewing thimble was one such item, he explained. Indian braves punched holes in the brass thimbles and attached them to their hunting jackets, wearing them as "tinklers" — little bells that chimed as they walked.

Another unorthodox use of a bartered item was the cutting up of brass kettles into arrowheads, considered by the Indians far superior to arrowheads made from stone, Mason said.

Book Store Owner Arrested After Raid Nets 2,700 Articles

Outagamie County Dist. Atty. James R. Long, left, and Nick (Chip) Retson, a summer intern, look over some of the more than 2,700 magazines, pictures and films confiscated Wednesday afternoon in a raid at the Appleton Book Store.

In what is believed to be the largest raid in the city's history, Appleton authorities late Wednesday afternoon confiscated $12,438 worth of magazines, pictures and films from the Appleton Book Store, 902 W. Wisconsin Ave., and arrested the owner of the establishment.

Errol J. Simpson, 33, route 3, Shawano, has been named in charges of selling two allegedly obscene magazines and possessing over 2,700 purportedly indecent materials for the purpose of sale.

Simpson is being held in the Outagamie County jail under $50,000 bond after a brief appearance this morning in County Court Branch 2. Acting Judge Gustave J. Keller granted Simpson until 4 p.m. today to consult with an attorney on the latest two counts.

Arraigned Today

He is expected to be arraigned this afternoon.

Simpson awaits arraignment in Circuit Court on two counts of selling indecent magazines to an Appleton detective in April. If convicted, he faces five years in prison on each of the charges, which constitute felonies.

Simpson was taken into custody about 6 p.m. Wednesday as he returned to the store. Five law enforcement officials from Outagmaie County, including Dist. Atty. James R. Long, Assistant Dist. Atty. R. Thomas Cane, Police Capt. Jerome Kavaney, Det. Richard Jirschele and Nick Retson, a summer intern in Long's office, arrived at the scene about 4:15 p.m. with a search warrant and began an investigation.

Authorities believe they took approximately 50 per cent of the allegedly illicit publications and other items which Simpson had in stock, leaving the rest, mostly paperbacks.

Simpson allegedly sold tow publications entitled "Scene" and "The Wildcats" to Retson about noon for $6 apiece. Kavaney charges that the magazines are obscene.

Authorities brought the count of possession for sale in connection with the hundreds of items they confiscated. Cane said they made two trips to the store with a pickup truck between 4:15 and 8:30 p.m. and hauled magazine-laden cartons back to the district attorney's office, where the materials were impounded.

They hope to use the assorted items for evidence should the latest two charges be tried.

Clerk in Store

According to Long, when the officials first arrived at the store, a clerk, believed to be employed by Simpson, was checking out customers. Long would not release the man's name, or say whether criminal charges would be brought against him.

There is no doubt, however, officials said, that Simpson is the one who sold the two magazines to Retson earlier.

An unconfirmed report this morning from the Fire Department said that the establishment may be closed down if it's found to be a fire hazard. An official of the Appleton Health Department said his office will conduct an investigation into allegations that the building may pose health dangers.

Battery Maker Plans To Build in Appleton

Ray-O-Vac Division, ESB, Inc., Madison-based manufacturer of batteries and lighting devices, Tuesday announced it will construct a dry battery plant in Appleton's Northeast Industrial Park.

Owen E. Slauson, general manager of Ray-O-Vac and vice president of ESB, said the new facility is part of the firm's expansion program.

No construction timetable was reported but production is expected to start next year.

Slauson also reported that Harold C. Meyer, former manager of the Ray-O-Vac plant at Portage, has been appointed to manage the Appleton facility.

Meyer, who received his bachlors degree in mechanical engineering from the University of Wisconsin in 1947, began working for Ray-O-Vac in 1957. He has served as Portage plant manager since the plant's opening in March, 1963.

Prior to joining Ray-O-Vac, Meyer was a mechanical engineer for the federal government for nearly eight years, and also worked for Yates American Machine Co. and Fairbanks-Morse Co., both in Beloit.

In addition to Portage, Ray-O-Vac operates dry battery manufacturing plants at Madison, Fennimore and Wonewoc; Lancaster, Ohio; Williamsport, Penn., and Clinton, Mass.

Wording Change Could Halt Bid to Ban Leaded Gasoline

By JOHN S. LANG
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — The government's move to ban lead from gasoline would be stopped by last-minute wording inserted in the House-passed Clean Air Bill, say administration sources.

Language tightening the conditions under which lead could be outlawed was introduced by Rep. David Satterfield, D-Va., whose district includes the nation's two largest producers of lead for gas.

The measure passed last month gives the Department of Health, Education and Welfare power to prohibit fuel ingredients that endanger public health—but only after making findings based on "relevant medical and scientific evidence."

HEW View

Officials at HEW's National Air Pollution Control Administration have told Congress that under this wording they don't believe they could justify banning lead in gasoline.

"When you look at the wording, it's clear that Congress has no intention of permitting us to take a liberal interpretation of the law and ban lead," says a HEW source. The Senate has yet to act on the bill.

The Nixon administration proposal did not put the burden of proof on HEW. It allowed the secretary to set standards for lead based on information obtained from fuel manufacturers "or any other information available to him."

Increasing Evidence

Such information includes a growing body of evidence that lead is accumulating in higher than normal amounts in human bodies and in the food chain. What effect this has on humans over the long term is not well established. But many scientists are urging that use of lead be curtailed before any disastrous effects become known.

Sources at HEW say lead likely would be phased out of auto fuels over a five-year period if the agency were allowed to base its decision on such information.

The more restrictive wording was offered during a closed subcommittee hearing by Satterfield, whose Richmond district includes the headquarters of the Ethyl Corp., and a huge facility of Du Pont, the two biggest makers of tetraethyl lead for gas.

Satterfield rejects any suggestion he weakened the wording to accommodate powerful interests in his district.

Closer Contact

But he says, "The fact they are in my district put me in closer contact with them so I understood some aspects that wouldn't have been explored otherwise."

"In contacting the lobbyists, and I did, I tried to confine my inquiry to scientific papers they could refer me to. And this is what they did."

The difficulty in banning lead under Satterfield's amendment requiring "medical and scientific evidence" is that although lead is a known pollutant and a poison in high quantities, there is no proof it is harmful in quantities breathed on highways and in urban environments.

Administration officials say President Nixon was apparently outmaneuvered by the fuel industry in his effort to curb motor vehicle pollution.

In a message to Congress, the President said auto manufacturers are preparing to put on the market by 1972 cars which will not require and cannot run on leaded gasoline.

"This is a great forward step taken by the manufacturers before any federal regulation of lead additives or emissions has been imposed," he said. "I am confident that the petroleum industry will see to it that suitable non-leaded gasoline is made widely available for these new cars when they come on the

Bombing Raids Over Cambodia Sharply Reduced

WASHINGTON (AP) — U. S. Air Force planes have flown more than 120 bombing sorties against targets in Cambodia since American troops were withdrawn back into South Vietnam last week, sources say.

This is a drastic cutback from the level of air attacks mounted in May and June while American and South Vietnamese infantrymen were scouring enemy base areas in Cambodia.

U. S. officials have said American warplanes will continue hitting enemy supplies and reinforcement routes through Cambodia, but will not provide direct air support for Cambodian troops except as a side affect of the interdiction bombings.

In 7 Days

Sources said in the first seven days after the American troop withdrawal, U.S. fighter bombers flew nearly 100 sorties and big B-52's flew more than 20 against targets in Cambodia.

A sortie is one flight by one plane.

During the past week, American reconnaissance planes made nearly 90 flights over Cambodian territory, attempting to keep track of movements of enemy war material and soldiers.

By contrast, U.S. fighter-bombers and B-52's made more than 5,400 individual attacks during May while photo planes were out on almost 800 sorties in that first month of the drive into Cambodia.

Slackened Considerably

Air activity slackened considerably in June as the operation neared its end. There were about 3,600 attack sorties and more than 400 reconnaissance flights over Cambodia last month.

Information how many of the 120 bombing sorties in the last week may have involved some air support for Cambodian forces was not available here.

White House officials have acknowledged it occasionally will be difficult to draw a sharp distinction between the interdiction and direct air support missions.

In carrying out interdiction of enemy supply movements into Cambodia, Nixon administration officials have indicated U.S. air power will be used mainly in northeastern and north central Cambodia.

Through Laos

These are thinly populated regions through which enemy supply routes extend, connecting with the Ho Chi Minh Trail which starts in North Vietnam —the fountainhead of supplies —and runs southward through Laos.

Since the base areas were invaded, the North Vietnamese have developed two main supply lines, one using primarily rivers and the other a truck route well to the west of the old sanctuary region.

Because of a new move by North Vietnam to create a supply complex in southern Laos, some defense authorities are forecasting intensification of U.S. air strikes against that region.

Agnew Notes New Priorities

More of Budget Going for Social Needs Than for Arms

DENVER (AP) — Vice President Spiro T. Agnew said today the government has changed its national priorities and "in the federal budget for the next year, for the first time in 20 years, we will use more of our resources for social needs at home than we will for military defense purposes."

He made the statement in a speech prepared for the Education Commission of the States, a state-financed organization to develop educational techniques.

He declared the country "should—and will—continue to be a society of great expectations."

"As we go forward into the 70s, we must—and we will—see more of those expectations become realities," Agnew said.

He described the U.S. economy as "the strongest, and soundest and fairest that the world has ever known."

Share Wealth

"Never in history has more wealth been more fully shared by more people," he said, declaring that the "average real income" of Americans is higher than ever before, that the typical family can buy twice as much as it could in 1950 and that unemployment is 25 per cent less than it was in 1961.

He said the number of persons "living below the poverty line" has decreased 35 per cent since 1950 and that "never has any nation done so much, so successfully to reduce the ravages of poverty."

He added that gains in real income, education and standard of living "have proportionately been greater for blacks than for whites" in recent years.

"For example," he said, "the proportion of Negroes earning middle incomes has more than doubled since 1950 and the proportion of black students in colleges has increased more than 50 per cent."

Environmental Bodies Formed of the Bureau of Sport Fisheries and Wildlife.

The National Science Foundation would surrender to the NOAA its sea grant program while the Corps of Engineers would give up its Great Lakes survey operations.

Oceanographic Data

Once NOAA is established, Nixon said, he would also assign to it the Navy's national oceanographic data and instrumentation centers, and the Department of Transportation's national data buoy program, and would establish a national advisory committee for the oceans and atmosphere.

In an accompanying message to Congress, Nixon explained how the two proposed agencies would work with the Council on Environmental Quality, created last January.

That council, he said, is "a top-level advisory group" which would be concerned with all aspects of environmental quality and would coordinate federal programs in that field.

"Line" Organization

Nixon said EPA "would be an operating, 'line' organization . . . charged with protecting the environment by abating pollution."

The NOAA would lead the development of national oceanic and atmospheric programs of research and development and continue to provide the services to other government agencies, industry, and individuals.

The reorganization plan spells the doom of Secretary of the Interior Walter J. Hickel's hopes for an enlarged Interior Department to have authority over natural resources and the environment.

Hickel has long argued that environmental protection could not be dealt with adequately apart from resource management.

The two are as inseparable, Hickel said recently, "as ham and eggs."

Vanderbilt Left $41 Million to Family University

NEW YORK (AP) — Yachtsman, contract bridge originator and railroad financier Harold S. Vanderbilt has left $41 million to Vanderbilt University and $9 million to other institutions.

James J. Beha, Vanderbilt's lawyer, announced the bequests Wednesday and said the will would be filed next week in Florida, where Vanderbilt maintained one of his homes.

Vanderbilt, 85, died Saturday in Newport, R.I.

Vanderbilt's great-grandfather, Cornelius, who started the old New York Central Railroad, founded his namesake university in 1873 with a gift of $1.5 million.

Harvard University received about $5.6 million and $1 million more was bequeated to its medical school under terms of the yachtsman's will. He was a Harvard alumnus.

Beha said other bequests were made to Vanderbilt's widow, the former Gertrude Lewis Conaway of Philadelphia, and to employes and friends. They had no children.

Blanket for Safety Shown By Firestone

DETROIT (AP) — Firestone Tire & Rubber Co. says it has developed a new auto safety blanket released a split second after a collision to protect occupants of a car from being thrown out.

Firestone officials demonstrated the blanket Wednesday, calling it the firm's answer to a new federal safety standard being considered for 1973 autos. The system, which has been under development for two years, is still being worked on, Firestone said.

It will cost less than $100, officials said, asserting the blanket is a more effective safety device than air bags which also are being considered as mandatory safety equipment.

In a collision, Firestone said, the automatic system would deploy the blanket from a concealed compartment near the floor, covering the occupants up to the chest within one-thirtieth of a second. As demonstrated, the system restrained three 200-pound persons sitting in the back seat of an auto during a simulated 40-mile-an-hour head-on collision.

Firestone officials said the system is equally adaptable for use in the front seat, and that when it is activated, it does not interfere with driver vision or control.

Airborne Defense System Contract Goes to Boeing

SEATTLE (AP) — Boeing Co. has won a major defense contract to test a new airborne warning system, giving a big boost to the ailing aerospace giant and to the depressed Seattle area.

The contract, announced Wednesday, is for the Airborne Warning and Control System (AWACS), which envisions a fleet of flying command posts to provide control of air-to-air and air-to-ground battles and to detect enemy bombers and millies.

The losing bidder was McDonnell Douglas Corp., of Long Beach, Calif.

The initial award is $170 million. If Boeing proves the system, the contract would amount to more than $2 billion in the next five years.

More important locally, it was the first big contract won by Seattle-based Boeing in a long time. The company has been a bridesmaid several times in recent bidding, including the loss of the lucrative B1 bomber to North American Rockwell Corp. last month.

Douglas Graves, manager of Boeing's AWACS branch, said "the biggest benefit is a tremendous improvement in morale in the company and in the area." This was evident Wednesday as workers in the sprawling aerospace complex slapped one another on the back and said, "We finally got a big one."

Boeing, the Northwest's biggest employer, has been in the doldrums for two years. Engine trouble, unexpected high costs and lagging sales orders caused by a decline in air travel have plagued the company's 747 jumbo jet. Failure to win other major contracts added to the woes.

The firm has been forced to cut employment in the Seattle area from a peak of 101,400 in July 1968, to 55,400 at present, more than 25,000 have been laid off in 1970, with another 10,000 to go by the end of the year.

Unemployment High

The Seattle-area unemployment level is about 10 per cent, twice the national average, housing starts are down about 40 per cent from a year ago. Auto sales are down 35 per cent, and the hotel business is down 25 per cent.

AWACS will help stem the downward trend at Boeing. Currently, 200 persons are working on the project. O. C. Boileau, Aerospace Group vice president, said this would increase to 1,500 within six months.

"These are 1,500 additional people that would have had to be laid off if we had not won AWACS," Boileau said. "This will stabilize our Aerospace Group at about 9,800 people."

Graves said that if a go-ahead for production is given in about four years, an estimated 9,000 persons would be employed on the project.

To avoid the controversial cost over-runs that plagued Lockheed's C5A transport and General Dynamics' F111 fighter-bomber, the AWACS contract includes three phases.

The first phase will evaluate two different type radars mounted on 30-foot diameter radomes atop modified Boeing 707-320 four-engine jets. This will determine which of the radars-built by Westinghouse and Hughes Aircraft—can best track low-flying airplanes against the cluttered background of the earth.

Resort City Regains Calm After Violence

Asbury Park, N.J., White, Black Leaders Reach Agreement

ASBURY PARK, N.J. (AP) — Calm returned to the racially troubled resort city of Asbury Park today while black leaders discussed with the Negro population an agreement worked out during a marathon meeting.

Four days of racial disturbances left at least 165 persons injured—92 with shotgun pellet wounds—and at least 130 arrested.

Damage estimates are over the $1 million mark.

Mayor Joseph Mattice and Willie Hamm, a Rutgers University administrative assistant and an unsuccessful candidate for the city council, emerged from the closed meeting just before midnight Wednesday to announce that agreements had been reached.

Neither would reveal details, however.

Hamm, who said he represented the black community—40 per cent of the 20,000 persons who live here—chose to present the results of the discussions to the black populace before making them public. He would not say how they would be discussed.

22 Demands

Hamm entered the meeting, which included several other black leaders and the city council, with a list of 22 demands. They asked for better housing, more jobs, increased efforts at stopping use of narcotics and black representation on various civic boards.

Both men agreed that the meeting was a step toward peace. While Hamm returned to the West Side, where four days of violence left 12 blocks of buildings either burnt out or looted, State Police patrols remained.

They made six arrests, mostly for curfew violations, Wednesday evening, but most residents remained in their homes or on front porches.

The curfew has been in effect since Monday.

Scattered incidents were reported Wednesday. A beauty salon and a grocery store in the heart of the West Side were destroyed by fire. State troopers armed with shotguns guarded firemen who extinguished the blazes. Firemen said arson was suspected in both instances.

Menasha Opposition Due

Apartment Zoning OK'd by Planners

MENASHA — The plan commission has recommended a zoning change so that a Milwaukee firm can build a 24-unit apartment structure at 636 Nicolet Blvd., but heavy opposition is expected when the change comes up for a public hearing on July 20.

In a 3-2 vote Wednesday, the commission voted approved changing zoning for the 200 by 120 foot lot from single-family residential to multiple-family 2, a new zoning classification created recently to allow for construction of high-density apartments.

Smith Park Land

A spokesmen for residents of the area, however, said the apartment building proposed by Bockl Development Corp., Milwaukee, would be "contrary to comprehensive long-range plans" for the city and would make it impossible for the city to acquire the property for extension of Smith Park.

Russell Flom, a member of the park and recreation board and resident of 398 Park St., said residents in the area are "unanimously" and "strongly" opposed to the proposed project.

More Tax Base

He said he was "receptive to the idea" of getting more tax base for the city that a $300,000 plus apartment building would bring, but said its construction should "be in line with the city's comprehensive plan."

He recommended, as did planning commission member Robert LaCount, that the firm look at alternative sites for the proposed project.

Mayor James Adams said this morning that the proposed apartment building would bring in nearly $10,000 in city taxes on property that now nets the city about $500 per year.

City Benefit

"As far as I'm concerned, it would be a benefit to the city," he said.

"It's almost equal to the tax receipts from the entire Cleveland Street block and Park street block," he said, noting that this is where much of the opposition to the proposal is coming from.

He said the opposition was unfounded, noting that concern about increased traffic and large families does not apply to the proposed apartment building which will cater to couples and people who don't own cars.

In proposal, as tentatively unveiled by a representative of the Bockl firm Wednesday, would include 24 one-bedroom apartments feasuring 30 by 24 feet. Plans for studio and two-bedroom apartments were scrapped after the firm discovered the lot size was insufficient to accomodate the additional size required.

36 Parking Spaces

Some 36 parking spaces will also be provided, 24 of them underground and 12 on a lot alongside the building.

The entire building size is 144 by 65 feet. It would cost more than $300,000.

The 36 parking spaces are required after the common council, on the urging of Third Ward Ald. Sumner Parker, included a provision that 1½ parking stalls be provided for each apartment unit in a recent zoning ordinance amendment.

Underground Stalls

Adams said Wednesday that the "concern for maintaining beauty in the area" could have been easily accomplished if the ordinance provision has stayed at one car-per-unit rather than 1½. All stalls would then have been underground.

He also noted that because of the outside parking spaces, one-half of the dozen trees on the lot will have to be cut down. Before, only two were contemplated for cutting.

He said "aldermen from the Third Ward were in favor of that" and that "they can explain it."

City's North Side

Industrial Park Planned for Menasha

MENASHA — The city is drawing up detailed plans for its industrial park in an effort to attract industry to the now nearly-desolate acreage on the north side of the city.

At the urging of Mayor James Adams, Urban Consultant Robert Osheim and the industrial committee will draw up a plan for platting, zoning, and provision of roads and utilities in the 80-acre site.

A preliminary plan outlining future road extensions that could be made into the industrial park area was sitting on the mayor's desk this morning. It has been drawn up by the public works department.

Adams said he would like to see a finished plan come from Osheim and the industrial committee "within a month," so it could be finished in conjunction with the comprehensive plan now being debated by the planning commission.

The plan would then apparently be sent through the planning commission to the common council for approval.

The industrial park lies within boundaries defined by London and Deerfield streets extended and is bordered on the north and east by the Town of Menasha.

The plan, in finished form, would include provisions for power, sewer and water service, lot sizes, setbacks and roads.

It will serve to entice industry into the park area, which has been lying virtually vacant since the city acquired it in the 1965 Schwarzbauer annexation.

One year ago, Osheim proposed an industiral development committee to promote city industrial developement and help entice new industry into the city, and especially the industrial parts.

The committee was eventually appointed earlier this year, but it has not held any meetings yet.

Adams said today that "some interest" has been shown by industry in the new site, but that there was "nothing definite yet."

He hopes that detailed plans for services and other provisions in the area — which would serve as a commitment from the city to the development — would help attract that industry.

Menasha Boy Drowns While Feeding Ducks

MENASHA — An 11-year old Town of Menasha boy drowned Wednesday noon in a duck pond at a neighbor's home while feeding the ducks.

Timothy Meyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Meyer, 1055 N. Clayton Ave., was pronounced dead on arrival at Theda Clark Hospital. Winnebago County Coroner Art. C. Miller ruled accidental drowning as the cause of death.

The youth's body was found by Michael Van Leishout, 22, 425½ Eighth St., Neenah, who had responded to a request for help from Mrs. Meyer when she found her son's clothes in the duck hut next to the pond.

Van Leishout unsuccessfully attempted to revive the boy after finding him in about 12 feet of water at the deepest end of the duck pond.

Mrs. Meyer told county authorities her son had gone to the John G. Hesselman residence to feed the ducks about 11:30 a.m. When Timothy did not return home for dinner she became worried and went to look for him shortly before 12:30 p.m. The Hesselmans were away on vacation.

He was born Aug. 30, 1958 in Neenah and was a sixth grade student at Trinity Lutheran School.

Survivors include his parents, three sisters, two brothers and grandparents.

8 in Race for Oshkosh Seat On Assembly

OSHKOSH — The already-crowded race for the Republican nomination for the first assembly district in Winnebago County has become more croweded.

Oshkosh City Atty. John Pence has become the sixth Republican circulating nomination papers. Two Democrats also are circulating papers.

The Eight are seeking the post being vacated by State Rep. Jack D. Steinhilber, who is running for the state senate.

The first assembly district consists of 16 Oshkosh city wards.

Coroner Art C. Miller has filed completed nomination papers seeking re-election. He is a republican.

Duane Moore, Oshkosh, operator of Moor Ambulance Service and a member of the Winnebago County Board, also is circulating papers for the Republican nomination for coroner.

Rock Fest Regulations Eyed for Winnebago

OSHKOSH — Rock fest regulation will be informally discussed by three Winnebago County Board committees. The talks will be initiated by the health committee.

Supv. Virginia Nolan, Oshkosh, Wednesday argued for a complete ban on the fests. "I'm worried about the attraction of fringe elements," she said referring to the estimated 50,000 people who attended the People's Fair in Iola. She was especially anxious about biker gangs.

'New Way of Life'

Supv. Raymond Gischia, Neenah, said he was unwilling to throw an absolute ban on the events. "It may well be a new way of life."

He was interested in a study that would produce guidelines. "If there are 'x' number of people, then there should be 'x' toilets and 'x' gallons of water per person."

Health committee member Dr. S. J. Graiewski, Oshkosh, questioned Mrs. Nolan about the specific dangers to public health stemming from rock fests.

Drug Problems

She pointed to drug use as her major concern but was unable to specify which drugs or to cite statistics on hospitalizations connected with drug abuse at rock fests. Mrs. Nolan was also concerned about more usual public health problems, sanitation and communicable disease, present whenever large numbers of people gather.

Dr. Graiewski observed the lack of rigor in her arguments and was against banning rock fests for health reasons until specifics were gathered.

"We're trying to legislate the morals and habits and customs of these kids. We can't do that," he said.

Police Problem

He was unwilling to work up regulations himself without the aid of national and state public health agencies. "It seems more a police, transportation and communication problem than a health one."

Committee chairman Carl Steffin, Menasha, will talk to the sheriff and coroners and zoning committee about a study that could lead to regulations.

Corporation counsel Gerald Engeldinger has been instructed by the sheriff and coroner's committee to look in the statutes to see what laws exist that bear on rock fest problems.

'Some Place to Go'

Dr. Graiewski and Supv. Gischia both saw futility in throwing a ban on the events. "They should have some place to go," Gischia said. The doctor said, "Don't believe you're getting rid of something by banning it."

Problems were also seen in defining rock fests in a way that would separate them from other large public gatherings such as fairs, the Experimental Aircraft Association's convention and football games. There were also possible conflicts seen with public restrictions on an individual's use of private property.

"If someone owns a large piece of land, I don't see how we can prohibit him from having a rock fest. But we can set regulations," Graiewski said

Leaflets by The Thousands to announce the new Project Help, a 24-hour telephone answering service operated by the Outagamie Mental Health Association, are being distributed in supermarkets and business establishments. Mrs. James Prasher, left, of the Fox Valley council of Beta Sigma Phi, national service sorority, which is helping to distribute the leaflets, puts the first one in a grocery bag for Sentry Food Store manager Douglas Mahr, while Miss Karen Kingsley, clerk, watches. The project is mostly referral in nature and all calls are anonymous. The number to call is 739-0248. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Little Chute Plans to Revise Intersection

LITTLE CHUTE — Village Board members voted Tuesday night to enter into an agreement with the Outagamie County Highway Commission for a complete revision and improvement of the Depot Street and County Trunk OO intersection at an estimated cost of $20,000.

The intersection, which also serves as a link on County Trunk N, is presently a five-way stop and has long been a worry to local and county officials, police, village school board members and parent-teacher organizations in the village because of its proximity to the Little Chute Public High School.

Since kindergarten and some lower elementary grade classes are offered in the high school building, the hrazardous intersection had to be provided with extra policing during periods when children arrived or left the school.

Plans call for the intersection to be made a four-way stop. Although it still will be an angle-type intersection, it will be considerably straighter than at present. Curb and gutter and sidewalk, not now present, also will be provided. Fill for the project is to be furnished by the village. Work is expected to start about Aug. 10 and officials are hopeful the project can be completed early in the coming school term.

A public hearing was set for 7:30 p.m. July 21 on the request of Bower Brothers Construction to rezone 53 lots from residential Class 1 to residential Class 11. The lots are located east of County Trunk CC and north of OO at the extreme eastern limits of the village.

A letter was read from the captain of District No. 3 of the State Highway Patrol commending two village police officers for assistance in apprehending a motorist who recently attempted to elude police on Highway 41.

'Code 1' at Outagamie Bank

paper enough for her to see it hid a snubnose revolver.

"Good morning," the holdup man greeted her.

He shoved her a note printed in pencil. It read, "Put all the money from the top of the counter into this paper bag. Do not move toward any alarm."

Mrs. Bond complied. The robber, with a polite "Thank you," took the sack and walked out the same door through which he had entered.

The polite, dark-haired robber with the tattooed arms was Sgt. Robert Breckenridge of the Police Department's detective bureau. The gun hidden in the Tribune was a cap pistol. It looked real. The money in the paper sack was paper cut in the size of bills.

Knew of Robbery

Some policemen knew the bank would be robbed this morning. A few high-ranking officials were in on the planning. Only three bank employes, including Mrs. Bond, knew when the robbery would take place. Other employes knew only that there was going to be one sometime in the near future. They had no other details.

Bank officials, who had asked for the mock robbery, wanted it that way. They wanted to catch the employes off guard to test their reaction. It was all part of the in-service training in case the real thing comes up someday. Outagamie Bank apparently is the only Appleton bank ever to be robbed. That, according to an official, happened "back in the horse and buggy days" The robber, according to accounts, fled into Jones Park with several thoasund dollars.

Immediately after today's robbery, bank employes handed customers "description sheets" which sought information on the robber, including such features as his hat, hair, eyes, ears, nose, chin, complexion, shirt, tie, coat, gloves, age, height, weight, weapon and other characteristics.

Bank employes and police were to review the mock robbery at a "critique session" this afternoon in the bank basement. Evidence will be evaluated, questions will be answered and mistakes will be pointed out, police explained.

More Aid to Business Hurt by Imports Said To Have Been Okayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sources say a proposal that would liberalize assistance to workers and firms hurt by imports has gained tentative approval of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Approval of the provision, recommended by President Nixon, is subject to reconsideration, sources said.

Chamber Priorities

Convention Center at Top of List

Construction of a civic-convention center, problems of the Fox Cities government and promotion of a highway improvement program are among eight priority projects the Appleton Area Chamber of Commerce lists in a revised activity program.

Chamber President Jack Babbitt announced that the program of work recently adopted by the Chamber was intended as a guide for progress and can serve as a measuring device for accomplishments during the next decade.

The program was formulated over a period of months with meetings between Chamber members and staff. It replaces a list of priorities and projects adopted by the Chamber in 1967.

Other priority projects include promotion of new industry and business in the Fox Cities; adoption of capital improvement programs for the city and Outagamie County in conjunction with good planning and zoning; modernization in municipal and county government; citizen participation in the conduct of government; and construction of a federal office building.

Quality of Life

Past accomplishments of the Chamber's efforts are referred to as a foundation for establishing a program which recognizes concern for the quality of life as a Chamber function, Babbitt said.

Copies of the program have been mailed to the membership, area elected officials and heads of other groups which would be interested in the Chamber's program.

Many of the priorities adopted in 1967 have been accomplished and a number of them have been incorporated in the continuing program.

Among the priorities accomplished through the cooperative efforts of the people of this area are construction plans for a post office which now awaits only the funds; reservation of the old airport property for industrial development; another major department store in Appleton's central business district; expansion programs at the Outagamie County Airport; acquisition of some land for the tri-county expressway; and the engineering study produced for the Oneida Street high-level bridge.

Babbitt said the "program of work clearly represents the attitudes of the business and professional community of the area and demonstrates the willingness of the business and professional leadership to move ahead in an effort to provide better jobs and a better standard of living for the people of this area."

More Activity Goal of Citizens' Advisory Group

The mayor's Citizens' Advisory and Improvement Committee began forming subcommittees Wednesday night and the chairman of the now-smaller, 15-member group promised to work for more activity within the group.

The committee will meet every other month. Subcommittees will meet more frequently to work out proposals in their respective areas. The group is advisory and only can recommend certain actions to the mayor and City Council.

James Schreiter, the new chairman, noted the old committee was larger, adding he thought the present structure could "do the job."

Schreiter named several persons to subcommittees but said the appointments were temporary pending further study.

All Kaukauna Police And Fire Commission Officers Re-elected

KAUKAUNA — All officers of the Fire and Police Commission recently were re-elected. Jacob Weyenberg will continue as chairman.

Arhtur Kromer was re-elected vice chairman and Norman Foxgrover, secretary.

Two men who successfully completed examinations for duty as a police officer were reviewed. Their names were submitted to Police Chief William Nagel to select one to fill an existing opening. The second name will be kept on file for a future opening.

Specifications submitted by Nagel for two new squad cars were accepted and referred to the public protection and safety committee of the Common Council.

Phone Firm Denied New Rate Hearing

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — A plea for a rehearing to win a larger emergency rate boost has been denied the Stockbridge and Sherwood Telephone Co. by the State Public Service Commission.

The commission, which in May had approved an emergency rate increase totaling $22,040 for the company, turned down an appeal by the firm for another hearing on the matter.

The company had contended that the emergency hike was not large enough because the state agency had based the increase on a net investment by the firm lower than what the firm contends its investment actually is.

The state agency turned down the appeal with the comment that the matter is still open and that the firm can ask for additional rate hikes in the future.

Prisoner Slashes Arm at Waupaca

Outagamie County authorities have returned to the county jail a 24-year-old man who Monday evening attempted to take his own life at the Waupaca County jail.

Authorities believe that Tony Wilson, formerly of Shiocton, slashed his left arm with a piece of glass broken off a light fixture in his cell. The three-inch wound required eight stitches.

Wilson was convicted May 12 for issuing a worthless check, and placed on two years' probation. The first four months of the probation term were to be spent in the county jail under the Huber Law.

Outagamie authorities were notified of the incident about 7 p.m.

Dr. Salk Marries Francoise Gilot

PARIS (AP) — Dr. Jonas Salk, developer of the polio vaccine, and Francoise Gilot, former mistress of Pablo Picasso, were married in a civil ceremony last week. Only relatives and intimate friends were present.

Publicity shy Salk explained that the date was advanced from the original July 9 "because the pressure was getting to be so great" from photographers and news organizations.

The brief ceremony in the high ceilinged marriage salon of neighboring Neuilly was conducted by Achille Peretti, mayor of Neuilly and president of the French National Assembly.

and the U.S. government, under a National Science Foundation grant for College Science Improvement Programs.

Most of the finds so far are only about three feet below the surface, but it takes qualified excavators with keen eyes to uncover the treasures buried in the historically important site.

The site being excavated may have been used by Indians for hundreds of years before it was occupied by the Winnebago Indians in the 1600s, according to Mason.

"Fortunately, the layers of soil are so stratified that we can easily date each occupation period."

More Diversity

"The most difficult part of digging is knowing what ground to sort through screens and what to throw away," Mason said. "It's always a gamble."

The Canadian born professor, who said his specialty is learning what went on in the past in the United States and Canada, said he has found "far more diversity between aboriginal tribes in this hemisphere than in all of Europe.

"The difference in language spoken by the Winnebagos and Menominees, for example, is comparable to that of English speaking peoples and Chinese. The two nations were in close proximity but Winnebagos spoke a dialect called Siouan and the Menominees spoke Algonkin. Neither could understand the other."

Mason's excavation team includes nine Lawrence students and Mrs. Mason, who is a member of the faculty at UWGB-Fox Valley Campus.

The five-week project, carried out with permission of the state on the state-owned island, began June 15.

After being properly catalogued, the artifacts uncovered during the summer will be displayed on the Lawrence compus.

Application Filed

Chilton's Two Banks Seek Consolidation

CHILTON -- Application to consolidate has been filed by the city's two banks with the regional director of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp and the Wisconsin commissioner of banking in Madison

According to G. G. Bloomer, president of the State Bank of Chilton, and A W. Hugo, president of the Commercial Bank, the consolidation would mean one bank with total assets of about $20 million.

They also said that the consolidated bank would be in a better position to compete with area banks now owned by large holding companies

They said that the bank would remain locally owned with the stockholders continuing to be interested in the welfare of the community and surrounding areas

The merger also would allow the bank to better serve this area with highly trained men working in different departments According to the two presidents, if the application is approved, the merger would be set tentatively for the end of this year It will be about four months before any decision will be known, they added

Antitrust Settlements Total $3 Million Against Dairies

KANSAS CITY (AP) — Civil antitrust cases filed by 17 small dairies against the National Dairy Products Corp. of New York and seven Kansas City dairies have been settled for more than $3 million.

The suits were filed after National Dairy was convicted in 1963 of price-fixing and trying to monopolize the milk market in Kansas City and its trade area

National Dairy was fined $380,000 after a three-month trial in U.S. District Court. Raymond J. Wise, former vice president and director, was fined $52,500 and given a three-month suspended sentence.

Dairies named as co-conspirators in the trial were Beatrice Foods Co., Fairmont Foods Co., Foremost Dairies Inc., Meyer Sanitary Milk Co., Hiland Dairy Inc., Country Club Dairy Co., and the Borden Co.

National Dairies appealed its conviction to the U.S. Supreme Court and the conviction was upheld by the court.

Foremost Dairies Inc., now known as Foremost Foods, operates a plant in Appleton.

Movie Stars Onstage In Broadway Shows

Theater With Instant Audience Response Always Attractive to Creative Actors

BY BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Summer visitors to Manhattan will find that visiting the Broadway theater can afford a look at their favorites of the screen.

Let's see, there's Katharine Hepburn in "C'c'" hurry up, she's being replaced by Danielle Darrieux on Aug 3. Lauren Bacall in "Applause" Maureen O'Sullivan in "Charley's Aunt."

Next season will bring more veteran stars from the movies. Danny Kaye has been signed to return to Broadway after a 28-year absence; he'll star in "Two by Two," adapted from Clifford Odet's "The Flowering Peach" with music by Richard Rogers.

Another entry is Ruby Keeler, who will return after an even longer absence, appearing in a revival of "No, No, Nanette"

Three Major Reasons

Why do movie personalities return to the stage, especially when they face the danger of captious critics? The reasons are three-fold:

1. The artistic benefits

"I had almost forgotten the thrill of playing to a real, live audience," said James Stewart upon returning from his New York triumph in "Harvey" "It was tough work, playing eight shows a week, but it was worth it. I felt like a kid again"

Stewart's pal, Henry Fonda, has made a regular practice of returning to the threater to recharge his creative batteries He has always found more satisfaction playing before the footlights than under the arc lamps of movie sets He returned last season for "Our Town"

2 The money

In some cases, returning to Broadway can mean a financial loss, as when Robert Ryan appeared in repertory with "The Front Page" But for players who star in big-budget musicals, the returns can be excellent In many cases salaries better potential earnings in films

Some Profits Big

Variety reported recently that Danny Kaye's percentage of the "Two by Two" gross could bring him $14,000 a week if the musical becomes a hit He would also profit from part ownership of the production and from the record album sales.

Katharine Hepburn's percentage of "Coco" has brought her a reported $16,000 to $17,000 per week. Lauren Bacall receives nine per cent of "Applause," which has been operating at capacity for $107,000 weekly.

3 Career hypo.

"There's nothing like a Broadway hit to make a career zoom," observes a Hollywood agent. "Look at Angela Lansbury. She could have been stuck playing mother roles for the rest of her career in films. But she went to Broadway for 'Mame' and became the toast of the town Now's she starring for Disney and has her choice of parts."

Many another performer has enjoyed new life for his career because of stage success in New York, more publicity can come from a hit play than a successful movie

Of course, a return to Broadway can be chancey. A flop can damage a career, and of the 41 commercially sponsored plays in the 1969-70 season 29 were dead losses. The odds are poor, but film actors are willing to take the chance, especially when the movie business remains in a state of collapse.

Robert Kohl Plays Dudley Bostwick, the young man so desperately in love in "The Time of Your Life," the William Saroyan play Attic Theatre in presenting as its season opener in the Experimental Theater of Lawrence Music-Drama Center. Seated in the background are two of the leads, Judi Jones and Charles Schuman, and Charles Kolb is behind the bar as the owner of Nick's waterfront saloon in 1939 San Francisco. Curtain time is 8:15 p.m. Tuesday through Saturday. (Post-Crescent Photo).

Glad You Asked That

BY HY GARDNER

Q: The recent Supreme Court decision made me wonder—whatever happened to the actor who was our most publicized conscientious objector of World War II—Lew (Dr. Kildare) Ayres?—Ronnie Bergdorf, New York City.

A: Lew Ayres's morally motivated refusal to take up arms during World War II became a cause celebre in Hollywood. Friends deserted him; the press excoriated him: the industry withdrew his films. Assigned to a labor battalion, he volunteered for the medical corps as a noncombatant. Shipped to the Pacific theater of operations, Ayres distinguished himself by his bravery under fire—and was welcomed home as a hero. Since then he's appeared infrequently on Broadway, in films, and on TV (including a recent Doris Day show). At his own expense, he produced and filmed a documentary on great living religions—exhibited around the country—often doing his own narration.

Q: The young lady who plays Carol Burnett's sister on her TV show—is she her sister in real life?—Theresa Hall, Memphis.

A: Not realy. Her name is Vicki Lawrence. As Carol related the Cinderella story, Miss Lawrence wrote her an unsolicited letter about a singing and dancing career, enclosing two newspaper reviews of high school shows she'd been in. Both commented on her remarkable resemblance to Miss Burnett. Since Carol was looking for someone to play her sister on the show, she and her husband decided to sneak into the audience when Vicki entered a "Miss Fireball" contest in Inglewood, Cal. She won the contest, an audition, and the highly-coveted role.

A: I've heard that playwright George Bernard Shaw willed all his money to whomever could successfully develop an international language. How much did he leave? Has anyone tried to claim it?—W.N.S., Cincinnati.

A: Most of Shaw's fortune of more than 300,000 pounds after death duties were paid was left in trust for research on a "proposed British alphabet" of at least 40 letters. The remainder was divided among the National Gallery of Ireland, the British Museum, and the Royal Academy of Dramatic Art.

Q: About Rod McKuen's gravelly sounding voice—is it true he got it as a result of being a hot-dog hawker at ballgames?—Betty Slavery, Hampton, Va.

A: No. America's favorite poet-composer confesses he brought this strange sound into being by going off on an overly strenuous, eight-week, 80-performance tour to promote his first successful album, "The Oliver Twist." Incidentally, he's undoubtedly the most prominent person ever born in a Salvation Army hospital ward—the one in Oakland, Cal.

Q: When I'm lying in bed listening to the radio and the National Anthem is played, am I supposed to stand up?—G.H., Seattle.

A: Not necessarily. I guess the late Mayor LaGuardia once gave the most sensible answer to that question when it was asked by a lady constituent. "Why not, madam," Fiorello flipped, "just turn the raido off?"

Bill Guarantees Full Warranties

WASHINGTON (AP) — A manufacturer's "full warranty" would have to be backed 100 percent under a consumer protection bill passed by the Senate.

The provision would cover warranties on virtually all items normally used for personal, family or household purposes, provided they cost $5 or more.

The measure was passed by voice vote Wednesday and sent to the House.

Critics charged it merely would discourage warranties, but proponents said it would encourage better products.

The bill would require manufacturers to list their warranties as "partial" rather than "full" if they promised anything less than free repair of any defect within a reasonable time.

Authority Told Proper Upkeep Curbs Vandalism

NEW YORK (AP) — The New York City Housing Authority has turned to famed anthropologist Margaret Mead in seeking answers to problems of vandalism and tenant relations.

Her advice: promote pride, maintain each house in order and the rest will fall in place.

The idea of asking Miss Mead, an established authority on human societies, to comment came from Ira S. Robbins, the retiring vice chairman of the authority It operates 172 housing projects for 630,000 tenants.

"We're already planning to implement a number of her ideas," said Robbins.

One suggestion by Miss Mead was that repairs be made promptly to anything that is broken: "Anything wounded becomes worse unless repaired." A well-cared for building is a powerful deterrent to vandalism," she said

Another deterrent is pride: "Attempting to curb vandalism rather than creating a sense of pride is treating a symptom," she suggested. She urged more informal tenant gatherings and orientation programs.

Waterproof Umbrella Tag Safeguard Against Loss

BY CAPPY DICK

A waterproof name tag on your umbrella can be a safeguard against its loss. The Safeguard tag is so easy to prepare any boy or girl would have fun doing it.

First, cut the letters of your name from small newspaper headings. Also clip out the letters and numerals of your phone number.

Punch a small hole through the tapes at the center of the reinforcement ring and run a piece of fishline through it (figure 2). Tie the fishline to the handle of the umbrella (figure 3).

The umbrella will now be easy to identify as belonging to you if by chance you lose it. If the finder is an honest, thoughtful person he will be able to telephone you and tell you where the umbrella is.

Send for Cappy Dick's helpful party stunts booklet!

Mothers! If you need new ideas to entertain your children's scout meetings and birthday parties, you'll find 45 good ones in Cappy Dick's "Birthday Party Stunts" booklet. To get a copy, send 50 cents in coin, plus a self-addressed, stamped envelope to CAPPY DICK BOOKLETS, P.O. Box 42877, Evergreen Park, Illinois 60642.

This Twin Was a Dead Duck. Wisconsin Rapids' Ken Knights was tagged out at third base by the Appleton Foxes' Wayne Francingues in the sequence above in the seventh inning of their Midwest League game at Goodland Field Wednesday night. The throw came from rightfielder Larry Linville after Knight attempted to advance from second base on a fly out. The Twins still won the contest, 6-4 (Post-Crescent Photos by Edward J. Finally Finishes Round

Jacklin Cools off After Fast Start In British Open

BY THOMAS A. REEDY
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST ANDREWS, Scotland (AP) — Tony Jacklin, heading for an awe-inspiring record until rain stopped play, paid the penalty today for having to cool off overnight and completed his first round of the 1970 British Open Golf Championship with a disappointing 67.

Defending champion Jacklin of England had gone out in a record 29 Wednesday and was eight under par at the 14th, where his ball stopped under a bush.

Up at dawn today along with several dozen others who were halted by the savage cloudburst, Jacklin took up where he left off but then shot a one-over-par 6. He dropped two more shots at the 16th and 17th and his five-under par 67 was two shots off the pace-setting 65 by his countryman, Neil Coles.

"If I said what I really felt, you couldn't print it," Jacklin said ruefully, "It was a different game today and very difficult to pick up when you are eight under (par)"

Casual Water

The unfinished delegations teed off in steady rain that plagued the 6,951-yard Old Course with casual water.

An occasional clap of thunder served as ominous reminders of Wednesday's night's jungle-like storm.

The second 18-hole round started immediately after completion of the first, which meant a long hard day for some — provided, of course, the weather becomes no worse

The Royal Air Force Station nearby gloomily forecast persistent rain, clearing up late in the afternoon.

Roberto de Vicenzo, former British Open champion, finished with a one-under-par 71. The Argentine was one of the players whose round was interrupted by rain Wednesday.

He said, "I know it was a difficult decision for the Royal and Ancient to make But I think the whole round should have been rubbed out.

Best Field

"This is the best British Open field in the history of the championship. Many of us have traveled thousands of miles.

"I don't want to have a handicap of this type I firmly believe the decision to let the round stand when rain stopped play was no good."

Lee Trevino of El Paso, Tex., completed his round for a 32-36—68 and supported De Vicenzo's claim that the whole round Wednesday should have been wiped out.

"We should all have started from scratch today," he said.

"We have not played the same golf course. A few holes yesterday and a few more today Is that a true record of the round?

"Now I've completed my round and I've got to hang around for about three hours before I go out again"

The Cubs obtained Pizarro in a straight cash deal from Hawaii of the Pacific Coast League.

Pizarro, who will be joining his seventh major league club, had a 9-0 record after appearing in 13 games for Hawaii.

Quad Cities Angels Here Tonight

Foxes' League Lead Reduced To One Game After 6-4 Loss

BY RON WITT
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Wisconsin Rapids jumped on Appleton's Duane Shaffer for five hits and five runs in the first two innings Wednesday night, propelling the Twins to a 6-4 victory over the Midwest League-leading Foxes.

Appleton, which saw its first place advantage dwindle to one game with the setback, opens a 2-game series with the Quad Cities Angels at Goodland Field tonight in a continuance of the Foxes' week long homestand. The single contest will start at the customary 7:30 p m.

Wednesday night's crowd of 816 was in a light-hearted mood at the start of the ballgame after watching an exhibition of the Paranaut Skydivers. Four members of the club—Bill Hasenfuss, Omro; Bill Ehrhardt, Green Bay; Bruce Morse, Appleton, and Tom Marx, Omro — bailed out from a light plane at 3,000 feet over Wisconsin Avenue and descended onto Goodland Field.

Each of the skydivers attempted to land at one of the bases, but gusty, shifting winds prevented pinpoint marksmanship. Three of the fellows dropped in the infield, but a f o u r th—Erhardt—sailed into "foul" but safe territory outside the right field fence (inside the park).

The smiles the skydivers brought to Foxes fans quickly disappeared under the Twins' early barrage. Shaffer, who had been named to the Midwest League All-Star team earlier in the day, allowed three hits and a walk in the first frame.

After Shaffer retired leadoff hitter Bob Walter on a fly ball, Ken Knight and Jim Hoppe each slashed singles and Ron Shotts drew a free pass to load the bases.

Tim Mappin then laced a double over the first base bag scoring two runs. The third tally of the inning came in when Foxes' shortstop Joe Monty knocked down Ron MacDonald's liner and then threw wildly to first base.

2-Out Rally

The Twins, who by winning salvaged the last game of the 3-game set with Appleton, chased Shaffer with a 2-out rally in the second. Knight bounced his second hit off Stu Singleton's glove, and Hoppe followed with a line triple to right center. Hoppe also scored when the relay throw from Roger Reid sailed over the catcher's head.

With the comfortable 5-0 advantage, Twins southpaw Ray O'Neil had things pretty much his own way until the Foxes pushed across two runs in the third Ross Sapp's single, relief pitcher Al Paganucci's double, and Reid's infield out accounted for the runs.

Rapids picked up an insurance run in the seventh as Knight rapped his third hit, went to second on a walk, and came home on a dropped fly ball by centerfielder Gary Isakson

Appleton, which collected seven hits for the night, had only four until the eighth. The Foxes wasted opening singles by Isakson and Reid to start the inning.

Behind 6-2 to start the bottom of the ninth, the Foxes also got their first two men aboard via walks. O'Neil then departed in favor of Neil Emerson

Emerson got Ross Sapp on a roller to short and pinchhitter Edito Arteaga on a soft fly to left, but Isakson came through with a 2-run loop single to center Reid represented the tying run at the plate after Isakson's hit, but Emerson retired him on a fly to right to end the game.

One of the bright spots in the loss for Appleton was the relief chore turned in by Paganucci The righthander worked five innings, allowing just three hits and an unearned run.

Downing's Boot Costs Brewers Loss to Chicago

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Al Downing's pitching was fine Wednesday night, but his catching left something to be desired, as a costly dropped toss led indirectly to a 2-1 defeat of his Brewers by the Chicago White Sox.

Downing and Chicago's Tommy John were engaged in a scoreless pitchers' duel through seven innings But in the eighth, Downing was covering first base when he dropped a flip from first baseman Tito Francona That allowed the first Sox run to score, making it a 1-0 contest

The error also allowed Chicago's Tommy McCraw to reach first base, and he scored later with the eventual winning run

"I just plain dropped it," mourned the Milwaukee lefthander, who now has a 3-5 record. "The throw hit me right in the middle of the glove and it popped out I felt good all the way. I had the same stuff in the eighth as I had in the first The whole ball game just boiled down to that one play If I hadn't dropped the ball, it would have been a 1-0 game"

May Scores Run

And had it been a 1-0 game at that stage. Milwaukee's eighth inning run would have tied it up. That run scored when Dave May was safe on an error to lead off the inning, took second on a single by Phil Roof and scored on a pair of infield outs.

Like Downing, John also felt good throughout the game. But his feeling of well-being extended beyond the ninth inning, because he had notched his sixth victory, and brought home the second Chicago triumph in the last 10 games He has had 12 losses

"It was just a great night to pitch," John said "It was nice and cool and you don't get tired in weather like this I did go to full count on a lot of guys. but I think that was just because I was trying to be too careful with some of them."

John's victory ended a personal four-game skid and snapped a four-game winning streak for the Brewers who are still one game ahead of the Sox, who are in last place. In their s e r i e s finale tonight, Bob Bolin, 1-6, is slated for the Milwaukee mound chores and Jerry Crider, 2-3, expected to take the hill for Chicago

Some 12,119 fans saw Wednesday night's game, boosting the season's total to 494 242

The Brewers expect to top the half-million mark as they end their home stand tonight, and Mr. 500,000th fan-through-the-turnstiles will be awarded two season tickets for next year.

Still, Zarley Favored as GMO Begins

Dave Stockton, Steve Eichstaedt Also Contenders at Milwaukee

By BOB GREENE

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Jesse Whittenton and Zeke Bratkowski looked out of place without shoulder pads Wednesday as they teed off in the pro-am warmup for the $110,000 Greater Milwaukee Open golf tournament

Whittenton, of El Paso, Tex, is a tour regular while Bratkowski was one of 150 shank-and-slice amateurs who pay to play a round with the pros Whittenton is a former defensive back with the Green Bay Packers of the National Football League while Bratkowski, now a Packer coach, once was the Green Bay back-up quarterback.

Although a sentimental favorite, Whittenton isn't figured to finish high among the leaders week. The pre-tournament nods go to defending champion Ken Still of Tacoma, Wash ; red-hot Kermit Zarley, also of Tacoma, who won the Canadian Open last week, Dave Stockton of Westlake, Calif., winner here in 1968, and Steve Eichstaedt, the youngster who surprised everybody by finishing second in the Canadian Open.

Native of Miami

Eichstaedt is a native of Miami, Fla, but now plays out of North Shore Country Club, the site of the GMO.

A surprise entry, and one that is welcomed with the field decimated by the British Open as it has been, is Ron Cerrudo, the colorful Californian from Napa. The 22-year-old Cerrudo has been sidelined for two months with an ailing back and there had been some talk that he was considering dropping from the tour.

The four-day, 72-hole Greater Milwaukee Open is short on big names and long on rabbits—those pros who play 18 holes on Monday in an effort to fill the 144-man field. Arnold Palmer, Jack Nicklaus, Doug Sanders, Gary Player and Tony Jacklin are playing in the British Open at St. Andrews, Scotland.

Juan "Chi Chi" Rodriguez of Puerto Rico, a gallery favorite, said it was a good thing Nicklaus and Palmer are not entered in the GMO.

"Perhaps Jack and Arnie are lucky they aren't here," he laughed. "I'm in the mood to beat them and they don't like to lose."

Wind Problem

The 7,110-yard course lived up to its reputation Wednesday as high winds created problems for any golfer who put any height on his ball. Intermittent showers, sometimes heavy, also caused play to be slowed

"I notice the wind is still here," Zarley said. "I think it rained last year, but there was still a lot of wind."

Chi Chi also remembered the elements from last year when rain drenched Saturday's play.

"The course looks just as good as usual," Chi Chi said. "Long and windy."

Although the crowds were audibly pleased with the play of the pros in the pro-am, the biggest galleries were reserved for Bratkowski and Packer quarterback Bart Starr.

Several area professionals will compete in the GMO.

McLain Blames Investments For Problems

Tells Bankruptcy Hearing of His Financial Woes

DETROIT (AP) — "A series of bad investments and overextensions of a lot of things" resulted in his money problems, Detroit Tiger pitcher Denny McLain testified Wednesday at a bankruptcy hearing.

The pitching ace filed bankruptcy papers June 9, showing a total of about $400,000 in debts He said he had virtually no assets.

McLain's attorney, Archie Katcher, asked for a stay in proceedings against McLain from creditors pending the work of a court-appointed trustee, Detroit lawyer Marion V. Bonds, in analyzing McLain's affairs.

Bankruptcy Court Judge Harry Hackett did not set a date for a future hearing.

No Comment

McLain, meanwhile, said he was not going to talk about the fine against him for knocking balls into the stands as a fungo hitter in pre-game warmups.

"I'm not even going to comment on that," the blond-haired hurler said. "What am I supposed to be, Peck's Bad Boy or something?"

McLain was charged $2 50 for each ball he hit into the stands July 2 Tiger Manager Mayo Smith said McLain had been assessed a small amount last year for similar practices.

McLain returned to the Tiger roster July 1 after a 90-day suspension for what Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn said was McLain's association with gamblers in 1967.

McLain usually takes part in pre-game warmup activities in which hitters loft some high fly balls to the outsiders.

"It's not a fine," said Tiger General Manager Jim Campbell, "we're just asking McLain to pay for the balls that he deliberately knocks into the stands"

Cubs, Expos Split Pair

Hart Paces Giants, Ties Mark With 6 RBI in Inning

BY BEN THOMAS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Attention National League pitchers! Jim Ray Hart's back from the minors and the once-feared hitting star is again wielding a big bat.

Hart recalled from Phoenix earlier in the week when Jim Davenport retired, staged a slightly delayed celebration Wednesday night by driving in six runs in one inning to equal a 59-year-old National League record as the San Francisco Giants bombed the Atlanta Braves 13-0

Troubled most of last year by a shoulder injury, Hart was shipped to Phoenix of the Pacific Coast League by the Giants during spring training He appeared in a San Francisco uniform for the first time in the 1970 campaign Tuesday night and was hitless in four appearances He more than made up for it Wednesday night

Elsewhere in the National League, the New York Mets opened up a 1½-game East Division lead over Pittsburgh by beating St. Louis 7-5 as the Pirates fell 2-0 to Philadelphia, San Diego defeated Cincinnati 3-1, Los Angeles edged Houston 6-5 and the Chicago Cubs split a twin bill with Montreal, winning the first game 5-1 and dropping the nightcap 5-4

"It's great to be back," chortled Hart after his Wednesday night performance, which included a single, double, triple and home run in five at bats

"Six RBI — that's a week's work in one inning," said Atlanta slugger Hank Aaron And Luman Harris, the Braves' manager, added "You mean the record he tied was set in 1911? It's hard to believe that anyone could get six RBIs in one inning with the dead ball they played with back then"

The NL inning record for RBI was set May 13, 1911, by Fred C Merkle of the old New York Giants The major league record is seven, by Edward Cartwright of St Louis in 1890 when the second loop was known as the American Association

Second Player

Since the formation of the American League in 1901, six players have driven in six runs in a single inning Hart is only the second NL player to achieve the feat

Hart had seven RBI for the evening He had an RBI single in the third and his six RBI featured the Giants' 11-run fifth He homered with two on in his first trip to the plate in the inning and when he came back up again later in the inning he smashed a bases-loaded triple

The Mets, in beating the Cards, racked up their sixth straight victory, longest winning streak for the defending world champs this season Rookie Ken Singleton's third-inning homer with two on put the Mets out front to stay after St Louis had gone ahead 3-0 Carl Taylor homered for the Cards

Deron Johnson's ninth-inning homer with one on broke up a scoreless pitching duel between Philadelphia's Rick Wise and Pittsburgh's Steve Blass It was Johnson's 16th clout of the season and the fourth off Blass Wise also yielded four hits

String Broken

Cincinnati's four-game victory skein was snapped by the Padres but the Reds still maintain an 8½-game West Division lead San Diego's runs all came in the third with Clarence Gaston and Ollie Brown hitting run scoring singles and Steve Huntz scoring on a Cincinnati error

The Dodgers exploded for five runs in the ninth to beat Atlanta with Maury Wills' pinch double driving in a pair The Cubs' first-game victory over Montreal was highlighted by two run homers by Ron Santo and Billy Williams

John Bocabella's pinch single drove in two runs in the eighth to give the Expos the nightcap triumph

Oliva Leads Twins To 8-6 Victory; Tigers Edge Bosox

BY HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Oakland took a dose of Minnesota muscle but it wasn't nearly as hard to swallow as the turnabout trick Cleveland pulled on Washington

A homer and three singles by Tony Oliva—who often does that sort of thing—led Minnesota to an 8-6 victory over Oakland Wednesday night, completing a three-game series sweep Unpleasant for the A's but not unreasonable

Buddy Bradford—who doesn't usually do that sort of thing—walloped a grand slam homer in the eighth inning that brought Cleveland from behind for a 6-5 victory over Washington Unpleasant for the Senators and unexpected too

Elsewhere in the American League Wednesday night, Baltimore roared from behind to beat New York 9-8, Chicago nipped Milwaukee 2-1, Detroit shaded Boston 3-2 and California edged Kansas City 3-2

Increased Averages

Oliva who increased his batting average to .332, third best in the American League, provided a major part of the Minnesota's offense against Oakland and the Twins needed all the runs they got

The A's knocked out Jim Perry with a ninth inning rally that included Dave Duncan's three-run homer But Ron Perranoski came out of the bullpen to nail down Perry's 13th victory

Oliva had three singles: a two-run homer and a sacrifice fly, driving in four runs and scoring two Rich Reese also homered for the Twins

Bradford, who carried a .189 batting average and two homers into Cleveland's game against Washington, exploded for his first career grand slam in the eighth inning as the Indians wiped out a 5-1 Senators' lead

The slam followed an RBI-single by Tony Horton that narrowed the lead to 5-2 and knocked out starter George Brunet Darold Knowles relieved and walked Chuck Hinton, setting the stage for Bradford's blast

It was Cleveland's fourth straight victory over the Senators

Frank Robinson's second homer of the game started a three-run Baltimore rally in the ninth inning that moved the Orioles past the Yankees Don Buford, who had opened the game with a homer for the Birds capped the winning rally with a two-out, two run single after reliever Lindy McDaniel had struck out two straight batters with the bases-loaded and none out

The Yankees had come from behind to take the lead on eighth inning homers by John Ellis and Curt Blefary. Thurman Munson also homered for New York and Boog Powell connected for Baltimore

Detroit took over second place in the AL East with Gates Brown's ninth inning pinch sacrifice fly driving in the winning run, after two walks and a wild pitch got pinch runner Elliott Maddox around to third

The Tigers had taken a 2-1 lead in the eighth on rookie Ken Szotkewiecz' homer but Billy Conigliaro's RBI single tied it for Boston in the ninth Willie Horton also homered for the Tigers

Jim Fregosi beat a throw to the plate on Ken McMullen's bouncer delivering California's winning run against Kansas City in the ninth inning after the Royals had rallied for two runs in the top of the ninth to tie the score

Rookie Tom Bradley, making his first major league appearance had KC shut out on three hits until he was knocked out in the ninth. Reliever Ken Tatum came on and gained credit for the victory.

Miller Electric and Fox Sox remained tied for the lead in the Erb Park Division of the Appleton Little League while I Bahcall and Northwest Supply continue to run away with the lead in their respective divisions after play the past week

The Erb Park Division co-leaders each won a pair of ballgames last week Miller Electric beat Berggren's twice, 8-3 and 11-2. Mark Lemons hurled a one-hitter in the first victory for Fox Sox, a 6-1 margin over Northside Advancement. They came back to beat the same foe, 11-3, later in the week.

Appleton Coated was I. Bahcall's victim this week, 11-3, as the Kiwanis Division champions are now 12-0. A pair of wins pushed Fox River Paper from last place to a tie for second in the same division. They whipped Appleton Coated, 15-4, and nipped Hennes Trucking, 6-5. Hennes held on to its share of second with a 7-5 triumph over McDonalds.

Clinch Title

Northwest Supply clinched the title of the McKinley Division with two victories last week, which lifted their season log to 12-1. The division champions nipped Badger Highway, 1-0, in extra innings despite the one-hit pitching of Tom Rogers who also fanned 18. Northwest won the second meeting, 15-6 The Police Department whipped S S.A.C., 3-2, before dropping the second game, 11-10. In the only other Kiwanis games, C.W. Transport slashed Post-Crescent, 8-1 and 8-4

Only a game and a half separate the top three teams in the Linwood Division. V.F.W. is on top after two wins over last place Teamsters, 15-6 and 18-16. Jenkel Oil held on to second place by splitting with third place Bauer Truck, 3-1 and 0-3.

Swim Event To be Held In Menasha

MENASHA — A field of more than 1,000 entries is anticipated for the Wisconsin Long Course AAU Junior Olympics Boys swimming meet Saturday and Sunday at the Municipal Pool.

The meet, for boys ranging in age from eight to 17 years of age, is sponsored by the Menasha Recreation Department and Neenah-Menasha YWCA.

This is the first time the meet has been held outside of Milwaukee. It is the first step to the nationals in Knoxville, Tenn. in August

Warmups for the 10 and under and 11 and 12 age divisions are scheduled from 8 to 8:45 a.m. Saturday with the meet starting at 9 a.m.

Competition for the 13-14, 15-17 and open age divisions is slated to begin at 10 a m Sunday.

Swimmers will be competing for individual honors only since no team standings are kept. Events include butterfly, backstroke, freestyle, breaststroke and relays.

Starr, Zeke Share Spotlight in Pro-Am

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Bart Starr and Zeke Bratkowski took most of the gallery with them, but Lary Ziegler of Bridgeton, Mo.; Jacky Cupit of Dallas, Tex., and three Milwaukee amateurs took the awards Wednesday in the pro-am feature of the $110,000 Greater Milwaukee Open golf tournament.

The two Green Bay Packers —quarterback Starr and assistant coach Bratkowski—grabbed the spotlight from the pro golfers as fans flocked around the footballers for autographs.

But Ziegler, firing a five-under-par 67 despite high winds and sometimes heavy rain, won the first place money of $500. One stroke behind Ziegler were Chi Chi Rodriguez, Pete Brown and Rod Funseth, all with 68s.

Tied at 69 were Ken Still, the defending champion, and four other pros.

Cupit and a trio of Milwaukee amateurs—Bill Sarver, Tom Williams and John Hafey—won best ball team honors with a 17-under-par 55.

Ron Cerrudo and his partners —Milwaukeeans Glenn Francke, Ted Hands and Fred Vogel II—finished second with a total of 56.

Starr played with pro Steve Eichstaedt of Milwaukee; Bob Crichton, GMO president, and Jerry Harrison of Milwaukee.

"I don't know what I actually shot," Starr said, "because in best ball shooting you pick up as soon as one of the players has the lowest possible score. But I think I would have shot around 83 had I played out each hole"

Eichstaedt, a native of Miami, Fla., who now is playing out of North Shore Country Club, site of the GMO, fired a two-over-par 74. He blamed poor putting for not having scored better.

Bratkowski's team had a best ball total of 61. The pro partner was Dean Refram.

The only Wisconsin pro besides Eichstaedt in the pro-am, Bobby Brue of Ozaukee, shot an even par 72.

The 144-man GMO field was to tee off today. The 72-hole tourney concludes with an 18-hole round Sunday.

Wisconsin OUTDOORS

BY JIM HARP
Post-Crescent Outdoor Editor

Because a major portion of the Upper Fox River and its tributary lakes and streams in Marquette, Columbia and Adams Counties is to be chemically treated to eliminate carp during the next six to eight months, a unique opportunity to harvest fish is being offered fishermen by the Department of Natural Resources.

Effective immediately, fishermen can catch any species of fish in the waters posted with no bag limit or size limit by hand, spear or bow and arrow. They can also use dip nets up to eight feet square, minnow seines up to 25 feet in length, or any number of hooks on any number of lines as long as they are attended.

Fishermen will also be able to use setlines with up to 100 hooks, but they are reminded that a setline license is required and that all rules and regulations pertaining to setlines will be enforced. Setline licenses can be purchased at the office of the county clerk in each county for $1.25.

Yellow Signs

The waters opened for unlimited fishing during the period before treatment will be marked with yellow signs designating the special regulations.

Lakes and streams to be included in the special open season are:

Amy Pond, Adams County; McCall Lake, Adams and Marquette counties; Mason Lake, Adams and Marquette counties; Muir (Ennis Lake), Buffalo Lake, Williams Lake, Bright Lake, Polly Lake and Goodhul Lake, all in Marquette County.

The Upper Fox River, Columbia and Marquette counties immediately below Swan Lake to the dam on Buffalo Lake at Montello; French Creek, Columbia County below Dates Pond; Big Slough, Columbia County; Neenah Creek, below Oxford Pond and Mason Lake in Marquette, Adams and Columbia counties; Chapman Creek, Marquette County and Ox Creek, Marquette County below the Emery Lake Dam.

Excluded from the special open season are the following waters:

Spring Creek DNR rearing pond in the French Creek Wildlife Area, Columbia County; Oxford Pond and all waters above on Upper Neenah Creek, Marquette and Adams counties and Dates Pond in Columbia County.

Should be Harvested

The Upper Fox River and tributary waters contain many thousands of pounds of catfish, carp and other game fish that should be harvested by fishermen before the chemical is applied. Fishermen with a hankering for smoked carp will find thousands of live carp concentrated in the drawn-down river channels.

Fishermen interested in filling the freezer are reminded to ask permission of property owners and to remove all fish caught. It is also suggested that they clip and save this notice to make certain that they are fishing in the areas designated in the special open season.

After the Fox River system is chemically treated, the signs will be removed and fishing regulations will revert to normal.

J. J. Smith Wins Feature

2,450 Fans Watch Stock Car Races At Fairgrounds

SEYMOUR — Appleton's J J Smith rode to victory in the feature race at the Fairgrounds Speedway here Wednesday night before 2,450 racing fans.

Smith, who had the night's fast time on the half-mile clay track, beat New London's Roger Paul, Green Bay's Dan Johnson and Tilleda's Bob Maas, second, third and fourth place finishers respectively in the feature. Smith's top time was 27:01 seconds in the time trials

Corby Van Loryman, Green Bay won the first heat with Carl Prelipp, Seymour, second and Bob White, Sr., Green Bay, third. In the second heat, Lee Hammond of Shawano was the winner ahead of Johnson, and Berlin's Willie Schappenhorst.

Paul edged Smith in the third heat with Green Bay's Roger Perrott running third. Len Zellner of Green Bay copped the fourth heat. Maas was second and Bob Kleinschmidt of Oshkosh ended in third.

Van Loryman finished first in the semi-feature. The Green Bay driver edged Hammond and Prelipp who garnered second and third respectively.

Sub-Par Rounds Top FVGC Loop

KAUKAUNA — Pete Benson and Tom Hanby fired 1-under par rounds of 35 to share honors in the Fox Valley Golf Club Twilight League.

Runnerup with an even par was Gene Ploetz while scores of 37 were posted by Jim Minkebige, George Manders and Wayne Heilman. Look Drugs topped Thilco 14-6 to take over first place in the Acushnet Division with 95 points. E-Z Glide Doors dropped to second with 92 points after losing a 13-7 decision to Reynebeau Floral.

Hietpas Inc. held first in the First Flight Division with 87 points, two ahead of Keglers Club.

Valley Units Travel To McCoy Saturday

MADISON — About 3,800 Wisconsin Army National Guardsmen and attached U.S. Army Reservists Saturday will move from cities throughout Wisconsin to Camp McCoy for annual summer training. Some 500 military vehicles will be used to transport troops and equipment.

Units from the Fox Valley involved in the training under the 32nd Infantry Brigade headquartered in Milwaukee are:

1st Battalion of the 127th Infantry, headquarters and headquarters companies out of Green Bay, Campany A, Marinette and Clintonville; Company B, Manitowoc and Two Rivers; and Company C, Plymouth and Sheboygan.

2nd Battalion of the 127th Infantry, headquarters and headquarters company out of Appleton, Company A, Waupun and Ripon; Company B, Fond du Lac; and Company C, Oshkosh and Berlin.

Company D

Part of Company D of the 132nd Support Battalion out of Appleton also will be involved.

This will be the second major encampment for Wisconsin Army Guardsmen. Some 4,000 completed their training in June. Guard officials again are making a special effort in planning the military convoy movements so that most of the military vehicles will be off major highways by 1 p.m. Saturday.

The convoys will begin leaving their home armories Saturday morning with the first unit leaving Milwaukee at 7:30 a.m. Guard vehicles will begin arriving at Camp McCoy about noon. The last unit will arrive at McCoy about 2 p.m.

Aircraft control will be used to monitor and adjust the movement of vehicles. Guard officials announced that close coordination with the Wisconsin State Patrol and county and local police authorities is being made throughout the movement.

Convoy Routes

Convoys traveling from the northeast will use Wisconsin highways 141, 41 and 21; from the southeast, I-90/94 and 21; from the east I-90/94, 12, 21 and 26; and from the west I-90, 21 and 27. Units in the northern part of the state completed their training in June.

Major General James J. Lison Jr., adjutant general of Wisconsin, said "Police authorities have done an outstanding job in assisting the National Guard during these motor movements, and are commended for their help and cooperation."

Lison joined with civilian officials in requesting the cooperation and patience of motorists during the hours military convoys are on the roads. Civilian traffic may want to use other highways, whenever practical, to avoid unnecessary congestion, Lison said.

Military police will be stationed at critical points to assist civilian authorities in traffic control. Information concerning the return movement of Guard units to home stations on July 25 will be released earlier that week.

Lison emphasized that during the summer months, a large number of Army Reserve units and National Guard units from other states use Wisconsin highways. He pointed out that the Wisconsin National Guard has control of the movement of their own vehicles only. The public should be aware that other military convoys will be using Wisconsin highways Saturday and on almost every weekend through August.

Phone Firm Hearing Set

Complaints Charge Poor Service in Oconto County Area

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

MADISON — Protests over allegedly poor quality service and a proposed rate hike by the General Telephone Co. of Wisconsin in the Lakewood and Wabeno exchanges in Oconto County will be considered in a public hearing to be held by the state Public Service Commission.

The agency ordered the hearing held on July 22 in response to a petition submitted by the Townsend Businessmen's Association and signed by 620 residents of the towns of Townsend and Lakewood in Oconto County.

The hearing, to be held at the Townsend Town Hall, will begin at 9 a.m.

The petition charges that telephone service in the area has deteriorated to the point that it is no longer practical for businessmen to subscribe to telephone service.

Rate Increase

"In general, our service is very inadequate and now we have received a notice of a rate increase," states the petition.

"We are unable to obtain private phone service or even a two or three party line. We still have as many as five to eight on most of the lines and this includes four or five business firms.

"We find our phones either busy or out of order most of the time," the petition alleges.

"In 1964 we submitted a similar petition to your office and since this time our service has gradually depreciated to a point where we find it no longer practical to subscribe to telephone service in our area," the petitioners told the commission.

Game Wardens Should Help to Fight Pollution

MENASHA (AP)—Thomas P. Fox of Chilton, candidate for the Democratic nomination for secretary of state, said Wednesday the state should use game wardens in the battle against pollution.

"Conservation wardens are among the best trained and most respected law enforcement officers in the state and their assistance would be a great asset to the antipollution program," Fox said in remarks prepared for a gathering of Neenah-Menasha Democrats.

"That the logical enforcement agency has been used so minimally in this area is quite surprising," Fox said.

Sheriff Candidate Files His Papers

Henry J. Hofacker, route 1, Hortonville, has filed nomination papers declaring his intent to run as a Republican candidate for Outagamie County Sheriff. Hofacker is a farmer in the Town of Ellington.

Other Republican candidates for sheriff include Philip M. Calkings, Village of Shiocton Police Chief, and Donald J. Heinritz, Appleton, a former Outagamie County Sheriff and undersheriff.

They are opposing Democratic incumbent Sheriff Calvin Spice.

Erickson Vows Positive Politics

RHINELANDER (AP)— John Erickson, Republican Candidate for the U.S. Senate, Wednesday attacked "old politicians of both parties who preach the old politics, pandering to the prejudices and fears that lurk within all of us."

"I will leave it to my opponent to continue mouthing the slogans of the old politics," Erickson said in remarks prepared for a Rhinelander woman's group.

Erickson said he would talk only of "what's good about America tempered with positive, realistic suggestions of how I would help meet the nation's ills."

NEW YORK (AP) — Sen. Margaret Chase Smith, R-Maine, the only woman in the Senate, has undergone a successful operation to replace the joint and socket of her right hip.

A spokesman for Harkness Pavilion of Columbia Presbyterian Medical Center said Mrs. Smith, who is 72, "came through in fine shape" during the lengthy surgery Wednesday.

The operation usually is performed on persons suffering from severe arthritis.

Warren Orders Probe Into Alleged Abuses by Trailer Park Operators

MADISON (AP)— Atty. Gen Robert Warren has announced plans to investigate alleged absues by mobile home park operators who also sell mobile homes.

If the allegations are proved, Warren said, he will ask the Department of Agriculture to adopt rules governing competition and trade practices in the industry.

Warren said his office had received complaints that some of the operators refuse to rent space to those who own their own trailers. The operators also allegedly charge arbitrary "hook-up" fees and require renters to purchase accessories and fuel from the trailer park.

Nonstop Flight To Omaha OK'd For North Central

North Central Airlines, which stops in Green Bay and Oshkosh, Wednesday was awarded new nonstop route between Minneapolis-St. Paul and Omaha, by the Civil Aeronautics Board (CAB).

Hal N Carr, North Central chairman, said the airline will provide the first competitive nonstop service in this market with the inauguration scheduled for Sept. 8. Four nonstop flights with 100-passenger DC-9 fan jets will operate daily during prime travel periods to fill existing traffic needs.

North Central's service on this route is estimated to generate revenues of over $1 million and an operating profit of $100,000 during the first year, the CAB estimated.

"We think it undisputable that this award will strengthen North Central within its existing area of operation," the CAB said.

Giant Landholders Target of Cut in Subsidy Payments

WASHINGTON (AP) — In an unexpected turnabout, the Senate has voted a $20,000 annual limit on the amount a farmer can be paid for not growing crops. The proposal is given a good chance of becoming law.

Chief targets of the move are lush crop-subsidy payments to large corporations, banks, state governments and other giant land holders who have received individual payments of more than $4 million for keeping land out of production.

The proposal would impose the limit on wheat, cotton and feed grains.

Sen. James O. Eastland, D-Miss., who last year received $146,000 in subsidy payments on his Sunflower County, Miss., cotton plantation, voted against the measure which curbs payments to producers of wheat, cotton and feed grains.

Earlier Rejected

Just a year ago the Senate refused, 53 to 34, to approve an identical subsidy limit. Spurred by arguments the program has strangled the small family farm it was supposed to help and angered city dwellers, the Senate approved it, 40 to 35, Wednesday.

The vote, which surprised aides of Sen. Ralph T. Smith, R-Ill., who introduced the amendment, highlighted action on the pending agricultural appropriations bill for fiscal 1971.

But the Senate also voted $500 million to enable expansion of the food-stamp program for needy families and increased loan and grant funds to help rural communities build water treatment and sewerage facilities.

Similar Measures

The subsidy curb is expected to win acceptance in the House which twice has passed similar measures only to see them killed in conference with the Senate.

Rep. Paul Findley, R-Ill., served notice on his House colleagues that he plans to try to instruct the House conferees in advance of bargaining sessions with the Senate to agree to the payment limitation.

Findley offered an amendment to set a $20,000 limit on payments for each commodity when the House considered the agriculture money bill in June but it was defeated on a voice vote. Opponents, at that time, pointed to a general farm bill pending in the House Agriculture Committee as the proper vehicle for such a limitation.

Broad Support

'This action by the Senate demonstrates that a payment limitation has broad-based support among farmers and nonfarmers alike," Findley said in a "Dear Colleague" letter which he released.

However, Findley said based on past experience he feels that the House-Senate conference committees which would be named at a later time to iron out differences in the bills "will most likely drop any payment limitation amendment."

It is for that reason, Findley said, that he plans to try to have the House conferees instructed in advance to agree to the limitation.

2 Environmental Agencies Created

By STAN BENJAMIN
Associated Press Writer

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Nixon signed today reorganization plans to place environment protection and manageme nt under tow new agencies.

The plans, to take effect unless Congress vetoes them, would create an independent Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) charged with the fight against all forms of environmental pollution, and a National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) within the Commerce Department.

The White House said the proposed antipollution agency would have an estimated budget of $1.4 billion, and 5,650 employees.

The Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration, although larger with some 12,000 employees, would have an estimated 1971 budget of some $270 million.

Interior Department

The reorganization cuts deeply into the functions of the Interior Department, and to a lesser but still major extent into the functions of the Department of Health, Education and Welfare.

EPA would take over from interior the Federal Water Quality Administration which directs efforts to combat water pollution.

From health, education and welfare, EPA would take the National AKIR Pollution Con Administration; solid waste, water hygiene, and some radiation safety functions; and the pesticides program of the Food and Drug Administration.

EPA would also absorb pesticide control activities of the Agriculture and Interior departments; the Federal Radiation Council and General Radiation protection activities of the Atomic Energy Commission; and the Ecological Research Function of the Council on Environmental Quality.

Weather Bureau

Drawn into the NOAA would be the Environmental Science Services Administration—the agency that includes the Weather Bureau—accounting for some 10,000 of its anticipated 12,000 personnel.

It would also incorporate from the Interior Department the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries, the marine minerals program of the Bureau of Mines, and the marine sports fishing program

Who Really Owns U.S.?

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sen. Lee Metcalf called today for an investigation into who owns and controls America.

The Montana Democrat introduced a bill to set up an 11-member Senate special committee to investigate economic and financial concentration.

Concentration of economic power and financial control among major United States industries and financial institutions justify an investigation, Metcalf said.

"The Senate has asserted itself in the field of foreign affairs," he said. "It is time for the Senate to assert itself in domestic affairs."

In a speech accompanying introduction of the bill, Metcalf outlined concentration of power and interlocks among giant empires in the fields of finance, transportation, energy, communications, manufacturing and insurance.

"The degree of interrelationship (between these firms) is not known to the Congress, the executive branch, the courts or the public," he said. "Nor is the true control over the respective areas of commerce by these companies known.

"One thing is obvious" he added. "The imbalance between the top and everybody else is awesome."

Crashed Into Mountain

General's Copter Found Wrecked

SAIGON (AP) — Military sources said late today the wreckage of a missing helicopter with Maj. Gen. George W. Casey, commander of the 1st Air Cavalry division, and six other Americans aboard had been located by searchers.

The sources said the helicopter apparently had crashed into a mountain Tuesday morning. There was no immediate confirmation that anyone had survived the crash, they added.

air by crewmen of one of the more than 60 aircraft that had taken part in a massive search.

As the search was being conducted, the U.S. Command announced that a total of 61 Americans were killed in action last week, the lowest weekly total in 3½ years.

Location Secret

Informants said the location of the helicopter wreckage was being withheld because no ground troops had as yet reached the scene to inspect it and look for survicors.

The U.S. Command had no comment on the reports of the wreckage being found, saying only that the search and rescue operation was discontinued at nightfall and was to be resumed Friday morning.

The sources said there was no indication that enemy action was involved in the crash of the helicopter, which Casey, 48, of North Scituate, Mass., was flying to visit wounded members of his division at a medical facility in South Vietnam.

The location of the hospital, like other details concerning the site of the crash, were withheld for security reasons while the search continued.

Gen. Casey's UH1 Huey helicopter was last heard from at 10:10 a m Tuesday, and searchers have found neither the craft nor its occupants, the command said. There was no indication whether enemy action was believed responsible for the disappearance.

Six U.S. generals were killed in action earlier in the war, including two earlier this year.

The command's weekly casualty summary reported 463 Americans wounded last week in addition to 61 killed. These figures brought the total American casualties in action that have been reported in the war to 42,919 killed, 282,966 wounded and 1,442 missing or captured.

Lowest Toll

It was the lowest weekly death toll since Dec. 3, 1966.

South Vietnamese headquarters reported 371 government troops killed and 1,027 wounded in action last week, bringing government casualties since Jan. 1, 1960, to 110,175 killed and 231,631 wounded.

The two allied commands claimed 1,395 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese killed last week, and 655,145 since Jan. 1, 1961.

The U.S. Command also released American casualty totals for the eight-week Cambodian operation, reporting 354 Americans killed and 1,689 wounded April 29 — June 30.

No major fighting was reported today in South Vietnam or Cambodia.

"Activity continued at a low level and was characterized by light and scattered ground contacts and light attacks by fire (shelling)," a spokesman said of the situation in Vietnam.

Shot Down

An OH6 observation helicopter was reported shot down and destroyed in Binh Dinh Province north of Saigon, with one American crewman wounded.

Although the Cambodian military spokesman in Phnom Penh reported no fighting anywhere in his country today, sources at Thailand's defense ministry in Bangkok said Thai troops have taken up positions at strategic points on the Thai-Cambodian border as a result of "shooting incidents" between Thai border police and Communist forces in Cambodia.

The sources said that so far no major deployment of troops had taken place, that only company-sized units were involved. However, all Thai troops in the northeast provinces of Thailand are in a "state of readiness," one source said.

Other sources said Thai police exchanged fire last week with a force of about 30 Communists pursuing Cambodian soldiers who were fleeing across the border. Later T28 bombers of the Thai Air Force crossed the border to bomb an ammunition dump the Cambodians left behind.

Defoliant Program

The U.S. Command in Saigon also indicated it has no plans to revive its controversial defoliation program, the spraying of jungle areas and rice fields with plant-killing herbicides to deny the eneny protective cover and food.

Command spokesman said the Air Force's 12th Special Operations Squadron will be deactivated, resulting in a reduction of 166 men.

This outfit, known as the Ranch Hands, flew the specially outfitted C123 cargo planes that did the spraying. Their operations were cut back 90 per cent in April when scientific reports in the United States forced the Defense Department to stop using the squadron's primary herbidice, and later the C123s were stripped of their spraying equipment and put to work hauling captured enemy supplies out of Cambodia.

Deactivation of the Ranch Hands is the first individual cut to be announced for the fourth phase of President Nixon's troop withdrawal program, under which American troop strength is to be reduced 50,000 men more by Oct. 15.

Factionalism at World Meeting

Youth Assembly Starts in Turmoil

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) — The opening of the World Youth Assembly at U.N. headquarters today was enlivened by a Puerto Rican factional fight, Soviet attempts to bar Nationalist Chinese, South Koreans and South Vietnamese, and a Yippie threat to wreck everything.

Before the nine-day meeting's first session in the General Assembly hall, Soviet participants signaled that they would demand the exclusion of Chinese Nationalist, South Korean and South Vietnamese participants because no Chinese Communist, North Korea or North Vietnamese were attending. Hanoi and Pyongyang turned down invitations to send representatives, and Peking ignored them.

Two members of the University of Puerto Rico student council demanded that they be seated in place of the official Puerto Rican participant, who was named by a government-sponsored committee.

The Yippie threat came to light Wednesday when a bushy-haired young man and girl identifying themselves as Isaac and Lynn Yippie tried to register as representatives of the Woodstock Nation.

They said they represented the Youth International Party—the Yippies—and the young man said he was the party's finance minister. They said they lived on New York's Lower East Side and that their "slaves names" were Haber and Borland.

The couple had trouble getting through to assembly officials and finally were told to come back today. Isaac said that if he did not get in, "we're going to wreck this conference."

On the eve of the opening, 628 participants had registered from 110 U.N. member countries, several nonmember countries, some colonies and many international organizations.

Theodorakis

The best known is Greek composer Mikis Theodorakis, who wrote the music for the films "Z" and "Zorba the Greek" and was recently released from political detention by the Greek military dictatorship. He was admitted as a participant although he is 44—the conference is supposed to be for persons no older than 25.

Mayor John V Lindsay of New York held a reception for the delegates Wednesday night on the lawn of Gracie Mansion, his official residence. He told them he hoped their deliberations would "make people understand that peace is the one subject of young people the world over," regardless of country or political system.

About 75 participants from 13 Arab countries boycotted the reception, accusing the mayor of an "adamant pro-zionist stand."

More Aid to Business Hurt by Imports Said To Have Been Okayed

WASHINGTON (AP) — Sources say a proposal that would liberalize assistance to workers and firms hurt by imports has gained tentative approval of the House Ways and Means Committee.

Approval of the provision, recommended by President Nixon, is subject to reconsideration, sources said.

The assistance adjustment is part of a package of foreign-trade legislation being considered by the committee in closed sessions.

Investigation of Cuban Airlift Started by House

WASHINGTON (AP) — A House subcommittee has begun a probe that could result in elimination of the airlift that has brought 90,000 Cuban refugees into the United States in 4½ years.

Some congressmen contend financing the airlift is an unjustified drain on taxpayers. Others argue that the real effect of the refugee program is to provide transportation for only those Cubans the Castro government wants to let go.

But the State Department says the airlift presents Cubans with an alternative to communism.

The subcommittee on Inter-American Affairs is hearing testimony on all aspects of United States policy with Cuba, including the airlift which costs $800,000 a year. Rep. William Clay, D-Mo., is seeking to cut off funds for the airlift.

Rep. Dante Fascell, D-Fla., subcommittee chairman, said to deny the State Department money for the airlift failed by only five votes in the House last month.

Robert A. Hurwitch, deputy assistant secretary of state, told the subcommittee Wednesday the airlift should be continued for humanitarian, diplomatic and political reasons.

"Experience has indicated that as long as hope for escape to freedom exists, people living under oppression resist committing themselves to the regime's goals," Hurwitch said. "But when escape routes are sealed, accommodation to the inevitable becomes the prevailing attitude."

Berlin Wall

Hurwitch compared the situation in Cuba with the division of Germany. When the Berlin Wall was erected, barring escape to the West, the East German population had no choice but to accommodate to the Communists, he said

"The refugee airlift, a route to freedom, forestalls the certainty of accommodation to communism by the Cuban people," the State Department officer said.

The airlift, using chartered planes, was begun in December 1965 and brings an average of 3,500 Cubans a month into Miami.

Wednesday he knows of no member of his panel who is opposed to the airlift. But a move

Package Drug Plan Gets Nod

County Proposes Squad

A package plan to curb Outagamie County's mushrooming drug-abuse problem was approved Wednesday night by the Courts and Justice Committee. It will come before the full County Board Tuesday.

The proposal embodies Dist. Atty. James R. Long's plan to create a three-man narcotics squad, and a county coordinator to carry "pertinent, state approved" educational programs to schools while seeking rehabilitation services for those who need care.

An amendment to the proposal stipulates that should the County Board okay the resolution, it would not become effective until 60 per cent of the operating funds were approved by the Wisconsin Council on Criminal Justice at its state meeting in late July.

Pilot Program

Conceivably, the program could be implemented as early as August, according to Committee Chairman Paul Huseby, who conferred Wednesday night with Daniel Van De Hey, assistant regional director for criminal justice planning.

Forty per cent, or the balance of the funds must come from the county pocketbook. The 60 per cent figure covers a proposed three-year pilot program.

Selection of three investigators and the coordinator would be made through the district attorney's and sheriff's offices, with the approval of the Courts and Personnel Committees.

Initially, the personnel would be under the jurisdiction of both departments.

The resolution calls for hiring three men already experienced in the field of drug abuse, with a salary to be commensurate to their experience, but not to exceed $11,000.

Supv. John Schreiter, Appleton, defined the role of the coordinator as "the realm of rehabilitation and education." He would definitely not be an arm of law enforcement Schreiter said.

Drug Education

A coordinator will initiate curricula in schools with the cooperation of the school administrators, under the direction of CESA 8. Emphasis will be on those programs approved by the State Ad Hoc Committee on Drug Abuse.

Secondly, the coordinator would act as the executive secretary to the county's commission on drug and alchohol abuse when such a commission is formed.

The plan would cost about $25,000 for the remainder of 1970.

Clintonville Schools Seek 9.5 Per Cent Increase in Budget

Proposal Totals $1,818,773

CLINTONVILLE — The proposed school budget for 1970-71 — set this week at $1,818,773 — represents a 9½ per cent increase over last year's budget.

Voters will be asked to approve the amount at the annual meeting July 27.

The budget, recommended by the Board of Education at its special session Tuesday, will require a mill increase to 19.67 per $1,000 assessed valuation from this year's rate of 18.81.

Supt. V. J. Wadleigh explained that the largest increase is for salaries, which comprise more than 68 per cent of the total budget. Increased enrollments and an expanded program have necessitated adding to the staff, he said.

Increase in Valuation

The district's valuation has increased by $6,339,412, Wadleigh stated, which resulted in a decrease in state aids.

Many capital outlay items, instructional supplies and maintenance items were cut from the original budget in order to hold the tax levy down to 19.67, he said.

Cut from the budget are any major improvements to the Gauerke property last year as an addition to the high school site. Also reduced or eliminated were additional playground equipment for Longfellow and Bear Creek, audio-visual equipment, remodeling and maintenance projects, as well as furniture replacement.

Administration costs are up from $47,091 to $65,967. Included are $2,400 for an appraisal of the buildings and contents, and the addition of a business manager.

Instruction Costs

Cost of instruction will rise from $1,005,015 to $1,191,786, of which $1,035,992 is for teachers' salaries. Negotiated salary increases amounted to $124,684, and five additional staff members will cost $37,885. Increased costs in textbooks, library books and supplies and materials also added to the total.

The board will seek to hire a qualified school nurse to serve the schools of the district, and $5,000 is budgeted for this shared expense.

Costs of transportation will be down from last year — $142,368 to $124,538. The board will continue to purchase two vehicles each year in an effort to phase out leased buses. Four buses were purchased during the last school year.

Operation, Maintenance

Plant operational costs are up from $116,340 to $119,071. Largest increases are in higher prices for janitorial supplies and salaries of janitorial staff.

Maintenance costs are up from $31,204 to $34,352. Service contracts and repair and cleaning of business education equipment, industrial arts machines, band instruments, and salaries all show increases for next year.

Reduction in federal reimbursement and increases in the number of free meals served to needy children resulted in a deficit in the school lunch program of approximately $8,000 this past year. Increases in the price of meals for 1970-71 authorized by the board will reduce this to $1,200.

Even though debt service payments are down from $150,948 to $129,772, principal and interest on bonding or borrowing for building is up $18,000, it was noted. The reduction is the repayment of a $40,000 short term loan incurred by the former Bear Creek school district.

Capital outlay will be down from last year's $91,163 to $74,827. Major capital outlay items include some equipment for the new bus garage, metal fabrication equipment for the vocational training program improvement of stage lighting and meeting rooms will take

New London Council Gets First Look

Question Safety Building Plan

NEW LONDON — City Council members were given a view of the preliminary sketch of the safety building at the last council meeting.

Leonard Urban, of Rice and Urban, designers of the building, presented the sketches.

Most noticeable, for their absence, was the lack of any quarters for full time firemen, or for the custodian-chief engineer arrangement the city now has.

Ald. Jerome Freiburger questioned if any provisions had been made for living quarters for firemen. Urban told him that some of the space in the upper part of the building could be used for quarters for about five men.

Ald. Elmer Hebbe asked if there had been plans for housing the engineer the city now employs. Mayor S. W. Krostue stated that there were no quarters provided "according to this plan."

None Full Time

Urban told the council that most of the departments he and the building committee had visited did not have any full time men. In most cases, according to Urban, the police department answered the fire phone and put in the fire alarm. Some of the departments had fire phones at several locations and whoever answered them put in the alarm.

At the present time New London has one man who is employed as building custodian and chief engineer for the department. He answers the fire phone, alerts the firemen, and takes the first truck to the location of the fire.

This allows the volunteers to report directly to the scene of the fire, without having to think about who will bring the truck.

If the city should change its system, to one of having the police answer the phone, no truck will leave the station until the first engineer arrives.

Questions were raised by the aldermen about other aspects of the building, and Mayor S. W. Krostue stated that the plans were only in their preliminary state.

In his plans, Urban had the project divided into two phases, the safety building, and municipal offices and meeting rooms.

At the present time the council has bonded for the safety building. To build the offices separate action by the council.

Urban told the council that it would be most economical to authorize his firm to design the building to have adequate heating, air conditioning, and utilities to handle both phases of the building.

He told the council that the city offices and meeting room section of the building should be totally planned in order to know the capacity required of the equipment to be installed in the safety building.

Since the city's agreement with Urban and Rice only calls for preliminary sketches of the municipal offices and meeting rooms, he requested an additional $4,500 for the complete plans. This amounts to about four percent of the estimated $120,000 the addition will cost.

The council gave him unanimous approval for the funds for the complete planning.

Bear Creek Woman Is Rescued

BEAR CREEK —The alarm of a neighbor seeing smoke and flames coming from the home of a sleeping woman Tuesday night summoned the Bear Creek volunteer fire department before she was injured seriously.

Mrs. Minnie Balthazor reported the fire almost simultaneously with the alarm of Thomas Bechard, a fireman, who was driving past the home of Mrs. David Mackin, Bear Creek, when he saw the smoke.

According to the fire department, the davenport was ablaze when they entered the home and Mrs. Mackin was in the bedroom asleep. Firemen carried the davenport outside and hosed it down while the rescue squad gave Mrs. Mackin oxygen.

She was taken to New London Community Hospital and released Wednesday. According to the department, she was ill with a chest cold and had taken a sleeping pill to get to sleep.

Flames consumed the davenport and smoke damaged parts of the house, but firemen had no estimate of damage.

GOP Candidates

Byrnes, LeTendre Seek House Seats

U.S. Rep. John W. Byrnes, senior Republican on the House Ways and Means Committee, today announced he will seek his 14th consecutive term from Wisconsin's Eighth District.

At the same time, Andre LeTendre, Wausau, former national Jaycees president, announced he will seek the Seventh District Congressional seat. LeTendre will run as a Republican.

Brynes, Green Bay, said he was running "because we have a lot of unfinished business in the country and, as a member of Congress, I can help get it done. We've got a war to end, an economy to straighten out and grave domestic problems to solve."

He said that papers placing his name in nomination would be filed with Wisconsin's secretary of state this afternoon. Before his election to Congress, Byrnes served four years in the state Senate.

Byrnes LeTendre

LeTendre, 33, Wausau, was president of the 350,000-member United States Jaycees for one year. As president of the traditionally conservative group, he initiated the Jaycees Nixon-endorsed "Do Something" program, advocating increased involvement by individual citizens in solving the nation's problems.

He will be seeking the seat held by U.S. Rep. David Obey, Democrat from Wausau, who won it after Melvin Laird was named U.S. Secretary of Defense.

Of his candidacy, LeTendre said: "My years of work with the Jaycees in service to people in this district, and then my year as national president, has brought clearly into focus the values and needs as human beings in these troubled times. I have travelled to all 50 states and many foreign countries this past year, and the perspective of America and her great people has fostered this deep desire to continue serving.

"Serving in the United States Congress will give me the opportunity to speak for not only the silent, but the justifiably dissatisfied, majority."

He said his experience, including 12 years in education and mass communications, "has prepared me well to listen to, and then translate into responsive action, the real concerns of the people of this great district."

King Sewer, Water Will Be Discussed

Planners to Air Chain o' Lakes Area's Problems

KING — Residents of the Towns of Dayton, Farmington, Lind, Waupaca and the City of Waupaca will have an opportunity to learn what the sanitation problems and possible solutions are at the Waupaca Council of Government meeting 8 p.m. today in the Amusement Hall at the Grand Army Home.

Arhe Danielsen, superintendent of maintenance at the home, will present facts about its water and sewage treatment facilities.

Joel Grunwaldt, geologist and biologist for Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning commission, will talk about solid waste disposal, and Gene Charles, Northeastern planner, will discuss sewer and water facilities.

"This informational meeting will be a solid basis for good questions on whether or not a sanitary district should be created in the Chain O' Lakes Area," Walter Cura, chairman of WACOG, said. "The summer residents of the Chain are here now. They will, I am certain, be interested in learning how serious our pollution problems are at this time, methods of solving them and the time we have ahead of us in which to plan for this."

Waupaca Meeting

County May Form Health Committee

MANAWA — Invitations to attend the Comprehensive Area Wide Health Planning meeting Tuesday at which the formation of a health resources committee with county-wide representation will be sought have been sent to 300 members of the medical profession, municipal officials, town health officers, county board supervisors and the health agency in Waupaca County.

The meeting will be held at 7:30 p.m. at Cedar Springs Resort here.

"We are crucially interested in getting every man and woman in the county who purchases health services of any kind to be at this meeting," Robert Larson, chairman of the Waupaca County Health Facilities Committee, said.

Maximum Health Care

"Everyone will have an opportunity to express himself and to voluntarily become active in planning maximum health care for Waupaca County," Larson added. "Comprehensive planning, which became law on Nov. 3, 1966, either has been ignored or precipitated a storm in the move to create Partnership for Health.

"We want to become involved in some of the areas of health planning now, rather than wait for the Federal and State governments and their employes to do all of our planning for us," Larson said.

Those attending the meeting will learn the present status of the county in Comprehensive Area Public Health Planning and to give their answers to such questions as what can be done concerning rising medical costs?

— Do you want to go to the Fox Valley area for special medical services and have specialists from that area available for consultation with your doctor in your nearest hospital?

— What kind of medical service do you want in your home city? Is it now available?

— What health services do members of your family need which are not available in this county? Would you want them to be available?

—What ideas do you have on what can be done concerning rising medical costs?

Contract Approved

Weyauwega Council Picks Site for Sanitary Landfill

WEYAUWEGA — The city council approved a proposed contract with Anton Resch for the solid waste disposal site at a special meeting this week.

After meeting with officials of the towns of Weyauwega and Fremont, council members decided to make a separate agreement with Resch to establish a fee for using his property on Heffner Road. The council will sign a $6,000 contract with Resch to take all garbage, refuse, commercial and industrial waste for the city of Weyauwega for a period of one year. The dates of the contract cover a period from July 1, 1970 to June 30, 1971.

Resch agreed to furnish the land, all permits, and insurance. As part of the contract, he will maintain the sanitary landfill site. According to requirements of the Department of Natural Resources, paper must be bagged, cardboard bundled, and all toxic material, brush, wood, and leaves must be kept separate.

No car bodies or large amounts of tires may be dumped at the site. Hours to be maintained at the disposal site are as follows: Tuesdays and Thursdays—8:00 a.m. to 5 p.m., and Saturdays—8:00 a.m. to 12:00 noon.

At the regular meeting of the council on Monday the city terminated its agreement with Clarence Smith, as of July 1, 1970, to use the old city dump on River Road.

A license was issued to Harold Falke, Jr., to collect or tranpsort any garbage, refuse, or commercial or industrial waste within the city limits of Weyauwega. The license, for a fee of $25, was issued for the period from July 1, 1970 to June 30, 1971. The council also adopted Ordinance No. 125 pertaining to the licensing of persons for the above mentioned collection.

John Zehfus, Richard Zehfus, and Paul Penman of Wolf River Sausage Co. appeared before the council to further discuss pre-treatment equipment at the sausage company. Discussion centered on various treatment processes to eliminate grease from going into the city sewer and disposal plant. Plans for financing the project and the possibility of receiving part of the cost on a federal grant were also mentioned. A discussion of project possibilities will be continued at the next council meeting.

Robert Schaefer, representing Glass and Donaldson, city engineers, explained plans for approximately 500 feet of water and sewer mains to be extended on Third Avenue to the new industry, Presto Products, Inc., in Industrial Park. One more hydrant will be added in the extension program. A public hearing on the proposed project will be held at 8 o'clock Monday evening, July 20, in the council room at City Hall.

Alderman Dennis Timm reported that Frank Zaboj had been elected president and Mrs. Darrel Johnson, secretary, of the city's recreation committee. The group is attempting to get more participation in the summer recreation program at the city park.

New Squad Car

The police committee met to decide on the feasibility of purchasing a new squad car for the police department. The committee recommended keeping the old squad car for extra police and city service. Further recommendations will be made at the next council meeting.

The Weyauwega-Fremont Lions Club was granted a special Class "B" retailers license to sell fermented malt beverages on July 25 and 26 at the Waupaca County fairgrounds. The club is sponsoring a Demolition Derby on Saturday and horse races on Sunday.

A committee will investigate the cost and type of insurance needed for the "Little Red Schoolhouse" which has been moved to the city park. A report will be made at the next meeting.

Terms Expire At Stockbridge

STOCKBRIDGE — Terms of two school board commissioners will expire at the annual school district meeting scheduled for 8 p.m., July 27.

Terms expiring are those of Bennet Burg, route 3, Chilton, who completed the unexpired term of Earl Hemauer, and Carlton Loewe, route 1, Hilbert. Nomination will be made from the floor at the annual meeting.

Project Authorized

Stockbridge Plans For Curbs, Gutters

STOCKBRIDGE — The Village Board Monday night authorized plans for curb and gutter projects on five streets, after a petition was received from property owners on two of the streets.

The majority of property owners on Union and Enterprise streets presented the petition. It was noted that residents on Church, School and Davis streets have indicated they also favored the improvements.

Paul Bishop, of McMahon Associates, Menasha engineers, was authorized to draw up plans for the entire project. One property owner on Church Street, present at the meeting, said he would circulate a petition for that area.

Board members said that a public hearing would be scheduled if all property owners did not sign petitions, even though, according to statute, the village could proceed on petitions from the majority.

Bishop also was authorized to make a survey of the bridges on Davis and Union streets and consider the possibility of alleviating water problems. He presented a plan to connect the two bridges and replace the Davis Street bridge at an estimated cost of $10,000.

The board will study the area with Bishop at 7 p.m. July 13 before seeking bids.

In other action, the board authorized asking A. C. Lange, Oconomowoc, to attend the Aug. 4 meeting to discuss prices for street name signs and house numbering in the village. Having street signs installed has been mentioned at several meetings, and it was disclosed that many people living in the community do not know the names of the streets.

Wages for dump attendants were set at $1.65 an hour. It was agreed that one would take charge of emptying the four containers on the streets twice a week, after the board was told of complaints about the odors.

It was mentioned that the containers had been placed on the main street to eliminate littering, with the understanding that businesses in front of which they were stationed should be responsible for emptying them. Trustee Marvin Gerhartz pointed out that having a village employe empty the containers could lead to abuse, and noted that property owners in the rural area were responsible for "picking up their own trash."

President George Hostettler reported that the Village of Sherwood had expressed a desire to share the dump in the Town of Stockbridge with the village.

Hostettler said the village could not disagree with such an arrangement, as long as it was satisfactory to the property owner, the town issued a permit, and expenses were shared. He said that Stockbridge had requested that the village provide the manpower for supervising the dump and share costs.

Authorization was given to Clerk Carl Reichwald to engage a shorthand writer for testimony to be given at the July 13 Board of Review, and to rent a tape recorder, as suggested by the appraiser who did the reassessment.

A letter objecting to assessments levied against the State Bank of Stockbridge was not discussed, but referred to the Board of Review.

The village was notified that a total of $491 in erroneous allocated income taxes was due it from Neenah, Kimberly, New Holstein, Little Chute, Kewaskum, Kenosha, Kaukauna, and the towns of Harrison, Grand Chute, Fond du Lac, Chilton and Charlestown. The village is responsible for $69 in erroneous taxes due Wauwatosa.

A check for $4,685 for income tax apportionment was received as well as $19 for delinquent personal property tax.

Carl Marose again will be contacted to cut weeds for the village and roads recently repaired will be inspected.

Works Board Asks Delay

New London Tables Sewer Assessments

NEW LONDON — The City Council once again tabled action on assessments for the north-side sewer project. The council had held a public hearing on June 30, after voiding action from a prior hearing.

After the hearing on June 30 the council tabled action until the regular meeting of July 7. At this meeting action was again tabled until their regular meeting of July 21.

Chairman of the Board of Public Works, Fred Noack told the council the board wanted the action tabled to allow time for further study of the legal aspects of the assessment.

Board Tour

The board also reported on a tour of the city's southeast sewer project, and said that most of the work was being completed. Donahue and Associates, the city's planning consultants, are presently making an "as-built" map showing the project in its completed stage.

The Park, Recreation and Beautification Committee reported that it had given approval for the Chamber of Commerce to sponsor a circus at the Hatton Park race track, from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Aug. 9.

The committee also approved the use of Pfeifer or Hatton park for a fishing class. The class will be instructed by George Kubisiak and several experienced bait and fly fishermen, and is offered free to boys and girls between the ages of 8 and 15. The class will be held from 2 to 4:30 p.m., Aug. 8.

The city received a telephone tax refund of $8,327. City Clerk Melva Rickaby reported that this was about $241 more than last year's refund.

Ald. Clarence Bauernfeind requested the city to discontinue fogging for mosquitos. He told the council that he felt the program was ineffective. He stated that the city crews should continue larvaciding.

Mayor S. W. Krostue noted that while it was possible that the program was not working, he found it more comfortable around his yard now, than earlier this year. Bauernfeind quipped that it was probably just the weather.

The matter was regerred to the Board of Health.

Man Hits All 25 Birds In Brillion Trap Shoot

BRILLION — Dale Kretschmer downed a perfect 25 clay birds in the Brillion Conservation Club trap shooting league this week. Al Brick, Ken Saenger and Jerry Bruegge hit 24 out of the possible 25.

Others with 20 or better are Evan Dobberfuhl and Wally Sonnabend, 23; Romy Koffarnus and Elver Krueger, 22; Dan Farrell, 21, and Lloyd Wolfmeyer 20.

Bob's Standard Service Station team led the league with 106 birds downed out of a possible 125. Brillion Shoe Center team was second with 97.

6 Run for 2 Brillion School Board Spots

BRILLION — A six-way race has developed here for two berths on the school board.

Incumbent Edward Barth, dairy farmer, is seeking his second three-year term. The other vacancy is for a term formerly held by Robert Rowland who moved from the community.

Earl Pitzner, insurance agent, who served on the school board for 12 years from 1949 to 1961, is again seeking election.

Other school board hopefuls are Don VandeYacht, co-owner of the Kasson Cheese Co.; Pat Culligan, energy sales representative for the Wisconsin Public Service Corp.; Gerald Sonnabend, mechanic at Jentink Chevy-Olds, Inc.; and Orlo Koerth, a dairy farmer.

Polls at the Forest Junction and Brillion Schools will be open 1 to 8 p.m. July 27, the day of the annual meeting.

CLINTONVILLE — Students who will be sophomores here this fall will be invited to participate in orientation sessions for the first time this year.

During the latter part of this monthm and all of August, those students and their parents may request individual conferences with Peter Feira, local guidance director.

The conferences will provide an opportunity to discuss a variety of concerns common to many new high school students. It is believed that many difficulties and much confusion will be eliminated for the students when school opens in the fall.

All sophomores wil be contacted by mail to remind them of this opportunity to talk about their schedules and to take a tour of the school. Conference time will be available from 8 a.m. to 12 p.m. and from 1 to 4:30 p.m. If parents find it impossible to come during these hours, evening conferences may be scheduled.

Students and parents are asked to call Feira at the senior high school to arrange an appointment.

Wittenberg-Birnamwood

New High School Needs More Funds

WITTENBERG — The Board of Education of the Wittenberg-Birnamwood Joint District No. 2 will present a resolution at the annual meeting July 27 that the district be allowed to borrow an additional $72,000 for equipment for the new high school.

Long-range financial plans for the district were discussed at the board's meeting here this week by Harry Kivell, First Wisconsin National Bank of Milwaukee.

It was pointed out that the $72,000 is needed to complete and equip the new high school. Building costs have increased by 10 per cent since the preliminary planning in 1968-69 when it was planned to construct the building for $1.6 million.

Part of the higher cost of materials, it was noted, includes the 1969 state sales tax. Other increases have been felt in labor and interest rates on borrowed money.

Meet Higher Costs

The board plans to meet the increased costs by attempting to provide a total outlay of $1,747,000. Receipts of $1.3 million in bonds and $300,000 from the State Trust Fund already are received. The board expects interest on re-investing the $1.6 million will exceed $100,000 by 1971, and plans to use $75,000 to increase the building fund.

The board will present two other resolutions at the annual meeting: to borrow $123,000 in 1970 and $105,000 in 1972 in State Trust Loans to repay notes of 1962 and 1963.

This follows the original plan to refinance these 10-year notes with trust loans, but it was noted that the interest now is 5½ per cent instead of the 4½ per cent anticipated.

In other business, Supt. E. B. Wickstrom recommended four teacher contracts, which were approved.

New Teachers

Joyce Fields, a graduate of Superior State University with three years experience, will teach art at Birnamwood and Eland, and Alan Clough, a 1968 graduate of Oshkosh State University who recently returned from military service, will teach art at Elderon and Wittenberg.

Mrs. Suzanne Sengstock will teach seventh and eighth grade English at Birnamwood. She graduated from Stevens Point State University and has taught one year each at Shawano and Clintonville.

Roland Hendrikson will teach general science 9 and junior and senior high physical education in addition to serving as assistant foot ball and freshman basket ball coach. He previously taught at Gratiot and Hazel Green and graduated from River Falls State University.

Wickstrom reported that all teaching positions now are filled.

Ernest Bushman was appointed to attend the Cooperative Education Service Agency No. 7 convention Aug. 10.

Outagamie Waste Disposal

Experts to Check Dump Sites

Five technicians were named to a subcommittee Tuesday night to review existing solid waste disposal sites as Outagamie County continued its research into whether it should become involved in future disposal programs.

The subcommittee was set up by the 17-member ad hoc committee authorized by the County Board to probe the question. The subcommittee was formed after technicians presented reports of planning programs in solid waste disposal.

Named to the group were Arno Haering, director of Regional Planning, and Larry Michaels, public works director, both of the Fox Valley Council of Governments (COG); Gerald Paul, chief hydrologist, and Joel Grunwaldt, solid waste disposal planner, both of the Northeastern Wisconsin Regional Planning Commission, and Robert Miller, director of public works at Appleton.

Evaluation Time

Haering said the five had met earlier in the day and agreed they would request that they be formed as a subcommittee to make the investigation. He noted they would need at least 30 days to evaluate existing sites, check zoning, determine the life of existing sites and to find out the favorable and unfavorable characteristics.

"By examining existing sites, we can evaluate the real problems (of solid waste disposal) in the county," said Grunwaldt, who expects to begin a study in Outagamie after completing one in Winnebago.

Some committeemen at first questioned whether this would duplicate COG's study. Haering said COG didn't touch the rural areas of the county.

Supv. Harold Miller, Town of Grand Chute, said he agreed on the subcommittee idea. "There is a lack of information and knowledge," he said.

Supv. Joseph DeBruin, Town of Buchanan, suggested the subcommittee also find out the attitude of the municipalities toward the county setting up one or more disposal sites.

Support County Plan

Speaking for themselves, Haering and Robert Miller said they would support the county taking over the disposal program.

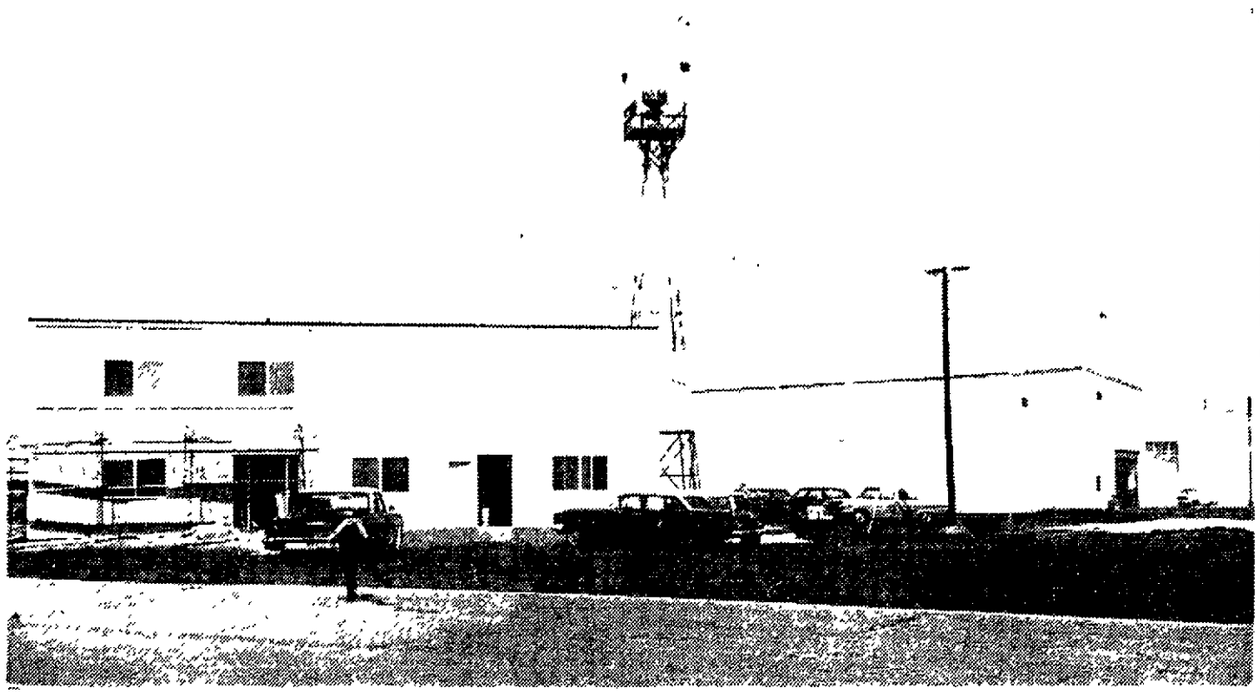
The county contemplation comes during a time when private operators and representatives of Fox Cities communities are seeking to find sites and arrange joint agreements for sanitary landfill disposal sites, the alternative most accepted to open burning which is now outlawed.

Miller called the county the "best vehicle" to overcome the major problem, which is the simple fact that nobody wants anybody else's garbage and rubbish. He also said the county could acquire sites easier, had the large equipment needed for a landfill operation, could provide a uniformity of operation in the county and could as the economic strain a landfill could put on a small community.

He noted that there were disadvantages, too.

Haering urged that the three other subcommittees on legal aspects, liaison and research also should be working on reports to the committee.

Michaels said the county-level program would be desirable but noted the county should have become involved three years ago.



The New Hangar-Type building being constructed at the Clintonville Municipal Airport is nearing completion. The city will lease the $60,000 building to Campbell Air Midwest which will sell a Japanese-made airline and offer a number of services. Adjacent to this building is one constructed earlier for Jet Air, which is also leased from the city. (Laib Photo) in the junior high auditorium and playground equipment.

The electors will be asked to approve the purchase of the Collins property on Sixth Street, for $4,500. Eventually this property would be added to the Longfellow and Junior High schools' playground. The board has an option on the property, but the purchase cost is not included in the budget.

The budget will be officially published next week and a complete summary and explanation of the budget, along with an annual report to the school district, will be available on July 2 to all voters and will be distributed at the budget hearing at 7 p.m. and at the annual meeting at 8 p.m.

Irate Indians to Seek Changes

Menominee Group Opposes Sale of Lake Land to Whites

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

KESHENA — A group of Menominee Indians opposed to the sale of their lake land to white cottage dwellers plan to initiate a movement Saturday to alter the political structure of the organization controlling their land.

The group — formed about 18 months ago and called the Menominee Action Group — is made up of about 75 dissident shareholders in Menominee Enterprises, Inc., the organization which took over control of reservation lands about 10 years ago.

About two years ago, Enterprises contracted with N. E. Isaacson & Associates, Inc., Reedsburg, to develop and sell over 2,000 lots on essentially three major lakes, including Legend Lake. Nearly half the lots, about $6 million in value, have been sold.

The opposition group claims that it is growing, although it's still a minority, and it expects to bring many supporters from Milwaukee and Chicago — former Menominees — to Keshena this weekend to protest the sales and to cast proxy votes for the change in Enterprises political structure.

Area Picketed

About 50 Menominees picketed the Legend Lake area Saturday and Sunday, and as a result, seven were served with summons on a complaint of disorderly conduct signed by George Knote, chairman of the Menominee Common Stock and Voting Trust, the governing body of Menominee Enterprises.

Elanor Riesterer, 147 N. John St., Kimberly, one of the seven charged, said Wednesday that those charged were to confer Wednesday with a Green Bay attorney provided for through the American Civil Liberties Union. She had pleaded innocent to the charge, and the hearing was continued to Monday.

The protests have been at least partially successful in disrupting the lake lot sales. N. E. Isaacson, president of the land developing firm, has cancelled all television, radio and newspaper advertising this week, and will not re-institute the promotion program until at least after this weekend's activities.

"We felt that with the disruption last weekend, and this (weekend), it would be best to let them have their meeting; we're sure it's a minority," said Isaacson.

However, he added that it's only temporary and "We're going to continue the project, regardless." He said that sales will not be shut down.

Ending Voting Trust

Mrs. Riesterer said the Menominee Action Group feels the best way to gain its ends is to eliminate the Voting Trust which is headed by Knote. She claims this group of seven persons controls the election of any of its new members.

"What we're trying to do is get together now and get all proxy votes to vote out the voting trust," she said, noting only a simple majority is needed. Her groups wants the individual Menominee Enterprises shareholders each to have a vote, which they now don't.

She said a representative from Judicare, a federal agency to provide legal counsel for the poor, was assisting in the effort.

Former Menominee residents are expected to arrive in Keshena Friday evening and will set up tents on the Keshena Public School grounds. The tentative schedule is to picket at Legend Lake Saturday morning, and possibly after the afternoon meeting.

She didn't know how many were expected, but predicted that "quite a group" would gather.

She said those coming would be sympathetic with the action group. "We don't want our land sold; we want the land to stay as Menominee land," she said, noting the lake development was ruining the fish spawning beds.

The action group also has sent a petition to Congress through U.S. Rep. David Obey, D-Wausau.

Knote and other officers of Menominee Enterprises have argued that it's a matter of economics. The Menominees are in financial straits and the lake project produces capital, under the 50-50 arrangement with Isaacson, and a much-needed tax base.

Isaacson reported that lots sold to date represent taxable valuation after cottages are built of $12 million to $15 million. Menominee Enterprises had carried about 93 per cent of the tax load.

"We believe it's important to build a tax base, and we have exceeded all expectations," Isaacson said. "It's their only out; it's the best way."

Battery Maker To Build Plant At Appleton

Ray-O-Vac Division Expects to Open Facility Next Year

Owen R. Slauson, general

manager of Ray-O-Vac and vice president of ESB, said the new facility is part of the firm's expansion program.

No construction timetable was reported but production is expected to start next year.

Slauson also reported that Harold C. Meyer, former manager of the Ray-O-Vac plant at Portage, has been appointed to manage the Appleton facility.

Meyer, who received his bachlors degree in mechanical engineering from the University of Wisconsin in 1947, began working for Ray-O-Vac in 1957. He has served as Portage plant manager since the plant's opening in March, 1963.

Prior to joining Ray-O-Vac, Meyer was a mechanical engineer for the federal government for nearly eight years, and also worked for Yates American Machine Co. and Fairbanks-Morse Co., both in Beloit.

Woman Pays Fine for Fest

PORTAGE (AP) — The 79-year-old woman on whose farm a rock festival was held in April was fined $300 Tuesday in Columbia County Court for violation of zoning ordinances.

Mrs. Irene York earlier had pleaded innocent but changed her plea Tuesday to no contest. Judge John McGalloway Jr. of Fond du Lac heard the case after Mrs. York filed a writ of prejudice against Columbia County Judge Daniel C. O'Connor.

Mrs. York was accused of permitting camping in an area not zoned for camping, permitting the erection of a bandstand without a building permit, allowing the parking of vehicles in an agricultural area, and permitting the installation of portable toilets in violation of the sanitary code.

Menasha Boy Drowns While Feeding Ducks

Timothy Meyer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Meyer, 1055 N. Clayton Ave., was pronounced dead on arrival at Theda Clark Hospital. Winnebago County Coroner Art. C. Miller ruled accidental drowning as the cause of death.

The youth's body was found by Michael Van Leishout, 22, 425½ Eighth St., Neenah, who had responded to a request for help from Mrs. Meyer when she found her son's clothes in the duck hut next to the pond.

Van Leishout unsuccessfully attempted to revive the boy after finding him in about 12 feet of water at the deepest end of the duck pond.

Mrs. Meyer told county authorities her son had gone to the John G. Hesselman residence to feed the ducks about 11:30 a.m. When Timothy did not return home for dinner she became worried and went to look for him shortly before 12:30 p.m. The Hesselmans were away on vacation.

He was born Aug. 30, 1958 in Neenah and was a sixth grade student at Trinity Lutheran School.

Survivors include his parents, three sisters, two brothers and grandparents.

Funeral services will be held at 2 p.m. Friday at Trinity Lutheran Church with Vicar Daniel Koelpin officiating. Burial will be in Greenlawn Memorial Park.

Friends may call at the Westgor Funeral Home from 4 to 9 p.m. today and at the church from noon Friday until the time of service.

Time for a Metro Sewerage System

Now is the time for all good men to come to the aid of an anti-pollution project right here in our own bailiwick.

The time is now for the eight municipalities operating sewage disposal plants in the Fox Cities to join together in a regional organization to handle sewerage disposal on a metropolitan basis.

Intensive studies conducted by the Fox Valley Council of Governments prove conclusively that such disposal can be handled more efficiently and economically on a joint basis than by the individual municipalities themselves.

And the municipalities are now under state orders to add tertiary treatment for phosphate removal to their systems and to eliminate the by-passing of storm water by either increasing the volume of sewage they can handle or through storm sewer separation.

The state orders will require multi-million dollar improvements to all the seven existing plants in the metropolitan area. And those funds could be better spent on a long-range solution to the problem through regional action.

We can see nothing but benefit for the taxpaying public through adoption of a metropolitan system. The municipalities involved would be compensated for the present value of their existing plants and relieved of the debt they have incurred in their construction. And in the future they would be assessed a use charge according to the metered volume of sewage they deliver to the regional system. This would take the cost of sewage disposal off the property tax rolls and put it on a use basis where it belongs.

The ideal solution would be one large central disposal plant at Kaukauna handling all the sewage from up-river as far as Neenah and the town of Neenah. The metropolitan system would construct the necessary interceptor lines along the river to collect sewage from one or more central points in each municipality. Construction and maintenance of collector systems within municipalities would be the responsibility of the municipality.

Both the federal and state governments are now committed to the regional approach to sewage disposal and are vigorously opposing the proliferation of small treatment districts and facilities. Thus the likelihood is that individual municipalities will not qualify for federal or state grants to improve their present plants.

We would think that the municipalities involved would be happy to yield jurisdiction over this problem to a regional authority, particularly when it will be to the advantage of their taxpayers in economical operation on a long-term basis.

Should Rock Fests be Prohibited?

Atty. Gen. Robert Warren advocates the prohibition of future rock fests in Wisconsin through the enactment of local zoning ordinances and requiring that permits be secured insuring that health, safety and other legal conditions be met.

The Attorney General issued a general condemnation of rock fests and all the youth who attend them in a speech to the Wisconsin Sheriffs and Deputy Sheriffs Association. He termed the "flower children" a "locust plague."

We agree with Mr. Warren that much better supervision is needed of any such future rock fests in the state. We still cannot understand how the promoters of the recent People's Fair near Iola got by without providing even a minimum of decent sanitary facilities, as one instance. State codes on this subject are explicit, and the state cracks down immediately on even a church picnic if sanitary standards are not met.

But we do not agree that all rock fests should be banned in the state by local legislation which obviates the constitutional freedom of young people to gather together under decent circumstances.

We still cannot understand why Mr. Warren didn't become concerned about the Iola gathering before it occurred. Local, state and federal law enforcement agencies all drew a line around the encampment and agreed to stay out without regard to the indiscriminate flaunting of state laws which took place inside, the drug laws being the best example.

As in any of these situations, the vast majority of young people who went to the gathering were "straight." But through the permissiveness of state and local law officials they were subjected to an invasion of dope pushers of every variety who hauled their merchandise in over the public highways by the truckload. If the attorney general's office didn't know that the pushers were going to invade the gathering, certainly thousands of young people did.

Good Luck, Mr. Bruce

We've never quite understood President Nixon's hesitation to appoint another American head for the peace talks in Paris after the resignation of Henry Cabot Lodge.

At first it seemed merely petulant in view of the fact that the talks seemed to be getting nowhere and the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong demands remained the same. But more likely the failure to send a new head over immediately was part of another diplomatic pitch that didn't quite work. The thinking may have been to indicate that the United States had really given up on the talks and was once more thinking in terms of a military victory. But if this frightened the enemy, they didn't show it. Nor have they made any more concessions, at least any that are public.

Trying to end a war without a clear-cut military victory is a delicate business, we concede. Military advisors continue to hold the hope that the threat of a military defeat for the North Vietnamese and Viet Cong — and the Pathet Lao and Rouge Khmeer now as well — would bring about real negotiations. The move into Cambodia, whatever its real purpose and that is cloudy, also might have given the impression that the United States would not hesitste to expand the war if it seemed necessary. But, due to the reaction at home, that move backfired. Widening the war turned out to be not the way for President Nixon to fulfill his pledge to end it and bring American troops home.

The President's appointee to the peace talks, Ambassador David Bruce, is a man of wide diplomatic experience and intelligence. Perhaps his appointment alone will encourage the other side that we do seek a political rather than a military settlement. But we don't have a great deal of optimism about it. As numerous scholars of the Far East have pointed out, Asiatics, unlike Americans, do not seek instant solutions but are willing to wait and struggle and suffer a long time to reach their goals. We rather imagine they will be content to wait and see whether the United States Congress can force the President to remove all our troops whatever the outcome.

But our good wishes go to Mr. Bruce in the hopes that perhaps his diplomatic skills can salvage something from a sorry misadventure.

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for July 9, 1870.

The projected baseball match between the Everetts of this city and the Appleton club did not occurr on the Fourth, the Appleton club failing to come to time — Oshkosh Northwestern.

Our Boys were in Oshkosh on the Fourth but couldn't get a sight of an "Everett" until night.

They probably kept out of the way, fearing a defeat equal to that received at the hand of the "Stars" on the Saturday previous.

If it is particularly desired, our club will doubtless go up there some fine day and clean those "Everetts" out as bad as the pet Chicago White Stockings have been the past few days! There!

In keeping with wartime restrictions, the presentations were to be made at a high tea instead of the annual Assembly Ball.

Stanford President Resigns; Blames His Troubles on Nixon

BY WILLIAM F. BUCKLEY, JR.

The resignation of Mr. Kenneth Pitzer as President of Stanford University accentuates the universal search for college presidents, Mr. Pitzer's being only the most recent of the displaced persons from the academic chancelleries.

He went to Stanford only a year or so ago, having served as President of Rice, and achieved great prominence before that in science. Stanford is of course a good, vital university. During the Cambodian season he had to call the police, but only about 13 times, and only 65 persons were injured, 40 arrested.

Ideologically, Pitzer was perfectly respectable: he deplored the Vietnam War and Nixon's activities over there. He declared a war of his very own, on Brigham Young University, against whose athletes he declined to play, on the grounds that the Mormon religion denies the priesthood to Negroes: and thus Mr. Pitzer acquired his own, personal South Africa. He broadened the curriculum in order to include students on all governing boards and committees, he deplored the draft, he got the trustees to agree to the students' demands that he close down the Research Institute. He was very tolerant, bringing no charges at all against anyone, when one of his nicest buildings was burned down.

There were a few demonstrations, per week; and a hundred sit-ins and rocks thrown through the windows of his office every now and again; and the late-night marching, the high-spirited serenades around his home. And there was the day in April when an exuberant student poured a can of paint on President Pitzer's clothes while he was walking out of a student's dining hall.

Now then, when Mr. Pitzer quits, what does he say? That student discipline has got out of hand? That he erred in hoping that conciliation would lead to a little tranquility? No, he said that when he accepted the post, it was on the assumption that the new administration in Washington would do something about America, something decisive to terminate the war, and presumably poverty and racism. So that it is all comfortably settled: the failure of Kenneth Pitzer to function successfully as President of Stanford University is Richard Nixon's fault! Whatever else you say about it, that is a considerable intellectual performance, especially for a trained scientist.

The University of California people are distressed because there won't be a general cost-of-living raise this year, and everybody knows why: Californians are not disposed, at this moment, to exert themselves in behalf of whatever you call what is going on in the colleges, provided you don't call it education. Endowment money is down in the private colleges, and for reasons that don't, at least not all of them, relate to the stock market.

There are suggestions going around, some of them extremely ingenious, about how to proceed from here. It is generally accepted that the major universities cannot succeed in keeping order without outside help. That is to say, that students won't do it, the faculty won't insist on it, and the administration is more or less powerless, ask Pitzer. An outside agency?

New College Idea

The opportunity is quite extraordinary, it would appear to me, to organize, or better, to take over a medium-sized college with first-rate library facilities, and a few very explicit understandings. 1) An area will be reserved in which students can demonstrate to their hearts' content. 2) Absolutely no demonstrations will be permitted anywhere else on campus. 3) No group committed to disruption or related to any other organization that does, will be permitted to organize. 4) Any faculty member who fails to meet his academic obligations, as agreed upon, will instantly lose his tenure.

My notion is that to such a college, provided it were intellectually first-rate, would flock some of the finest scholars in America, who are soul-weary of what is going on. I could myself, in a half hour, come up with a list of a dozen professors, each one of them a luminary in his profession, who would go there in a minute, provided they could have security. The traffic in college presidents suggests the opportunity for a board of trustees to make the relevant decisions, right now: and be prepared to lose professors who will ritualistically protest, and several hundred students: never mind, never mind, let them go, give them a silver watch or something, wish them godspeed: and let them go. Then the good men will begin to flock in, and the philanthropists, who wish their resources to be used for education: and a great college will be born.

Wisconsin Report

Two-Thirds of Tax Dollars Paid State Returned Locally

BY PAUL BROWN

MADISON — The biennial budget of Wisconsin state government can be looked at several ways.

Taking all types of funding methods into account, the budget of 1969-71 totals $4.4 billion. Substracting activities funded by federal aid, certain programs which pay for themselves through license sales, and programs supported in varying degrees by user taxes, fees, and sales of permits, the budget comes down to $2.4 billion. By deducting another $500 million which is returned on an unrestricted basis to the localities that generated them (share taxes) and $300 million for local property tax relief, we reach $1.6 billion.

This is the version of the state budget which is most popularly understood by the general public since it represents what nearly every income earner and consumer support through general taxes, such as income and sales.

For General Operations

The $1.6 billion is what the state will spend for general operations and, therefore, the taxes we all pay to fund these operations are called "general purpose revenues."

But still another deduction can be made and that is the $800 million that is sent back to localities in the form of aids to assist them in operating specific programs such as those in the areas of education and welfare. This, then, leaves $800 million for strictly general state operations and this is about 18 per cent of the $4.4 billion we started out with.

A significant point needs to be made before discussing the various ingredients of the budget: 66 per cent of the $2.4 billion in general taxes collected is returned to localities, a proportion which places Wisconsin second among the 50 states. And, incidentally, this is why Wisconsin ranks high on national statistics for tax collections. Most studies compare only state collected taxes, so Wisconsin is compared with states which keep all that they collect.

Of the $1.6 billion general purpose budget, 65 per cent is spent on education, 25 per cent on health and welfare, and 10 per cent on all other programs (aids included within the categories). In education over $600 million is spent in aids to support 83 per cent of the cost of educating one million elementary and secondary schoolchildren.

Another $24 million will be spent to provide 75 per cent of the cost of college instruction for 140,000 students at the 13 public university campuses located throughout the state. Over $22 million is for loans and scholarships to over 37,000 college students. Finally, $21 million is spent in aids to provide 33 per cent state support to 33,600 vocational-technical students.

Health and Welfare appropriations total $360 million. Part of this will be spent to operate three institutions for the retarded, four mental hospitals, and eight correctional institutions, all of which operate around-the-clock. Considering three shifts per day, weekends, holidays, vacations, etc., it takes five positions to man one job at the institutions which explains their expense.

Today's capsule report of the ingredients of the growing state government budget was prepared by Paul L. Brown, chief budget officer for the state, substituting as guest Madison columnist for John Wyngaard, on vacation.

Welfare also includes the Family Assistance Program. In this area, over 200,000 people will receive grants. This includes aged, blind, disabled, medical care, and aid to families with dependent children (AFDC). These programs are financed roughly from 50 per cent federal, 26 per cent state ($156 million in aids) and 24 per cent county funds.

Families Receive Help

The AFDC program has 80,000 recipients and our statistics reveal that, on the average, a family stays on AFDC less than two years. Thus the program functions mostly as a temporary relief measure to help a family through a catastrophic experience.

Other programs funded with the remainder of the general purpose budget include vocational rehabilitation, equal employment opportunities, criminal investigation, National Guard, aids, loans, grants and nursing care for veterans, and, among many others, programs which have economic or judicial orientation.

Over and above the $1.6 billion of general tax dollars can be added $450 million in fees for licenses, student tuition, etc.; $740 million in federal funds; and $850 million in segregated funds used for aids to local highways, forests, parks, etc., plus the state related programs of fish and game management, environmental protection, forest management, parks and recreation, highways, driver and vehicle registration and licensing, the highway patrol, aeronautics, and retirement programs.

Strictly Personal

Thoughts at Large Offered by Harris

BY SYDNEY J. HARRIS

People bemoan the lack of "leadership," but what most people want is a leader who will go where it pleases them to be taken, not one who will persuade them to change their preconceived notion of the "right direction."

Those who look for "conspirators" or "outside agitators" as the causes of revolutionary movements should recall the words of Wendell Phillips more than a century ago. Revolutions are not made, they come. A revolution is as natural a growth as an oak. It comes out of the past. Its foundations are laid far back."

Odd how speech can sometimes be an index of attitude: I have noted that most of the people who pronounce "Vietnam" to rhym with "ham" want the war to go on, while those who pronounce it to rhyme with "balm" want it to end now.

"Obscenity" is not a disease of the lewd mind, but merely a symptom of society's suppression and distortion of natural sexuality; when we grow up to our sexuality, in all its manifestations, then obscenity will disappear as a social phenomenon, and will lurk only in a few immature and pitiable personalities.

There is a vast difference between "looking up to greatness" and "hero-worship" — looking up to greatness means finding a model we can shape our actions upon, whereas hero-worship means expecting someone else to act out our frustrations, hopes, angers and dreams of power.

Using "human nature" as a limiting factor in what mankind can achieve in the way of a better society ignores Thoreau's far-sighted observation that "Man's capacities have never been measured; nor are we to judge of what he can do by any precedents, so little has been tried."

California Democrats Have Issues, No Money

Unable to Go After Unregistered Persons; National Committee Asks Contributions

BY ROWLAND EVANS AND ROBERT NOVAK

WASHINGTON — Two private political meetings held in California recently have hammered home this deeply foreboding message to the Democrats there will be no financial aid from out-of-state sources for the voter-registration campaign so essential to the party's chances in November.

Meeting No 1 was held at the Beverly-Hilton Hotel in Los Angeles June 24 with some 50 party notables assembled for cocktails and buffet. The Californians had been hoping for Democratic National Committee money to finance voter registration, but what they got from the committee's two top officers — Chairman Lawrence F O'Brien and Treasurer Robert Strauss — was an appeal for contributions from California.

Evans

A more agonizing shock came from meeting No 2 at the Del Webb Townehouse in San Francisco on July 1 Managers of statewide candidates were stunned to learn that organized labor felt it could not finance a statewide registration effort. Al Barkan, head of the AFL-CIO's Committee on Political Education (COPE), said big labor would limit its California registration efforts to labor union members — a mere sliver of the unregistered potential.

Issues Are There

Those two meetings indicate that while President Nixon's difficulties with Indochina and the economy provide nice issues for the democrats, they do not begin to compensate for severe structural deficiencies in state Democratic parties.

A flagrant example is California, where rising aerospace unemployment has put a rosy glow on Democratic chances for November The stakes are immense: a seat in the U. S Senate, the governorship, and perhaps more important, control of the state legislature With the legislature about to redistrict a state congressional delegation swollen by the 1970 census, State legislative control could effect no fewer than 10 seats in Congress.

What has brought ulcers to Democratic pros in California has been the inattention in recent years to party registration. Vast numbers of nominal Democrats in California are really conservatives who habitually vote Republican. Thus, state Democratic victories have not been produced with Democratic registration much below 57 5 per cent of the statewide total. Today the Democratic proportion has slipped to a telltale 54.5 per cent

Negroes Unregistered

Consequently, California Democrats are belatedly aiming at a crash registration program centered on Negroes — scandalously unregistered and certifiably Democratic — during the July 5-Sept. 10 registration period.

Remembering the halcyon days of 1962 when Robert F. Kennedy ordered the National Committee to dispense $100,000 to California for voter registration, some Democrats there have been looking longingly to Washington (though on a more modest scale than 1962). Managers of Rep John V Tunney, nominee for the U.S Senate, want the National Committee to finance an expert technician to run the registration campaign. The man Tunney wants is Matt Reese, a skilled but expensive professional.

The justification in California for this expense is that, even though the National Committee verges on bankruptcy, contributions to California would be seed money for the presidential campaign of 1972. State Assemblyman Jess Unruh is known to feel that, if he could upset Gov Ronald Reagan, the magnetism of a Democratic governor in Sacramento again would draw vastly more money into the national till than any present nickel-and-dime fund-raising.

Can't Subsidize Anyone

Nevertheless, the National Committee is in no position to subsidize anybody for anything. When O'Brien and Strauss came to the Beverly-Hilton seeking pledges of $100 a month, their goal was to keep the debt-ridden National Committee's doors open

The state party organization is in no better shape financially and considerably worse organizationally. Its Southern California headquarters is closed and, incredibly, no planning for a late summer registration drive was even begun until after last month's primary. Thus, to make that drive successful would require massive help from labor A meeting of state party and labor politicians at the Los Angeles airport June 26 drafted plans for COPE's Barkan on his visit six days later.

Tunney and Unruh managers were rocked by Barkan's bad news. James Cuff O'Brien, national political action director for the Steelworkers who also went west for the meeting, argued with Barkan that a greater effort would be desirable But Barkan, while promising some extra help for registering minority groups, could pledge nothing close to the massive labor help that had been expected.

As matters now stand, thousands of low-income California whites, chicanos and, particularly, Negroes who would surely vote Democratic will stay home election day unregistered and voteless No amount of new politics and slick television advertising can change that.

Infant Deaths May be Caused by Infections

By George C. Thosteson, M.D.

Dear Dr Thosteson We recently had a death in our family, a baby boy 11 weeks old. He died due to suffocation and we have heard that there is a disorder which causes babies to die when they are nine to twelve weeks old. It is called would like to know more about thymus and is inherited We would like to know more about this — Mrs R

These are tragic deaths — and there are from 10,000 to 20,000 like that one every year in the United States alone.

They are called variously the "sudden death syndrome," "crib deaths," or "cot deaths," and a great deal of effort is going into the study of them.

There is no single answer Many years ago, most of them were attributed to "smothering," but this is pretty much discounted now Even a blanket falling over a baby's face will not shut off enough air to be fatal

Later the theory was advanced that a disorder of the thymus gland was responsible, but this idea also has been discarded, because detailed post-mortem examinations are revealing more tangible causes

Dr. Thosteson

One is infection, and this is highest from about November to March — the time when the common cold and related respiratory ailments are most prevalent

What can be a relatively minor affliction to an adult or to a larger child can be devasting to an infant. Such infections can cause swelling of the throat and larynx, and since the airways are so small in a baby, it doesn't take much swelling to obstruct breathing

Various forms of pneumonia are being identified in the lungs of other babies — they haven't yet acquired the strength and resistance to fight off such infections. Further, such infections can develop with such speed in a very small baby that death can occur even though the child has not appeared to be ill, or at least only faintly so, a few hours earlier.

(These facts may satisfactorily explain to people why hospitals are often so strict about visiting newborn babies

In other instances brain disorders, including meningitis and hemorrhages have been found

Net significance these sudden deaths which usually occur under the age of 16 weeks, are sad and numerous and efforts are being made to prevent them — but no single cause is responsible and no single preventive is in sight at present

Dear Dr Thosteson Wanting to become a vegetarian, I am curious about finding a suggested diet The iron and protein content of meat, fish, and fowl seem fairly easy to substitute, but various people for one reason or another have tried to discourage me from joining this sect Any information would be appreciated — D M

The protein is the important element If the sect you have in mind permits eggs, they are rich in protein So is cheese. Milk has some Fair quantities can be extracted from nuts, soy beans, and a few similar vegetables

Dear Dr Thosteson What does the word trapeziocarpometacarpal mean in relation to arthritis? — Mrs T R

That tongue-twister refers to the bones of the wrist and long bones of the hand or hands

Dear Dr Thosteson Should certain foods be avoided in controlling rheumatoid arthritis? — Mrs H H

No, diet has no bearing on it — except that you will be much more comfortable if you avoid overweight

Arthritis sufferers can be helped. Dr. Thosteson's booklet discusses many types of arthritis and related joint diseases as well as outlining effective treatments and medications. For a copy of "How You Can Control Arthritis" write to Dr. Thosteson in care of The Post-Crescent enclosing 35 cents in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope

Full-Time Job

Agnew Duties Include Dissent, Apple Sorting

BY ART BUCHWALD

WASHINGTON — "Daddy, what does the vice president of the United States do?"

"What do you mean, what does he do?"

"I mean what does he do?"

"Well, he . . . ah . . . ah he raises money for his party."

"How does he do that?"

"Well, he goes to a large fund-raising dinner or a lunch, and he speaks to people in his own party who give $100 or $500 to hear him attack the other party."

Buchwald

"But what does he do as vice president?"

"I told you what he does. He also dissents with people who dissent."

"I don't understand what dissent means."

"Well, there are a lot of people in this country who don't agree with what President Nixon is doing, and they say so. Now Vice President Agnew doesn't agree with what they're saying. So the vice president dissents with them and calls them names. Then they dissent and call him names. So he gets madder and calls them more names and so on ad infinitum."

"Doesn't he do anything else besides dissent?"

"There's so much dissent in the country that dissenting can be a full-time job."

"Does he help President Nixon run the country?"

"Of course not. How could he do that and still fly around raising money for the party? Oh, he sits in the Senate every once in a while just in case he has to break a tie vote, but governing the country isn't Mr. Agnew's bag. Besides, the Constitution is pretty loose about what a vice president has to do. Some play golf, others play tennis, but Agnew prefers to stay out on the road calling a spade a spade."

"Doesn't the President get mad that the vice president isn't around?"

"The President's delighted. Most presidents of the United States never knew what to do with their vice presidents. The fact that Mr. Agnew has found a way of keeping busy pleases President Nixon no end."

"Does the vice president get paid?"

"Very well."

"You mean just for calling people names?"

"He doesn't just call people names, dummy. You see, in this country there are good apples and bad apples. The bad apples have to be separated from the good apples. No one knows who the bad apples are except the vice president. His job is to go to Republican fund-raising dinners and say 'How about these apples . . . ' "

"What does that do?"

"It gets him a standing ovation."

"Who are the bad apples?"

"Who aren't is a better question. Averell Harriman for one, Cyrus Vance for another, Sens. Fulbright, Church, Hatfield, McGovern; James Reston, Herb Block, effete intellectuals, the Eastern-Establishment press, network commentators and rotten kids and people on welfare and peaceniks. God knows how many bad apples are still in his barrel."

"If all the vice president does is separate the good apples from the bad apples, why doesn't the Republican Party pay him instead of the American government?"

"Because if anything happens to the President, the vice president takes over the country."

"What would happen then?"

Painting Sold For $1 Million

LONDON (AP) French painter Georges Seurat's "Les Poseuses" was sold to a New York art dealer at Christie's last week for $1,033,200.

A Christie's spokesman said the masterpiece, sold to dealer Richard Feigen, brought the highest price ever paid for a work by Seurat, founder of the postimpressionist style.

Gordon's. It's how the English keep their gin up!

Let down on the distinctive dryness, the delicate flavour of Gordon's Gin? Never! Every bottle is based on Mr. Gordon's original 1769 formula. So you still pour a drier drink today. A fanatic devotion to our discoverer? Perhaps. But then any other way just wouldn't be cricket! And Gordon's wouldn't be the biggest selling gin in England, America, the world!
